KELS DIES IF SANE, SAYS RICHARDSON

Prison Head Yields to Rule of Directors for Operation to Determine if Taint Is Present in Slayer's Spine

Official Reiterates Opinion That the Condemned Man Is Sane; Family Request for Trial Is a Possibility

BY UNITED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 19.—If Alex Kels is sane, on January 4, he will hang.

That was the gist of a statement issued today by Governor Friend W. Richardson in reply to the recent statement of Judge Charles McLaughlin, president of the prison board, ordering the spinal fluid test. The statement read:

If on January 4 Alex Kels is still sane he will suffer the consequences of his cold-blooded and deliberately planned murder.

His execution will be a warning to criminals and would-be criminals all over California and will thus prove a protection to every citizen in the state.

The wholesome effect of this execution has been increased by the fact that there has been so much publicity connected with it.

The majority of the prison board has assumed a strange and illegal responsibility. A syphiletic test will not determine the sanity of Kels, but may help the insurance companies.

If Kels should be injured by these tests which the board insists be made, or if the operation should injure his spinal column or his brain or cause him to become insane, then the grave responsibility will rest with Judge McLaughlin and his two associates on the prison board. If the insurance companies escape payment of these policies on Kels, then the prison board must account to the people.

They have intimidated the warden, as I predicted in my statement a few days ago. They are now seeking to intimidate me from my path of duty. Unfortunately the prison board has ten-year terms of office. Judge McLaughlin's term expires next year, some time; another director's term expires in 1928 and another in 1930. While my administration is held responsible for the conduct of the prison, I am powerless to act, as a majority of the board is hostile. The board appoints the warden. I have no authority over him as I have repeatedly said. The warden is particularly unfortunate to be serving under men who will take such high-handed action and are actuated by cheap political motives. The warden says Kels is sane and sees no reason for a syphiletic test, but has decided to observe the demands of those who appoint him."

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 19.—The test of the spinal fluid of Alex Kels, convicted Lodi butcher, awaiting execution at Folsom prison for murder, will be made at once, as directed by the board of prison directors, the Sacramento Union was advised last night by J. J. Smith, warden of the prison. In his statement he says he believes Kels is sane.

WARDEN BELIEVES SLAYER IS SANE.

The warden refused to comment on the case, other than to hand the Union a copy of a letter he wrote to Judge C. E. McLaughlin, president of the state board of prison directors. The letter follows:

Referring to the resolution of the state board of prison directors, adopted at a meeting thereof held on December 14, 1923, in connection with Alex Kels, number 12,781, I desire to state:

1—The purpose of the proposed examination and test is to determine whether or not the defendant, Kels, is insane at the present time.

It is my duty, under section 1221 of the penal code, if, after the delivery to me as warden, for execution, there is good reason to believe that the defendant Kels has become insane, to call such fact to the attention of the district attorney of Sacramento county. In my judgment Kels is sane. He is in the same condition, mentally and physically, as he was when he was delivered to me for execution. Whether he was sane or insane at the time of the commission of the crime to which he plead guilty, was a question for the superior court of San Joaquin county at the time of the trial and up to the time that judgment was pronounced, as provided by the penal code. He was delivered to me legally sane.

2—It is the practice, upon the delivery of a defendant, to

NOVELIST'S WIFE HANGED ON SHIP

Mrs. Rupert Hughes Committed Suicide on Steamer, Husband Learns.

BY UNITED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Mrs. Adelaide Manola Hughes, wife of Rupert Hughes, author and film director, hanged herself while on board a steamer traveling down the coast of Indo-China, according to first details of her death, received by the husband here today.

That Mrs. Hughes was mentally deranged, suffering from a terrible earache which influenced her to take her life, was the advice contained in the cable despatch, sent by a Standard Oil company official at Haipong, the little Oriental village in the French province, where the body was removed from the boat.

Full text of the message was:

"Mrs. Hughes hanged herself in steamer cabin in middle of night on 13th. Mentally deranged, suffering earache. Doctors gave sedatitve. Stewardess discovered her on morning of 14th. Found long, affectionate cable, apparently unsent to you, indicating depression and complaining of ear, but not suggesting suicide. Referring to luggage, it is necessary for you to secure notarial document establishing heirs, attaching power of attorney from them. Documents must be legalized by French consul. Obtain permission from Secretary of State that body may enter America. Obtain permission from Mayor for burial. Submit all above mentioned papers to French consul. He must telegraph governor-general Indo-China that all is correct. Formality absolutely necessary in order to ship body and baggage."

Immediately upon receipt of the advice, Major Hughes instructed his attorneys to prepare all the necessary documents at once, and carry out every detail which will speed return of his wife's body to America for burial.

Major Hughes, following news of his wife's ailment, recalled that three years ago she nursed him through a long and painful period when he was suffering from an abcessed ear. He believes the fear that she was attacked by a similar complaint preyed on her mind and strengthened her in the suicide resolve.

Hughes today showed friends, with a gleam of pride in eyes saddened by his wife's tragic death, a letter he had just received from a woman in China, unknown to him, who stated that Mrs. Hughes was "the most fascinating woman in China."

Northern California Due for Sunny Days

Northern California is due for a few days of well-behaved weather, with the sun shining brightly and the wind not speaking above a whisper, but Southern California may get a much-needed wetting, according to today's forecast of the United States Weather Bureau here.

There is a big low pressure area over Southern Nevada, waiting to "let fly" at the earliest opportunity. This should bring copious rains to the San Diego and Los Angeles sections, but there is little indication that the precipitation will reach as far north as Bakersfield. Light rain fell in Los Angeles this morning.

FORD BACKS CANDIDACY OF COOLIDGE

Auto Maker Declares U. S. Safe With President and Refuses to "Run on Any Ticket" in Opposition

Statement Creates a Furore at Capital; White House Satisfaction Is Apparent; Michigan Gets Petitions

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(By International News Service.) — President Coolidge has sent Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, a telegram of thanks and appreciation for the commendation and confidence which Ford expressed concerning the Coolidge administration. The text was not made public.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—Henry Ford today declared he "like the great majority of the American people," feels that the country is "safe with Coolidge" and that he himself would never consider running against Coolidge on any ticket.

"I believe it is the wise and natural thing for the people to agree on the nomination and election of Mr. Coolidge," Ford said. "I am satisfied that 90 per cent of the people feel perfectly safe with Coolidge and I feel, too, that the country is perfectly safe with him. And if this is the feeling of the country, why change?

"Mr. Coolidge has shown in these months of service a great many qualities that should please his countrymen. I think they all feel that Mr. Coolidge means to do right. And when a man means to do right, so far as I have observed, it is usually quite easy for him to find the way to do right.

BUSINESS DISTURBANCE HELD UNNECESSARY.

"Some people seem disturbed over the condition which business will face during the presidential election year. Of course, there must be an election. But there is no reason why business should be disturbed by it, if the people by common consent agree they will hold to a good man while they have him. Public sentiment can be so formed long before the election that there need be no doubt about the election.

"In addition to considering the interests of the people, we should consider the interests of the president as head of the American government. President Coolidge has a position of the highest responsibility. He should not feel compelled to take any of his time or strength for any sort of political campaigning and for the sake of the country as well as for his own sake, he should not have to do so."

Asked concerning the use of his own name in connection with the presidency, Ford said:

"No man has a right to say he will never consider public office, nor accept public office. No man can predict his own acts and feelings so strongly as that. But this I will say, that I would never for a moment think of running against Calvin Coolidge for president, on any ticket whatever. In this present situation I am for Coolidge."

FORD CLUBS ARE WITHOUT SANCTION.

Regarding the numerous Ford-for-President organizations and the recent Ford conference held here, persons close to the automobile manufacturer said he had given them not half a moment's thought.

"It was something Mr. Ford could not call in the police and stop," one official asserted, "so the clubs continued to function, although none of them had the sanction or support of Mr. Ford."

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 19.—Nominating petitions entering Calvin Coolidge and Henry Ford as candidates in the presidential primary next April, were accepted by the department of state today.

The petitions naming President Coolidge on the Republican ticket were filed by Horatio S. Earle. James W. Helme, of Adrian, offered the Ford petitions naming him on the Democratic ticket. Both had sufficient signatures and the secretary of state will inform the candidates that the petitions have been approved.

FURORE AT CAPITAL CREATED BY NEWS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Henry Ford's announcement in favor of President Coolidge furnished a double barrelled sensation to political circles in the national capital.

At the White House it was received with undisguised satisfaction and it was said the President would send Ford a personal telegram of thanks.

Everywhere among the old line party leaders the feeling was that no considerable Ford third party movement now seemed likely.

Five Denominations Swept Into Episcopal Church Row Over Virgin Birth Doctrine

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Modernists and fundamentalists today pressed their ecclesiastical warfare, with New York the chief battleground.

In all, five denominations to date have been drawn into doctrinal debate concerning chiefly the virgin birth of Jesus Christ and physical resurrection. While the debate has progressed furthest in the Protestant Episcopal church, where charges of heresy have been made, it became known that Presbyterian modernists, defeated in the general assembly last May, were planning vigorously to oppose adoption of five tenets held by fundamentalists.

But with these rumblings in the other Protestant faiths distinctly audible, the chief engagement in progress was between the Episcopalian factions.

While Bishop William T. Manning of New York, fundamentalist, and Bishop William Lawrence, of Massachusetts, modernist, here to attend a meeting of the church pension fund, maintained strict silence, certain clergymen aligned with the fndamentalists faction issued statements designed to heal the breach which opened when charges of heresy were brought against the Rev. Lee M. Heaton, of Fort Worth, Texas, and 500 Episcopalian clergymen rose to his defense.

TRANSFER, NOT TRIAL, URGED FOR PASTOR.

From Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas' church on Fifth avenue, came a formal statement that plans had been made to avoid a trial of Heaton by transferring him to another diocese. Both Heaton and the bishop coadjutor of Dallas were agreeable to this plan, he said, urging "a little quiet and patience."

Dr. Tyson declined to comment on statements attributed to him to the effect that modernists would not withdraw from the Episcopal church. This was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that the general convention of the church in New Orleans in 1925 would probably bring a fight for control of the denomination's ecclesiastical affairs. He did state, however, that he believed the present issues would not result in a split.

ROOSEVELT AND BAKER ENTER CONTROVERSY.

Meanwhile, statements were not confined to the clergy. Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy and national chairman of the campaign committee for the completion of the cathedral of St. John the Divine on Morningside Heights, issued a statement dealing with the assertion Monday night by the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. Georges, which includes J. P. Morgan among its parishioners, that the fund drive was a dead issue as far as the modernists were concerned. Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, talking at a luncheon yesterday on changing conditions in the world, made passing reference to the church schism by saying that "you have now a controversy raging in the Episcopal church that bids fair to rend that conservative organization in two."

In his statement, Roosevelt referred to the assertion of Dr. Reiland that "a large cathedral for a literal creed" did not inspire liberal churchmen, saying:

"It is a pity, besides being a fallacy, for anyone to say that a controversy between so-called modernists and fundamentalists will harm or impede the effort being made to continue the erection of the great cathedral.

"There need never be fear that the cathedral will represent a narrow or blind doctrine."

NAVAL BASE BILL DUE THURSDAY

Measure Providing Acceptance of Alameda Site to Be Sent Speaker Gillett.

BY SPECIAL WIRE
TO THE TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Naval Omnibus bill, with a provision authorizing acceptance of the Alameda naval base site, is expected to be sent by the navy department to Speaker Gillett Thursday for introduction in the house. The bill incorporates Alameda and Sand Point, Washington, in one section, which reads:

"That the secretary of the navy is authorized, when directed by the president, to accept, on behalf of the United States, free from encumbrances and without cost to the United States, the tile to such lands as may be necessary or desirable in the vicinity of Sand Point, Washington, for use as a site for a naval air station, and in the vicinity of Alameda, San Francisco Bay, California, for use as a site for naval base purposes necessary on San Francisco Bay, in addition to the facilities afforded by and to be continued at the navy yards, Mare Island, California."

The latter clause was inserted as a refutation of arguments that have been advanced that the department planned eventually to transfer all activities in the San Francisco Bay region to the Alameda base and abandon the Mare Island plant.

In the letter Secretary Denby will send to Speaker Gillett, transmitting the bill, it will be stated: "Special attention is invited to that part of section five of the enclosed draft of bill relative to the acquisition of the Alameda site. The proposed acquisition of this land is in consonance with the approved policy of the navy department to continue the use of the facilities of the navy yard, Mare Island."

Formal presentation of the deed to the Alameda site is being planned for Friday, when a delegation headed by Representative MacLafferty will go to the navy department and turn the document over to Secretary Denby

ATHENS, Dec. 19.—Ordered from Greece after an uprising of their subjects demanding a republic, King George and Queen Elizabeth sailed for Bucharest today aboard the steamer Daphn.

Immediately after their departure, Premier Gonatas, in the name of the people, the army and the navy, cabled to Eleutherios Venizelos to return to Greece. The banished ex-premier may head a republic.

George II, who succeeded his father, King Constantine, to the Greek throne, remains formally king, even in his exile, and his regular appropriation will be sent him until the national assembly decides upon what form of government is best for Greece.

The Greek sovereigns may never again return to the throne, for even if the Republicans are not altogether successful at this time it is probable that a new king will be chosen.

Unwilling departure of George II from his domains shatters a dream of Queen Marie of Rumania for a Balkan federation dominated by herself and her children. Queen Elizabeth of Greece was Queen Marie's eldest daughter and others of her children occupy various thrones in the Balkans.

If the new island becomes permanent 45 acres will have been added to the empire.

Gentlemen of Leisure

Someone advertised in rather large space last night for two city salesmen. In fact, most of the help wanted advertisements were for salesmen.

We've heard it said that the salesman is the favorite son of the commercial world, and to many he seems to stroll about, carefree, full of funny stories, well paid and foot-loose—no time clock to punch, no frowning bosses' eye, no monotonous repetition of the same old task.

Did you ever stop to think of the moral courage required to keep a man confident and enthusiastic and persuasive, day in and day out, in the face of the eternal "no" that seems to be the only word of the average buyer?

It is said of many good workmen that they fail in business for themselves because they lack direction. Every salesman must be a merciless driver to himself, no matter how [illegible] his manager seems to be.

Should you chance to hear some such unthinking criticism of the men who have taught us every improvement in business, and who have educated us to every new comfort and refinement of life, remind the speaker that any man who can claim to be a successful salesman is the hero of a war that knows neither truce nor quarter, a man who is master of himself.

CONTROVERSY ON 'SHORT' ACREAGE AT LINKS ENDED

The controversy over the municipal golf links ended today with the announcement by City Auditor Harry G. Williams that he had allowed payment of the November installment on the links, $4000 with interest, or $4960 in all, to Joseph C. Vargas.

Vargas signed a stipulation that the present payment does not jeopardize the city's right in any way to claim the full 244 acres of the original deed, which is now admitted to have been faulty because the actual tract measured about 14.6 acres short.

The shortage, it is admitted by all parties, was not a matter of fraud. The city got exactly the tract it paid for, and Vargas estimated it at "244 acres, more or less." The land had not been surveyed since 1850, and the fences were mossbound. The new survey, however, showed that the tract was 14.6 acres short of the expected 244 acres.

Negotians between Williams and Vargas, the city attorney and the city recreation department have been going forward since Williams held up the November installment-warrant. Attorney A. A. Rogers, representing Vargas, explained that Vargas did not seek to mulct the city, but had acted in good faith. Williams admitted this, but contended that the city is still 14.6 acres "shy." A friendly suit, it is agreed, will probably straighten out the whole matter.

Killing Gloried in By Girl Anarchist

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—There were plenty of thrilling moments for the limited number of spectators admitted to the court when, during the first hearing yesterday, Germaine Berthon, girl anarchist, told the story of how she killed Marius Plateau, a reporter, in the office of the royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise.

"I regret nothing. My life shall pay for my act," Mlle Berthon exclaimed, after describing how she shot Plateau down when he turned his back in opening the door for her to leave the newspaper office. She said she regretted she had been unable to kill Leon Daudet, royalist leader and editor, explaining that she held the newspaper responsible for the assassination of the socialist leader, Jean Jaures, in 1914, for the war, and for the campaign against M. Malvy.

WOMEN JAILED AS PERFUME BANDITS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

MODESTO, Dec. 19.—Two women giving the names of Mabel Howard and Ethel Johnson, believed by Chief of Police Lee E. Smith to be the "perfume bandits" who have terrorized Modesto pedestrians for the last two months, robbing eight Modesto business men of approximately $500, were arrested here last night by a policeman after one of them is alleged to have robbed William Davison shortly before 9 o'clock. The women were captured following the hold-up.

Davison, who was robbed of $6, said he was accosted by one of the women, who attempted to use the "strong arm" method, and when he started to battle with her, she called for help from her companion, who, Davison said, failed to show up. Davison told the officers he succeeded in getting $4 of the $6 back before the bandit made her getaway.

Davison identified one of the two women arrested as the woman who accosted him. Other victims of the alleged bandits will be brought to the county jail tomorrow to identify them.

The women, according to Chief Smitht, admitted being in Modesto Sunday evening, when P. W. Coudell was robbed by two women of $40.

The women gave their home address as 1805 East street, Fresno. They refused to give their ages.

Solons Can Buy Made to Order Talks for $1

BY SPECIAL WIRE
TO THE TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Speeches "tailored" to order at one dollar per, is the latest time and mental energy saving device for members of congress. The service has been inaugurated by a speech-writing firm specially organized for this purpose, and the backers are preparing to do a landoffice business.

All a member of congress has to do now when he wants to make a speech is to have his secretary take down the telephone receiver and place his order. The firm promises to make "quick delivery" of all manuscript, which can cover subjects dating as far back as the entry of William Jennings Bryan into politics.

Some members of congress profess to see danger through subscribing to such a service. They point out that they might go to the trouble of getting "all dolled up," strut out on the floors of congress and orate one of these tailor-mades, only to learn later that the same speeches had already been delivered by several others. Then the difficulty might arise of one member accusing another of plagiarism.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The campaign for instructed delegates to back the candidacy of William Gibbs McAdoo for the presidency at the Democratic national convention will be carried on in all states where his friends feel it is advisable, David L. Rockwell, chairman of the McAdoo campaign committee, said in a statement today.

He announced that McAdoo would seek an instructed delegation from Illinois. Previously certain Democratic leaders had expressed the belief that Illinois Democrats would ask an uninstructed delegation to the national convention.

The explorers will sail under the Norwegian flag. It is expected that the cost of the expedition will be approximately $150,000.

CITIZENSHIP FOR JAPANESE IN U. S. FORCES IS URGED

Naturalization Commissioner Urges Law to Overcome Court's Ruling.

BY SPECIAL WIRE
TO THE TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Recommendation that congress enact legislation providing citizenship status for Japanese who served in the American forces during the World war, is made in the annual report of Raymond F. Crist, commissioner of naturalization in the department of labor.

The supreme court, during the past year, decided in two cases that Japanese and Hindus are not "white persons," and are not entitled to naturalization privileges extended other aliens who served with the American army and navy.

Referring to these decisions and the special congressional legislation that extended naturalization privileges to other aliens, Commissioner Crist says:

"It is my belief that the intention of the committee in recommending the legislation to congress, and therefore the congress, was that all who served the country in the World war should be accorded citizenship, and it is strongly urged here that congress pass such legislation as will effectively relieve the title of those honorably discharged soldiers and sailors who rendered service during the World war. This will in effect be a congressional recognition of them, especially, and the title of citizenship will be in effect a badge of honor for those aliens who offered themselves to this country, notwithstanding the general belief that they could under no conditions be given citizenship."

Several months prior to issuance of Crist's report, information came here from California that he had such a recommendation in mind. Crist was not in Washington at the time, but officials over him said the department of labor was not in favor of such legislation, and that it was not believed the recommendation would be made by Crist.

OFFERED TO NEGRO FOR HALF MILLION DECLARES WIFE

Theatrical Manager Accused in Suit for Divorce Naming Gambler.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Charging that her husband, Elsir La Maie, film director and theatrical manager, tried to sell her for $500,000 to a negro, Mrs. Helen La Maie of Long Beach today filed one of the most sensational divorce complaints on record in local courts. In her complaint, Mrs. La Maie names Mrs. Mary Ella Howe Holder, widow of an El Pasto, Tex., banker, as co-respondent. She also asks a share of La Maie's asserted $400,000 estate.

The negro named in the complaint by Mrs. La Maie as the man with whom La Maie is said to have bartered his wife is Lou H. Baker, wealthy gambler and central figure of the Juarez, Mexico, underworld, it was revealed.

La Maie is declared to be well known in Texas and Oklahoma social circles. Besides writing several popular screen plays, organizing motion picture companies and conducting several theaters, La Maie conducted a dramatic school in El Paso, his wife said today. La Maie is also declared to be well known in the Los Angeles and Hollywood film colonies, where he has acted as a director and booking agent.

Driven to desperation because of the asserted efforts of her husband to sell her to Baker, for which transaction she claims she was to receive $150,000, Mrs. La Maie said in her complaint that she contemplated committing suicide, but was persuaded by friends not to do so. Poverty and fear of death unless she went to Baker in Juarez prompted Mrs. La Maie to legal action and the divorce complaint followed. Although La Maie, his wife says, has a fortune of $400,000, Mrs. La Maie recited in her complaint that she had been compelled to support herself and two minor children. For four years, Mrs. La Maie's complaint states, La Maie has insisted that she submit to Baker so he might be wealthy, and when she refused he abused her and threatened her life. She also charges that her husband wrote her "obscene and foul letters."

Mrs. Holder is now said to live at 3512 Rose avenue, Dallas, Texas.

Richmonds Taxes Prove Prosperity

RICHMOND, Dec. 19.—Judged by the amount of tax money paid into the city treasury for the period just closed, from the increased number of taxpayers, and the decreased total of delinquency, Richmond is in far better shape financially than in any year of its history, according to J. O. Ford.

Nine thousand more has come in in 1923 than in 1922 for the first installments of the taxes.

The total amount of money paid in on the first installment this year was $281,139.63 against a total of $272,477.06 in the first instalment of last year. The total amount of taxes levied here this year is $492,959.40, leaving $211,824.77 to be collected in the April, 1924, period.

FUTURE HEADS OF HOMES LEARNING AT CAMP FIRES

More Than 500 Girls Take Training From Community Chest Agency.

Training more than 500 girls for their responsibilities as the future home-makers of the community is the work that is being carried on by the Camp Fire Girls' organization, one of the Community Chest agencies, according to the report of Mrs. Esther Wood Snyder, in charge.

Emphasis is placed on handcraft and homecraft work and upon out-of-door activities that make for health, Mrs. Snyder points out. This program is designed to aid in preparing girls to take their places in maintaining the home life of the nation.

There are 33 camp fire groups organized in neighborhoods throughout Oakland, each meeting the particular needs of the girls in the community. Membership takes in girls between the ages of 11 and 16 and differs from the work of other welfare organizations in that it serves the needs of a younger group of girls and gives them a well-defined program for all-around development. Opportunities for learning homecraft that many homes no longer provide for girls are given through the camp fire.

Activities of the girls during the last six months include a hiking party and a swimming party each week, two plays and bazaars and 100 ceremonial meetings. At the regular meetings of the various groups, the girls have learned different kinds of needlework and handcraft. More than 800 honors have been awarded among the girls for special achievement in homecraft.

Numbers of the Camp Fire groups are establishing and fitting up their own club rooms, according to Mrs. Snyder. Girls of the Bella Vista Camp Fire have taken over the loft above an old garage and established comfortable quarters there. Camp Fire girls at Elmhurst and Golden [illegible] playgrounds have been given rooms in their local community houses furnishing.

Richmond Wars on Tourist 'Gas Hogs'

RICHMOND, Dec. 19.—City Manager J. A. McVittie of Richmond says the privileges of the auto camp have been so abused that it will be necessary henceforth to provide rigid rules as to the length of time that tourists may enjoy its free privileges.

Richmond has provided free gas and water for all tourists. Their stay was unlimited. But in many cases they have outworn their welcome. Now the sign is being prepared, so large that all may read, that the limit for free occupancy is two weeks. In some cases, according to McVittie, occupants of the camp have stayed as long as three months.

STREET CAR FIRM TO OPERATE BUS LINE IN BERKELEY

Franchise Awarded Despite Protests Made by Professor May.

BERKELEY, Dec. 19.—Busses will be more popular than street cars as a mode of transportation within the next decade or two, according to Professor Samuel C. May, member of the city council and professor of municipal government at the University of California.

For that reason, Professor May has voiced objections to granting the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal railways a five-year franchise to run a bus extension of the Dwight way car line north on Sixth street to Gilman street and thence easterly to San Pablo avenue. He declares such action gives the traction company a "monopoly" on bus service and, at yesterday's council meeting, argued for a year-to-year arrangement.

Despite the university expert's objections, the council voted for the five-year contract, Professor May casting the only dissenting ballot. He declared that a hundred persons were ready to come to Berkeley to operate bus lines if the council would throw the city open to them, and added that he personally knew two persons who were desirous to operate bus lines between Berkeley and Oakland.

That transfer privileges were necessary in certain parts of the city, and that this accommodation could not be given passengers in some instances without the cooperation of the traction company were other arguments advanced by the council in urging that first consideration be given the present street railway system.

Under an agreement reached between W. R. Alberger, general manager ofe the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal railways, and the city, the traction company will operate busses to connect with the Dwight Way cars at their present terminus at Sixth street and University avenue. The inauguration of the bus service is expected shortly after the ordinance as adopted yesterday goes into effect in 30 days' time.

Plans Laid to Form Improvement Club

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—Appointment of committees to perfect a co-operative and improvement club organization, the name of which has not been decided on, to include all the unincorporated area outside of the western Hayward limits have been announced as follows:

Membership, the Mesdames Leroy Atchinson, Katherine Henneberry and F. G. Weiss; the Messrs. W. F. Stom, H. W. Price and Charles Widlund.

Entertainment and refreshments, the Mesdames H. A. Millican, E. W. Reed, E. P. Burch and Manuel Galindo and Bernard Rolf.

Arrangements for meetings, Miss R. Christine Rackle (chairman), A. F. Hanson and Manuel Galindo.

The club is an outgrowth of the Smalley Avenue Co-operative club and the Willow Avenue club, located in the district represented. Votes by the memberships of the two units indicated that the larger and more inclusive organization was desired as it could accomplish far greater results and benefits.

Organization is expected to be perfected at a special meeting of members and prospective members Saturday night, January 5, at which a set of by-laws and a constitution will be presented for acceptance and a nominating committee chosen.

Cashier Alarms All Los Altos Citizens

LOS ALTOS, Dec. 19.—The insistent ringing of the burglar alarm on the First National Bank of Los Altos, which has been robbed and broken into on several occasions, brought out armed and alarmed posses of citizens last Sunday morning, all ready to blow to atoms any burglar who might be breaking open the vaults to take their hard-earned savings. Instead of a burglar, however, they found only W. T. Clements, the bank cashier, who had accidentally set off the alarm while going after some records on which he planned to work, and by means of the alarm notified all of the townspeople that he was smashing local blue laws by Sabbath labor.

Christmas Seal Sale Record Is Set by 2 Girls

Booth at Fugazi Bank On Broadway Sells $90.50 Health Fund.

The honor of achieving the record sale of Christmas seals in the county-wide booth sale held last week goes to Miss Marie Sergl, captain, and Miss Alberta Favatt, her assistant, who presided over the booth in the Fugazi Bank at 740 Broadway. This was announced today upon discovery that the sales of the two young women up to last Saturday afternoon had totaled $90.50, or considerably more than was sold at any other booth in the county. Officials of the bank, who observed the methods used by the two young seal-sale champions, declared that the secret lay in a combination of "personal charm and persistency."

"Practically no one was able to get past their table without purchasing," said one Fugazi Bank executive.

The money realized from the sale of the Christmas seals is to be used to complete the payments on the first unit of the Del Valle farm for children at Livermore.

Stranded Russians Headed Toward U. S.

CHERBOURG, France, Dec. 19.—A numerous body of Russian refugees, headed for the United States, has come as far as this French seaport only to find the emigration quota full, and no immediate hope of entering the land of promise.

The band, upon leaving Russia, went to Poland and stayed several months until compelled by the authorities to move on. Constantinople was the next stopping place, but there also they were regarded as undesirables, and sent away. Now, to the number of 200, they have reached Cherbourg and some of them are planning to try to hold out until June, when new quotas will be operative. In the meantime they are receiving charity.

Britain Quits Work To Emigrate; Barred

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Dec. 19.—One of the sad consequences of the United States restricted immigration law is the case of Stanley Light, who with his wife and child recently returned from America. Light gave up his job here, sold his home and with his family went to New oYrk to join Mrs. Light's parents. His brother and the latter's family went along.

The brother and his family were admitted, but the immigration officials barred Mrs. Stanley Light as a native of South Africa, the quota for which had been exhausted. Mrs. Light was born at Cape Town of English parents, but has lived in England since she was four years old.

OFFICIALS TAKE STEPS TO BLOCK RUNNING OF GUNS

People Warned Against Any Sending of Munitions to Rebel Forces.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—Preparations to block an expected attempt to ship arms and ammunition into Mexico to aid the rebel forces in that country were being made today by local representatives of both the United States and Mexican governments.

William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, who is now in this city, is personally heading the work of checkmating the revolutionist sympathizers who are believed to be in the plot. He is assisted by Fred Esola, local head of the agents of the department of justice, Consul General Zertuche of Mexico, and Jose A. Valenzuela, local Mexican consul.

Both Zertuche and Valenzuela reported that although they are loyal supporters of the Obregon government, they had been approached by rebel sympathizers who attempted to induce them to desert to the de la Huerta ranks.

Following a conference between Burns, Esola and Chief of Police Daniel O'Brien, Burns issued a warning against the sale or shipment of arms or ammunition to the Mexican revolutionists.

"The extension of any aid whatever to the Mexican rebels will be considered by the government as an act against a friendly power, and will be dealt with accordingly," read Burns' announcement.

The San Francisco police, Burns declared, will cooperate with the department of justice to prevent any attempt at "gun-running" from this port.

Ten Years Growth of Trade Surprising

The growing dependence of America upon the Far East for raw materials such as rubber, shellac, copra, tea, raw silk, etc., is very strikingly shown in a comparison of our present day imports with those of ten years ago. During the full calendar year of 1913 the United States took from the Far East commodities valued at only $314,078,218, while durinig the first nine months only of the present year our imports from that section aggregated $835,990,611.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Soroptimists Organize Two Chapters

By EDNA B. KINARD.

Two Soroptimist clubs are in process of organization in California. Mrs. Helena Gamble returned from Long Beach this week, where, as state organizer, she gathered together some twenty or more women leaders in business and the professions for the opening of a charter roll. This class of membership probably will be closed early in April, when the charter will be formally presented the new group at elaborate ceremonies, which will attract to the south a large company of local Soroptimists. The weekly luncheon programs are held at the Hotel Virginia. The formation of the Long Beach group will give two Soroptimist clubs in Southern California, the Los Angeles organization having been the third to receive its charter.

The preliminary meeting toward forming a Soroptimist club in San Jose will be held tomorrow, Mrs. Gamble presiding. The early spring will probably witness an active organization in the Santa Clara county city.

With Oakland the birthplace of this movement among business and professional women, within the period of two years it has become international. A long charater roll of members is nearing completion in London, England, the first club to be formed outside the United States. Washington, D. C., and New York each boast large, active groups. The Soroptimist clubs in California are: Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento.

Under the constitution of the organization but one woman from each classification of business or the professions is eligible to membership. She must be an owner, corporate officer or director of a department to be admitted.

A Christmas luncheon will be celebrated tomorrow by members and guests of the Oakland Business and Professional Women's Club, meeting in the quarters in Broadway. A Santa Claus will be featured on the program. His pack will provide gifts for all. Musical numbers will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Ada Angell.

Mrs. Bessie Wood Gustason, president, will preside.

The Christmas spirit will be expressed by the Cleveland Parent-Teachers' Association in the presentation to the school of a handsome new stage curtain for the auditorium and a new moving picture machine. Success was wrested from the annual Country Fair sponsored by Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs in the Municipal Auditorium last month by Cleveland mothers, who proved their salesmanship by rolling $200 into their treasury. First payments on the curtain and motion picture machine were made possible. A series of card parties during the early spring will complete the purchase price. The moving picture shows, in which the community will be invited to join, will finance the machine.

To get out the vote at all elections and to see to it that the ballot is based on intelligent information is the two-fold purpose of the League of Women Voters. Oakland center is engaging in an active program of work to this end.

Mrs. C. A. Jacobs, second vice president of the National League of Women Voters, and chairman of the national committee on legislation, will be a visitor in the bay cities next month. Her official visit will concern itself particularly with a discussion of laws which relate to women and children.

Mrs. F. C. Turner will open her Ridgeway avenue home on Friday, January 11, to the members of the Eastbay Modern Plays section of the local branch of the American Association of University Women. These students are doing some interesting work along the lines of study of current drama of this country and abroad. Mrs. Walter Burpee will entertain the group at the second meeting in the new year.

The National Research Federation with headquarters in the Y. W. C. A. building in Kansas City is offering a course in citizenship and kindred subjects which has received the endorsement of the National Council of Administrative Women in Education, Mary Bradford, president; and the Women's Chamber of Commerce.

The Research Federation of which Mrs. A. B. Griggs of Topeka, Kansas, is leader, is organized for the purpose of gaining greater knowledge of the ideals of Americanism, stimulating international thought and promoting community progress.

$25,000 GAMBLE DENIED BY GHOUL

SUPERIOR, Wis, Dec. 19.—Denial that he had, as inferred in news despatches from Eau Claire, used $25,000 to $30,000 of funds belonging to the Multitone Company, for speculation purposes was made today by Edward J. Sailstad, held at the county jail on a charge of arson.

Sailstad explained that the company was originally capitalized at $50,000 and later this amount was increased to $110,000. He said that $75 000 was invested in the company building and that there was on the books only $30,000 in accounts receivable. He said most of the money was invested in materials and machinery.

Robert E. Kennedy, district attorney, announced that he had decided to arraign Sailstad and Miss Dorothy Anderson on the arson charge. He asserted that this charge was selected because it was the most serious, entailing a penalty of from three to fourteen years.

Vice Squad Raids "House of Mirrors"

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—A bootlegger's "house of mirrors," so thoroughly equipped with hidden reflecting devices that suspicious customers could be kept under observation from all angles all of the time they were in it or about to enter it, was raided by the police vice squad here after someone had betrayed the secret of the mirrors.

Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly to get permanent relief from constipation!

Freedom from constipation, mild or chronic, can be surely looked for if you will eat Kellogg's Bran every day! Two tablespoonfuls are sufficient: for severe cases with each meal.

Kellogg's Bran is nature's most wonderful food awaiting a chance to bring back your health. Kellogg's Bran is scientfically prepared to relieve suffering humanity from constipation and it will do that.

Being cooked and krumbled, Kellogg's Bran is delicious in its nut-like flavor. It should not be confused with common bran which is unpalatable and hard to eat. Kellogg's Bran adds greatly to the pleasure of eating other hot or cold cereals. A popular way to serve Kellogg's Bran is to cook it with hot cereals. In preparation, add two tablespoonfuls of Bran for each person, mixing it with the cereal to be cooked.

Kellogg's Bran is especially delicious in raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes appear on each package.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran is doing for constipation sufferers all over the nation, then just think what it can do for you and yours. The horrors to come should guide you to eat bran regularly, to serve it in some form each day.

You can drive constipation out of your family with Kellogg's Bran—and remove the cause of 90% of human illness! First-class hotels and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. Ask for it at your restaurant. All grocers.—Advertisement.

SCHOOL PROBE AGAIN DEMANDED

Another request for a second investigation by the grand jury into the affairs of the board of education concerning school buildings was voiced yesterday evening in a resolution adopted by the executive board of the Presidents' Council of Alameda county of which Mrs. H. J. Platts is president and Mrs. Nellie Bulloch secretary.

The Presidents' Council recently sent a questionnaire to the board of education, asking what it was going to do about the recent grand jury report. The board referred this to the new "survey committee." The Presidents' Council has decided to re-refer the questionnaire to the board.

In the new resolution, the Presidents' Council "deplores the fact that the findings of the old grand jury have evidently been regarded as untrue" by the board of education; requests the new grand jury to start a new probe into school buildings; asks the grand jury to audit the school department's books and "thoroughly investigate the political policy of the board of education and of Superintendent Fred M. Hunter," so that "the taxpayers may know why contractors and others involved (in the school scandal) have not been held to accountability for using inferior materials in school buildings."

HOUSE OF HAPPINESS

Blue Bird Bureau

Just five more days until Santa Claus comes down the chimney with his pack of toys and candy. He will slide down so quietly when no one is awake and will fill our stockings as full as he can and put the rest under the Christmas tree. He is a jolly little fellow and wants to remember all his little friends, but some time he can't get around to all of them. It is for those that the busy saint can't visit that the Blue Bird wants the help of the Goodfellows.

"To the kiddies it means so much to have something to remember Christmas by, the smallest gift is enough to make them happy. Just so they are not forgotten. Goodfellows, won't you help?

"I wish some one would be a Goodfellow and give me some toys for Christmas. My father is not working and I'm crippled. My sister is a cripple, too. If you could just bring a dinner and a few toys. We would love to have anything."

Is the poor little crippled child asking too much to have a remembrance? How many know what it means to wait and wait for just a toy and not to have it come? Think how he will feel when the sun goes down Christmas day and his hope which he would not give up was finally compelled to die.

Another child says: "We have four little children in the family and they ould be glad to get anything. Our father is in the hospital and we are very poor. The baby never had a thing to play with. I wish you could give him a rocking horse."

A letter to Santa begs him: "Won't you please send some things for Christmas? We are poor, our family is large and Dad is the only one working. We can't afford to buy for all of us."

Another kiddie had to tell us how she felt about the fact that her father could not get any toys. She writes: "If you only knew how badly I feel to know that Christmas is near and I can have no toys, for my father and brother have been out of work for three months, and we have hardly anything to live on. We are very much in need of help."

Can we forget these youngsters? The time is so short and there are so many yet to be given help. Won't you phone or write in or come in for the name and address of a family who need your assistance? Send in the blank now and state how many children you can care for. If you would prefer to give money, it will be most welcome and will help the Blue Bird in giving happiness to the many kiddies under its wing.

Veronica, Helps McGrath

C. E. McGrath of the McGrath Hardware Co. is a busy merchant in Hastings, Neb., who says: "During the past year I have used Veronica Water for constipation and its attendant ills. Previously, for a long period, I used all sorts of laxatives, neither one of which, at best, gave more than temporary relief. My trouble was gradually becoming more complicated and more stubborn to handle with the different remedies which I used. I have found Veronica Water actually does the work in the system just as represented, and no bad after effects. It gives me pleasure to recommend this wonderful water to all who may be suffering with intestinal troubles."

Veronica is a natural mineral water. Thousands have found that Veronica affords almost miraculous relief from chronic constipation, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, and other stomach disorders. A big, generous ½-gallon bottle at your druggists, seventy-five cents.

MACHINE SHOPS AND MATERIAL YARDS

—the Heart of your Water System

"How big are the shops and material yards you maintain, anyway?" asked the Consumer of the East Bay Water Company on arriving at the company's corporation yard at Twenty-second and Adeline Streets.

The Guide led him through roadways bordered by buildings housing the machine shop, blacksmith shop, meter repair shop, pipes, cement meter boxes and a hundred other materials and supplies used in the every-day operation of a water company.

"These shops and the material yard," the Guide explained, "occupy 120,000 square feet of space—an area greater than the ordinary city block. Concentrated right here is all of the equipment needed day and night to keep this great water system sending an unlimited supply of pure water through its mains to homes and factories.

"Just take our garage alone! Eighty-three motor vehicles travel 3,000 miles a day—equal to the distance from Oakland to New York City—as part of the business of furnishing water; and this garage keeps every machine in perfect condition for its day's work.

"In addition to the equipment you see here, a material yard half this size is maintained in East Oakland, and a third big yard in Berkeley."

The Consumer had never before considered seriously the necessity for machine shops and material yards.

BOY, 17, WIFE, 51, INDICTED TWICE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 19.—Authorities today expressed the belief that Burton S. Tucker, 17 years old, and his wife, Mrs. Susan Simpson Tucker, 51 years old, who were named in two indictments found yesterday charging conspiracy to violate the marriage laws and perjury would voluntarily return to defend themselves. The Tuckers were reported to be enjoying the sports at Southern Pines, N. C.

Tucker and Mrs. Simpson, a wealthy widow, were married in Union Hill, N. J. The application for the license stated that Tucker was 21 years old and Mrs. Simpson, 46.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 19.—Mrs. Burton S. Tucker and her youthful husband checked out of their hotel at Southern Pines, N. C., early today, according to a telephone message received here. The clerk of the hotel said he did not know whether the Tuckers were leaving Southern Pines.

DR. SUN PLANS DECISIVE MOVE

CANTON, Dec. 19.—Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, South China leader, whose recent threat to seize the customs funds of Kwangtung province resulted in the concentration of warships of five foreign powers here, plans to take the first decisive step in the controversy, according to advices from official sources here.

A strong anti-American and anti-Japanese sentiment developed at a mass meeting here yesterday, in connection with the dispute over Sun's claim to the customs surpluses, and the presence of the foreign flotilla off Shamsen, the foreign quarter of Canton, Japanese were accused of supplying arms and ammunition to pirates and brigands.

Sun has been presenting his side of the controversy over the customs surpluses to the American residents through appeals made through agents. It is claimed that there is unanimity among officials of the Canton government concerning Sun's announced plan of seizing the customs funds to prevent the surplus above 13 per cent, the amount allotted, from going to the Peking government, to be used later, according to Sun, in attempting to suppress his activities.

Prisoner Awaiting Sentence Is Married

HOLLISTER, Dec. 19.—With a ten-year sentence in San Quentin hanging over his head, to be passed upon him in the Superior Court this week, Charles J. Arregger, 20, of this city, yesterday took unto himself a bride, Gladys C. Pimentel, 20, of Los Banos.

Arreggar, with another youth, recently decamped with several hundred dollars in pay checks of men working for the contractor grading the Pacheco Pass road, had a good time in the city, then returned to Hollister. The youth has been in similar trouble on previous occasions, and his mother has made good for his peculations. This time the court is inclined to think a term in State prison will teach the youth a lesson. However, Attorney A. M. Runnells made such a strong plea for probation that Judge John L. Hudner postponed sentence "until after his wedding day."

500 WAIFS WILL DINE ON TURKEY

Oakland Electric club, co-operating with the management of the T. & D. theater, will provide Christmas cheer Monday for 500 destitute children of Oakland. There will be a turkey dinner at a down-town restaurant, a vaudeville show, and then the guests will march to the theater to view the regular Christmas program at the theater.

Tickets were all distributed today. The guests were selected carefully in order that there might be no imposition.

Immediately after the dinner, prizes will be distributed from a big Christmas tree. Santa Claus will be there in person.

Clem Pope, manager of the theater, and Ben Hill, representing the electric club, will be the masters of ceremony.

On the platform at the restaurant there will be a fairy play, a Christmas skit typical of the feted day, songs, dances and magic tricks.

COUGHED UNTIL HE WAS WEAK AND THIN

Has now gained 44 pounds, and says he's absolutely well

"A year ago I was down with pneumonia, which left me with a deep-seated cough. My doctor said he couldn't do me any good, and I would have to go to Colorado. I went but I didn't improve, and at the time I left the hospital, I was a mere skeleton.

"I met a person who had used Milks Emulsion and he asked me to try it. I have now taken 21 bottles and have gained 44 pounds in weight and I am today in as good, sound health as I ever was in my life."—J. H. Johnson, 516 No. 32d St., Mattoon, Ill.

To give your body strength to resist disease, try building it up with Milks Emulsion. A trial costs nothing.

Milks Emulsion restores health, natural bowel action; it is a truly corrective medicine, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Arguments Continue in United Properties Suit

Further argument was heard today by Superior Judge J. S. Koford in the motion for a continuance of the suits of Mary Ellen Kibbe and Edmund J. Burkhardt against the United Properties company and others.

The suits involve directly the transfer of certain securities from the Oakland Railways to the Realty Syndicate in 1914 and indirectly involve the entire San Francisco-Oakland Terminal railways, its subsidiary companies and the history of its organization and the amalgamation of the various car companies. In the present motion the defendants seek to have the court continue the case pending an appellate court hearing of another suit involving similar issues.

The gist of the argument, which has taken the best part of two days, appears to be whether the local court shall take cognizance of a decision of the San Francisco superior court in the case of the Anglo-California Trust company against the Oakland Railways and others. This case is now on appeal and the defendants in the local action claim that Judge Koford should not act in the present case until this appeal has been acted upon by the appellate court and the supreme court later.

The point involved is that the very securities which are sued for under the present action, say the defendants, and against which it is sought to levy for any judgment that Judge Koford might render for the plaintiffs, were ordered sold in the Anglo-California suit now on appeal. The defendants claim that this bars the plaintiffs from further prosecuting the present action if the judgment of the San Francisco court is upheld.

The attorneys, which include C. E. Snook, Everett J. Brown, Herbert Erskine, Joseph Bien and J. W. Bingamen for the plaintiffs and Matt. Wahraftig, Herbert Clark, W. I. Brobeck, Garrett McInerney, R. P. Henshall and G. A. Ruggles for the defendants, have traced the history of the reorganization of the Eastbay street railway company, including the trans-bay service commonly called the Key Route, from its very inception during the arguments in the case. All admit that the present suit affects the complete re-organization and history of the company from 1914 and immediately prior thereto down to and including the present reorganization into the Key System Transit company, the latest concern and the one which received the approval of the state railroad commission anly a few days ago.

In answer to the contentions of the defense attorneys, the plaintiffs have argued that the original transfer of the securities in question to the Realty Syndicate was accomplished to defeat the creditors of the Oakland Railways. In tracing the history of the various organizations and re-organizations of the allied companies, the plaintiffs hold that the transfer was void and never intended to be binding and claim as an indication of this that the Realty Syndicate under the latest reorganization is to receive a block of securities in the new transit concern. It is claimed that these new securities merely represent the value of the former holdings and that a judgment would lie against them in lieu of the former securities which were sold under the judgment in San Francisco. It is further claimed that the pledging of these securities to underwrite the notes on which the San Francisco judgment was rendered was in furtherance of the alleged fraudulent acts and a part of the collusion alleged and complained of by the plaintiffs.

Some of the facts surrounding the judgment cited and the sale held to satisfy the judgment, as set forth in the supplemental answer of the Realty Syndicate, which the court permitted to be filed yesterday, will prove interesting. The sale, which was held June 16, 1923, was to satisfy judgments for two notes of $2,500,000, one being given to secure the other. The judgments ran against the Realty Syndicate as well as the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal railways and the subsidiary companies of this concern. This is one of the main points made in the argument of the defendants in the present suit. Charles M. Frye purchased all the securities offered at the sale, the answer showing the following transactions:

Preferred stock, class A, of S. F. O. T. valued at $3,811,000, brought $47,640.

Preferred stock class B, of S. F. O. T. valued at $1,000,000 brought $12,600.

Common stock of S. F. O. T., valued at $13,710,000 brought $1371.

Eighteen hundred and forty-three bonds of $1000 denomination brought $921,500.

Fourteen hundred and thirteen bonds of $1000 denomination brought $715,000.

Notes aggregating $128,814 brought $1,288.40.

Three judgments aggregating $2,500,000 brought $250,000.

This is the sale and the judgment that the present plaintiffs content is but a step in the reorganization and was carried out with collusion and cannot effect the present case.

J. J. Doyle of S. F. Stricken Suddenly

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—John J. Doyle, affectionately known among his associates as "Father" Doyle, died following a suddent attack of the heart at his home, 680 Fifteenth avenue, last night. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from the Star of the Sea church. A widow and two daughters survive.

Doyle spent the early evening at the Olympic club. Upon his return home, he complained of a pain in the region of his heart and died before medical aid could be summoned. He was 55 years old.

Since 1912, Doyle has been connected with the Fireman's Fund Insurance company as adjuster. He was one of the pioneers in the automobile industry of the coast, holding a position as sales manager for the Consolidated Motor company before entering the field of insurance. He was active in the Olympic club and was a member of the Knights of Columbus and local lodge of Elks. He also was a promoter of the Dipsea races and other sporting events. Before coming to California, Doyle made his home in Syracuse, N. Y.

300 INSURERS TALK 'SHOP' AT HOTEL OAKLAND

Speakers Emphasize Growth and Greatness of Life Policy Business.

More than 300 insurance men met in the Hotel Oakland last night at the session of the Northern Association of California Life Underwriters. It was the first time the life underwriters have met in Oakland. Ben Shapro, manager of the Oakland agency of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, presided.

Mrs. Daisy L. Short, former Oakland school director and now a life underwriter, spoke on "Life Insurance for Women." She said that the tremendous increase in the number of women in the business world, in industry, in the professions, had opened up a great new field for life insurance. Women in business, she said, were quick to realize the benefits of insurance with the result that unexpected sources of business for the life underwriter had been uncovered.

James C. Fulton, speaking of the by-products of group life insurance, pointed out that last year two billion dollars was represented in group insurance. He said that the fact that the employer was ready to insure his employee was having its reaction on the employees, who were being taught the value of life insurance.

R. H. Mouser, perhaps better known as Bill Stinger, writer and author of lively verse and now assistant agency manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of Oakland, spoke on "Success Qualifications."

Other speakers were Roy Henderson of the New York Life Insurance Company, Joseph Meltzer, superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who spoke on "Serving the Masses"; E. E. Lestock Gregory, general agent of the Aetna Life Insurance Company; J. B. Duryea, general agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, who gave an interesting talk on "The Value of Human Interest appeal," and four-minute talks by Clifton Brooks of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, Joe Mortenson, Bill Rutherford of the same company and F. J. O'Brien of the Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Oakland Port Needs Pointed by Visitor

Surprised at Oakland's lack of harbor facilities, for a city of its size, was expressed yesterday evening by Colonel G. B. Hegardt, commissioner for the port of Portland, Oregon, after a visit over the harbor in company with Commissioner A. E. Carter.

"Oakland seems the natural shipping point for the big inland valleys, but its facilities are very small for the volume of trade which it might invite," said Hegardt. "A survey of the trade possibilities for the port might be started here. Its results would be surprising."

Hegardt is on his way home from New Orleans, where he attended a convention.

Oakland Postman Will Hold Annual Yule Celebration

The day before Christmas has been named by M. J. King, Oakland postman, as the date for his annual Christmas party to a large number of needy families from various parts of the city.

On that date, King said, he will have a Christmas tree at his home, 120 East Twelfth street, bearing gifts of food and other staple articles for more than 100 families. The families invited to participate will be selected from among those on lists furnished by fellow postmen, who have turned in the names of needy families on their respective routes to Postmaster Joseph J. Rosborough.

Throughout the day before Christmas, until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, visitors will be welcome to call at King's home and inspect the Christmas tree, which will be of unusual size, according to King.

Angelo Galleeinni, 678 Third street, an aged recluse, was found dead on the kitchen floor of his home yesterday by friends who called to see him. Police who investigated the case found that he had $1600 on deposit in Oakland banks. The cause of death is unknown.

GEORGE A. TRACY CALLED BY DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—George A. Tracy, 63, who was for many years a prominent labor leader in this city, died at his home here last night, following a stroke of paralysis. Tracy was president of the Typographical Union of San Francisco for several years and was active in various other ways along labor lines. He served for several years in the government printing office in Washington and established the government printing office in the Philippines.

Tracy suffered a stroke of paralysis Sunday night, but had been ill for several months previous to that time. Following his stroke, Sunday, he lapsed into a state of coma and did not regain consciousness.

For a period of several years, Tracy took an active part in Federal civil service affairs in San Francisco, Washington and the Philippines. It was in 1902 that he was sent to the Philippines to establish the government printing office there. He returned two years afterward, taking up his residence in this city.

He was past president of the State Federation of Labor, was formerly vice-president of the International Typographical Union, and had served as second vice-president of the National Civil Service Association.

He is given the major portion of the credit for bringing the national convention of the Civil Service Association to this city last year.

Tracy is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Tracy, and by two sons. The sons are George A. Tracy Jr. and Bartley Tracy. Tracy was a native of Mon[illegible]uth, Ill. Arrangements for his funeral are now under way.

Hotel Employees to Have Yule Party

The three hundred employees of the Hotel Oakland will be entertained by Manager W. C. Jurgens at the annual Christmas party in the main ball room of the hostelry Friday night. The celebration also will mark the eleventh anniversary of the opening of the hotel. A. G. Parker, assistant manager, is making arrangements for the party. A Christmas ball will be a feature of the celebration.

Clock Shop Victim Of Night Burglars

Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was stolen by burglars who broke into the Oakland Watch and Clock Shop some time last night. Entrance was gained by forcing a rear door. Stolen articles include one bag, four wrist watches, four gold knives, four chains, two strings of pearls, three watches, three pearl stickpins and one clock. The burglary was discovered this morning when one of the clerks opened the store.

PIONEER PASTOR IS DEAD AT HOME

Rev. Calvin Caldwell Herriott, 75, pioneer Presbyterian clergyman, and widely known throughout California, died yesterday at his home in East Oakland, following an illness of several months. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from High Street Presbyterian church, High street, near Foothill boulevard, of which he was founder and served as pastor emeritus.

Born in Ohio, Rev. Herriott was ordained as a minister in 1876. Before coming to California more than a quarter of a century ago, he held pastorate in Indianapolis and St. Paul. On the coast he presided over important charges in this city, San Francisco and Santa Cruz.

In the High street district he met the growing population by establishing an active congregation of his faith there several years ago.

Rev. Herriott was the father of Paul Herriott, who was killed while training to be an aviator for the World War. His daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Herriott March, is a missionary in China under the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. Rev. Clarence D. Herriott of Berkeley and Charles C. Herriott are sons. Miss Grace Herriott is a daughter. A widow, Mrs. Mary Abby Herriott, prominent in church circles, survives.

Boy Scouts to Hold Court at Pleasanton

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—The first court of honor since the organization of a Boy Scout troop there will be held in Pleasanton the night of January 9, according to an announcement by Henry L. Hopkins, field executive of the Alameda Boy Scouts' organization. Heretofore the courts have been held at this city, with boys from Castro Valley, Pleasanton and San Leandro attending. The sessions will be held regularly at Pleasanton henceforth, states Hopkins, the new arrangement indicative of the rapid strides in scout activities there.

With approximately a dozen candidates on hand for the initial court of honor a court membership will be organized within the next week or two, mentions Hopkins, to probably consist of the troop committee, of which R. M. Estes, principal of the Pleasanton grammar school, is chairman. R. C. Wright is scout master.

Women Voters Open Register Campaign

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—In accordance with a request sent out by Mrs. Maude Wood Park, president of the National League of Women Voters, with headquarters at Washington, preparations are being made by members of the Hayward Civic League of Women Voters for a voters' registration campaign, to open here January 1 and continue until March 1. The direct purpose of the campaign is to induce every eligible citizen to register and to stimulate a greater interest in voting. The campaign will be carried on between those dates over all of the United States.

A special meeting of all community, civic and fraternal members or representatives has been set by the Hayward league for January 8, at which assistance and co-operation in the movement will be sought, and the actual drive put under way. Mrs. L. M. Turner, president of the Hayward branch organization, is chairman of the general committee in charge.

The fact that April will witness the local election for city council members makes the registration campaign of double importance, it is claimed.

WHIST TOURNEY TONIGHT.

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—The profits to be used in the purchase and decoration of a Christmas tree, with distribution of sweets and gifts, for the children of members, a public whist tournament will be given by the Hayward Rebekah lodge at the Odd Fellows' hall here tonight. Arrangements have been made for the usual capacity attendance. The committee in charge consists of George Christensen (chairman), Alan G. Curry and W. Wallace.

Hayward to Enter New Year Parade

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—To arrange for an appropriate representative float to be entered by Hayward in the New Year's eve parade and celebration at Oakland, in which all the cities and towns of the Eastbay region and Alameda county will take part, a committee consisting of W. A. Hutchins, L. R. Rosenberg and Jacob Harder Jr. has been selected by the Hayward Chamber of Commerce. Harder is secretary of the chamber.

It is being considered to mount a huge panorama of Hayward and its surrounding districts, painted in natural colors.

"SPIRIT" IS TOPIC.

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—With Rev. A. P. Orth, pastor, in charge, the weekly class in applied psychology of the Hayward Congregational church, will be held tonight at the church parlors. The subject under discussion will be "Spirit." The meeting, portion of an extended course on psychology, is open to the public.

BAZAAR PLANS COMPLETE.

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—All arrangements have been completed for the bazaar and whist tournament that will follow the weekly meeting of the Hayward Foresters of America at the Bank of Hayward hall tomorrow night. GYPSY SMITH OF BRITAIN TO WAR HERE FOR SOULS

Ministers' Association Invites All Eastbay to Hear Evangelist.

Evangelist "Gypsy" Smith, who will return to England next summer following an intensive evangelistic campaign in the United States, will be in Oakland from April 21 to May 19, it was announced by Dr. Frank M. Silsley, chairman of the committee on evangelism, at the meeting of the Oakland Ministers' Association at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon.

Berkeley ministers have already expressed their desire to cooperate actively with Oakland during the evangelist's visit, and it is hoped that the Alameda churches will take similar action.

Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt spoke on "The Modern Student and His Religion." The Mills College leader pointed to the effect of war times on the mental and moral development of the college student today and the influence of the nation's enormous prosperity on the view point of the student of the 'teen age.

"The students of today," Dr. Reinhardt said, "are thoroughly sophisticated. Almost every emotion has been played on, and there is virtually nothing they have not thought of. Emotionally the student of today is decades in advance of other generations of youth.

"With all the apparent cynicism of our students today," the speaker continued, "with all their loss of faith in learning and knowledge, there is a splendid spirit of investigation, a real desire on the part of the student to understand problems faced by other peoples in other lands. There is a mental alertness and challenge, a sincerity and honesty that promises in some part at least to make up for the over-sophistication and attitude of 'what's the use,' so apparent in relation to much of the knowledge of another generation which may have been found wanting in the present day.

"I believe that the student with all his cynicism, his ability and pleading for truth, can be made into a most constructive member of society and of God's church. The astounding new horizon of the present day student must be met with knowledge. He must be made acquainted with the Christ, finding in Him the true leader and in His teachings a solution of their problems."

Dr. Harvey O. Breeden, president of the association, announced the following working committees for the year: Membership—John Stephens, Ralph C. Wardell and R. E. Cooper; legislative—A. T. O'Rear, O. R. Williams and D. O. Colegrove; evangelism—Frank M. Silsley, Kelly O'Neall and E. A. Fridell; community and federation—John Snape, Alexander Allen and J. B. Orr.

Early next year the churches of Oakland plan observance of a week of prayer, the details to be worked out by the committee on evangelism in conjunction with the various church groups of the city.

Neighbors Quizzed in Bomb Blast Death

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 19.—More than a dozen residents of Los Olivos, 55 miles north of Santa Barbara, were quizzed by District Attorney Clarence C. Ward yesterday in connection with the death of J. J. McGuire, 76-year-old blacksmith, who died as a result of injuries received from a dynamite blast in his cabin last Sunday morning.

Investigations at the scene of the bombing made by Sheriff James Ross confirmed the earlier theory that a trench had been excavated from the property of W. H. Downs, Los Olivos postmaster, to a spot under the floor of McGuire's cabin and directly beneath the old man's bed, officers said. A high board fence separated the property of the two men, between whom an eight-year-old feud has existed.

Downs is said to have been absent from Los Olivos when the blast killed McGuire.

Associated Oil Not Linked to Indictment

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 19.—There is no connection whatever between the Associated Oil Company of California and the Associated Oil Company of Texas, whose organizers, H. B. Grace and W. J. Baltlett, were indicted Monday for oil fraud. A news item sent out about the indictments erroneously identified the Texas organization started by Grace and Bartlett as a concern which had offered to consolidate with the Amalgamated Oil Company.

Neither the Associated Oil Company of Texas nor its organizers, Grace and Bartlett, ever had any connection with the California association. The California Associated Oil Company is considering plans for consolidation with the Amalgamated company and the reference to the Associated Oil Company of Texas as being the one planning to unite with the Amalgamated company was an error.

NEW CLASH OVER BERKELEY WATER CONTRACT ARISES

Councilman May Insists On Provision for Adequate Pressure in Pipes.

BERKELEY, Dec. 19.—A new clash over the contract which the city council has entered into with the East Bay Water company providing for the expenditure of approximately $400,000 for new mains has developed in Berkeley.

As a result of protests voiced by Professor Samuel C. May, member of the council, City Manager John N. Edy today is endeavoring to have the water company insert a clause in its contract "which, while not obligating the water company for damages for failure to provide sufficient water for fire protection, will obligate the water company to have sufficient pressure in the mains as a condition of receiving payment."

In wording his proposed amendment to the contract, Professor May declared that the water company made no effort to give the city adequate fire protection and assumed no obligations along this line, although the installation of the new mains for such purpose was the principal reason for the contract. He declared the entire contract to be unfair to the city in that local authorities were forced to "drive a hard bargain" to get the protection desired.

Councilman Thomas E. Caldecott entered into the discussion by declaring that he would like to see the people vote on the contract, and Professor May said it was important enough to warrant such action. The council already has finally adopted the emergency ordinance authorizing the city manager and other officials to sign the contract with the water company. Action was taken yesterday asking the city manager, city clerk and city auditor "to endeavor" to secure the clause desired by Professor May before signing.

BERKELEY HIGH TO GIVE CHANCE FOR CREDITS DUE

Pupils Failing to Enter University May Make Up Deficiencies.

BERKELEY, Dec. 19.—Pupils who fail to receive required credits for university work, but who, at the same time, are graduated from Berkeley High school, may return to the school to make up their deficiencies in the future, according to a ruling adopted yesterday by the board of education.

The board also placed itself on record as in favor of allowing undergraduate students to make up deficiencies in certain subjects looking toward their graduation and recommendation to the university.

Action on this matter was taken yesterday as a result of an investigationof several weeks which followed protests by parents who declared that many pupils now being graduated from the high school are forced to attend private schools to obtain required recommendations to the university. It was declared that approximately 50 per cent of the graduates from Berkeley High school last year did not receive recommending grades which would allow them to enter college, but are said to have been refused the privilege of returning to high school to make up deficiencies. Percy R. Goodhan, Berkeley merchant, led the delegation of protesting parents.

As a result of the complaint a special committee of the school board consisting of President W. B. Herms, Mrs. L. E. Blochman and Superintendent H. B. Wilson investigated the situation and found it to be the same as as other high schools in the Eastbay region.

JURY DISAGREES AT SECOND TRIAL OF ACCUSED WET

John Casey to Face Court for Third Time on Charge of Selling Booze.

RICHMOND, Dec. 19.—For the second time within one week a jury deadlocked last night over the guilt or innocence of John Casey on the charge of liquor possession and sales at his soft drink parlor, the Messa, on Washington avenue and Railroad streets during October. The jury took eight ballots.

The case attracted much attention in the Eastbay, being the first of a long string of alleged Wright act violations in which the defendant demanded a jury trial. About one hundred violators recently trapped had pleaded "guilty", and paid their fines. Six other alleged violators are awaiting trial.

The Casey trials were heard before overflowing courtrooms, as Casey was born and reared in Richmond. The fact that Delta Halversen, woman operative, had aided the Richmond police by opening a pseudo soft drink parlor to uncover a bootleg ring which the police suspected to be operating here, lent an added attraction.

For the first time in many years in Richmond, an attorney objected to the entire jury, when Casey's lawyer, W. S. Robinson, claimed that it had been empanelled by a prejudiced policeman. The policeman, J. Liggett, was placed upon the stand and testified that he had summoned the jury without prejudice in the regular way, and Casey's attempt to throw out the venire failed. Judge C. A. Odell, who tried the case, denied a change of venue.

Judge D. J. Hall, city attorney in charge of the prosecution of the case, stated this morning that it will be retried.

Kessler, Mrs. Julius Saupe, Mrs. Dudley Kinsell, Joseph R. Knowland, Mrs. A. S. Larkey, F. A. Leach Jr., Mrs. F. A. Leach Jr., Dr. Eugene S. May, Mrs. G. H. Morrison, Jack W. Matthews, Thomas Norris, Mrs. I. B. Parsons, Mrs. J. H. Perine, Mrs. Geo. E. Perkins, T. M. Potter, Mrs. T. M. Potter, Mrs. Bernard Ransome, J. J. Rosborough, Dr. H. J. Samuels, Miss A. Sellander, Mrs. A. C. Smith, Charles Leonard Smith, Dr. W. H. Streitmann, Mrs. H. W. Thomas, Charles S. Young, Mrs. H. K. Zeimer.

COMMITTES INCREASED.

J. W. Garthwaite, Mrs. G. H. Morrison and Charles Leonard Smith were included in the personnel of the special committee appointed in October by the chairman to determine a future policy for the home service section to render service to all veterans and care to the disabled ex-service men of Alameda county, excepting that area covered by Alameda and Berkeley chapters, which presented its findings yesterday. The survey covered the period between October 22 and December 1, 1923.

A total of 116 cases were considered during the period, 44 of which were closed. The chapter headquarters received 263 calls for information, assistance or service. An actual servce was rendered in 232 instances, while 31 callers were referred to other civilian agencies. Home interviews by workers numbered 43, although 65 actual calls were made in case work. Letters and telegrams received in case matters numbered 113. Letters and telegrams sent totaled 202. Nine different types of service were needed for handling the cases of the home department, according to the findings.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The recommendations which were adopted as the program for the work of the coming year follow: (1) employment of a trained social worker with American Red Cross chapter experience and a stenographic office assistant, to direct the work of the home service department; (2) purchase of an automobile to solve transportation difficulties in serving Oakland Chapter territory; (3) maintenance of down town headquarters of two rooms; (4) formation of a Council of Veterans' Agencies to be operated in accordance with ways and means which may be worked out by the Oakland Community Chest; the council to meet monthly for discussion of mutual problems.

The primary aim of this proposed council is to eliminate duplication of work for ex-service men and the establishment of a central registration and case clearance bureau of all veterans' cases. The personnel of the council is suggested as follows: American Red Cross, American Legion, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, Disabled Veterans of the World War, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

SURVEY URGED.

A complete survey of Oakland and the territory included under the jurisdiction to locate an emergency personnel and equipment in time of local disaster has been made by the chaputer under the direction of Dr. Herbert Samuels, and copies are to be in the hands of each officer of Oakland Chapter. The task was inspired by the recent fire in Berkeley and has been carried on since that time. Information is charted as to the location of hospitals and numbers of beds, halls and their capacity, a registrty of physicians, visiting nurses and home economic experts, depots where blankets, cots, provisions may be secured at immediate notice, etc. The files will be kept up to date by the directors.

MAN SUES FOR BABY.

Though given custody of their daughter, Frances, when granted an interlocutory decree of divorce recently, says William R. Higgins, hardwood floor dealer of Berkeley, in an affidavit filed today, Mrs. Jennie E. Higgins, 1161 Sixty-first street, has refused to give up the child. Higgins asks that Judge Dudley Kinsell, who granted him the decree, instruct the sheriff to secure possession of the child for him.

DEATH JURY CALLED.

Drawing of a jury to try P. A. Morani, barber and chiropracter, charged with murder, began today in Superior Judge George Samuels court. Morani, a San Francisco resident, is charged with having caused the death of Mrs. Gunhild Dahl as the result of an illegal operation.

CHEST LEADERS TO MAKE REPORT

SAN LEANDRO, Dec. 19.—Reports from the presidents of the various clubs of this city that were asked to appoint a committee of one to confer with the Community Chest committee of Oakland to investigate the matter of San Leandro uniting with Oakland in the next drive, will probably be heard at the weekly meeting of the directors of the San Leandro Chamber of Commerce to be held tomorrow at the Estudillo House. Letters were sent by U. S. Ackles, secretary, recently asking each president of the clubs of San Leandro to choose a committee of one from their organization to confer with the Community Chest committee.

DRY RAIDERS AT PACHECO.

MARTINEZ, Dec. 19.—Nathan Powers, 70, was arrested at Pacheco yesterday afternoon by members of the dry squad on a charge of selling liquor. He is at liberty and time of his preliminary examination has not been fixed.

Runaway Girl Hunted for Third Time in Month

BERKELEY, Dec. 19.—Dorothy Brown, 12-year-old runaway who has given the police of the college city more difficulty because of her wanderings than any other child in the city, is being sought for the third time in a month. The girl disappeared from her home at 1019 Shattuck avenue on December 10. This is her longest absence. According to the authorities steps will be taken by the girl's foster parents to place her in an institution when she is apprehended again.

The girl was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown of Berkeley several years ago, when she was relinquished by her mother to the foster parents.

Dry Law Officer's Own Hotel Raided

TRES PINOS, Dec. 19.—Himself in the thick of a scrap about dry law enforcement in San Benito county, Supervisor Jack Echeverry woke up to find his own hotel, the Southern Pacific House, raided by the dry squad. He gave the lessee twenty-four hours to vacate, and the court fined the departing renter $200. The same hotel was raided by Federal dry officers early in the year, and the former tenant prosecuted for bootlegging.

I have never enjoyed better health in all my life than now and I attribute it to the Alvita Tablets. I tell my friends about them every chance I get."

Thousands of men and women from every section of the land have obtained amazing benefits from Alvita. No matter what you have tried, try this remedy of Nature now. The Sonora Line

THE PHONOGRAPH INDUSTRY AND

Sonora

THE PHONOGRAPH industry was never in a more prosperous condition. Phonographs are being purchased throughout the country in great numbers and the proportion of instruments of better grade was never higher. Dealers everywhere are clamoring for additional merchandise. Manufacturers of high grade phonographs are already over-sold. By increasing its production more than thirty per cent, Sonora is striving to meet this demand.

Sonora makes the Highest Class Talking Machine in the World. When heard in comparison, it is invariably the "choice of those who've heard them all." At the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Sonora, in competition with other phonographs was awarded the highest score for tone. Since then Sonora has been improved from time to time so that the present day product is far superior to the early instrument.

The Sonora embodies exclusive features of construction which, combined with the high quality of materials used and the skill of the artisans employed in its manufacture, conclusively substantiate our claim. Sonora is the phonograph supreme. It plays all makes of disc records. Its sound amplifier or horn is made of from five to nine all-wood laminations. Its automatic stop and tone modifier are superior. Its wonderful Swiss motor, the parts of which are interchangeable, is the development of five generations and is the last word in precision and silent winding and running. "FORGET THE PAST" IS MOTTO OF P. C. L. HEADS

GOLF TROPHIES PRESENTED BY THE TRIBUNE WILL BE DISTRIBUTED TOMORROW EVENING

PRESIDENT OF LEAGUE IS VISITOR HERE AND CHATS WITH OAK BOSS

Cal. Ewing Returns From Chicago Meeting and Has Little to Say About Happenings There; No Strings Attached to New Men From Pirates.

By EDDIE MURPHY.

"Forgive and forget; if you can't forgive at least try to forget." That's the motto of J. Cal Ewing, president of the Oakland ball club who returned home from the Chicago meeting yesterday. Cal hit a home run everytime he went to bat in the Windy City. One wallop knocked Bill McCarthy out of the box and another brought Harry Williams home. Then the Oakland president was unanimously elected a member of the Board of Arbitration and the chances are he would have given Judge Landis a tough battle for the baseball commissionership had he cared to enter that kind of a contest. When word was received that J. Cal was coming home on the one-forty-five Harry Williams, the new coast league president was chatting with the boys in the sport department of The TRIBUNE, so Harry was invited to go down to the depot and help welcome J. Cal.

When asked about several things that happened at Chicago Ewing said that he would prefer to talk about something else. "We just scored a sweeping victory because the men who handled the case were plainly shown that we were in the right. We presented them with facts in black and white," said Ewing.

Stafford Reads Letter And Blushes Like Rose.

A plot was laid to try and beat Ewing in the election to a seat on the national board of arbitration, but when it was learned by the voters that somebody was playing the wrong kind of a game they decided to put Ewing in unanimously. Ewing had some kind words to say for William H. McCarthy, who lost the presidential fight to Harry Williams. "I believe that if Billy was allowed to run things himself and was not prompted in most of his actions by owners of other clubs in the league he would not have had so much trouble," said Cal.

One of the untold features of the Chicago meeting was related by Ewing yesterday. It seems that Billy McCarthy had written a friend relative to the chances of securing a franchise in the Coast league, and he mentioned that the Oaks might be purchased. The Big Five obtained the letter and extracts were read from it. Then the Little Three demanded that the letter be read in full, which was quite agreeable to the other side. "Let the Hon. Harry Stafford read it," suggested J. Cal." He has an excellent voice."

Stafford grabbed the chance and got along famously until he turned over a page, when he was compelled to read aloud McCarthy's written opinion of Ewing.

"I detest this man Ewing, but I have never known him to be dishonest. In fact, I have known him to take the worst of it in the interests of harmony."

Pirates Have No Strings Attached to Players.

Speaking of the Kremer deal, Ewing said that the three players turned over to the Oaks are the property of the local club and that the Pirates have no string attached to Spencer Adams as Pittsburgh papers claim. Ewing confirmed the story given out by Del Howard about the Oaks having a working agreement with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Cal looks for Barney Dreyfuss to turn some more talent over to the Oaks before the season opens.

Everything is set for the majors to draft next season. They cannot take any players other than those sent down to the Coast League from big league clubs. It will affect only players who come here in the future, so Walter Mails, star southpaw of the Oaks, is not subject to draft. If Mails was subject to draft the Oakland owners would have considered offers for him rather than take a chance of losing him through the draft next fall. Now that things are breaking for him Ewing will give more time to the Oakland baseball club. At least he has promised to do that.

Williams Thinks McCarthy Is Right Kind of Loser.

Harry Williams came to the bay district yesterday for the purpose of meeting with William McCarthy and making arrangements to have the league records shipped to Los Angeles, where the Coast League headquarters will be for some time to come. Williams said that McCarthy treated him fine and is taking his defeat like a regular sport. The books are now being audited and as soon as that job is completed McCarthy will turn everything over.

Williams said that he learned one thing by going to the Chicago meeting, and that was that Cal Ewing is about as strong a power as there is in baseball. "A fellow would have to attend the meeting of the majors and minors to learn what a big fellow Ewing is in the eyes of the eastern baseball men." said Williams.

Williams said that it will be a tough job getting the records all straightened out and have everything running smoothly before the opening of the 1924 season. The new prexy asks that all the club owners forget what happened in the past and start working for the 1924 race.

The chances are that only a few of the umpires who were in the league last season will be retained. Williams has a list of applications that includes at least seventy-five names.

Williams will be back in Oakland again during the second week of January, when the Coast League officials will hold a meeting here. Harry came home from Chicago before they settled the draft question, as he was suffering with a bad cold. He says he should have stayed in bed yesterday, but could not do so as he wanted to see McCarthy about the records.

HOOP GAME TONIGHT.

VALLEJO, Dec. 19.—The Y. M. I. and Redmen basketball teams will meet at the K. C. court tonight.

Williams Is Prepared to Bring Peace

By Harry Williams

President Pacific Coast League.

TIME alone will heal the wounds and harmony will ultimately prevail in the ranks of the Pacific Coast League owners. The magnates will soon see the futility of quarreling amongst themselves and will adopt a safe and sane attitude that will further the interests of the game.

As president I will work in the interests of the league as a whole. There is no "Big Five" or "Little Three" as far as my office is concerned. I was elected as president of the league and there are eight clubs in the organization whose interests have to be safeguarded and who all have equal rights.

The territorial rights in Los Angeles is a question o fthe owners of the Vernon and Los Angeles clubs to settle and the same applies to the problems of the San Francisco and Oakland clubs.

Baseball is due for the biggest season in the history of the sport. The political questions having been settled the owners can now turn their attention to the practical side of the game and prepare for the opening of the season.

Former President William H. McCarthy has acted the part of a good loser and will turn over all the records and monies of the league to me this afternoon.

Barney Burch, owner of the club, denied last night that Cullop had been sold. This was made because he did not know the agreement had been completed, Reese said.

Bear-Colorado Ring Tourney Improbable

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Dec. 19.—At a meeting called of the local squad by Coach Kilton, the matter of a dual wrestling and boxing tournament, between the University of California and Colorado was taken up. No decision was given, but it is improbable that the local matmen and boxers will accept the challenge issued by the Bruins. If accepted, the tournament will be held between January 1 and 15.

When Presidents Met in Oakland

Here are a couple of big guns in minor league baseball. The familiar figure on the left is J. CAL EWING, president of the Oakland Baseball Association, who returned home yesterday from the meeting at Chicago, where his arguments won a sweeping victory for the "Big Five." On the right is HARRY A. WILLIAMS, newly elected president of the Coast League, who visited Oakland yesterday and had a chat with Cal Ewing about the draft rule.

French Admit Chances Poor To Win Games

Prestige Put Higher Than Victory in Olympics in Near Future.

PARIS, Dec. 19. — The French Olympic committee, directors of sporting federations, clubs and close followers of athletics in France in general, are bending every effort toward making a creditable showing at the 1924 Olympic games but are under no misapprehension as to the prospects of French athletes winning the games. While not unduly pessimistic they readily admit that France will not finish first, but find solace in the thought that the Olympic games are the greatest manifestation of international sports in existance and that the vanquished do not necessarily emerge from them with a loss of prestige.

"While we would much rather win the Olympic games than finish among the also rans," said Frantz Reichel, general secretary of the French committee, "we feel that great benefit will be derived for athletics in France by the mere presence and participation in all branches of sport of the 4000 or 5000 athletes—the best in their lines of endeavor in 52 countries. There is one thing, however, that we may win and that is the acknowledgment of all interested that the 1924 Olympic games were the best organized since their revival. This we will try to do."

In the winter sports which are to be held at Chamonix from January 20 to February 5, the opinion was general that France would only place behind the Canadians, Scandinavians and Americans, in hockey, skiing, bobsleigh, and curling. They are outclassed in speed skating and only hold out the hope of getting points in the figure skating where Mademoiselle Yvonne Bourgeois, who incidentally is one of France's upper ten rackets in women tennis, has more than an even chance of winning.

French rugby experts were sanguine that the team representing France in this event had a good chance of winning, especially if Great Britain maintains her present decision of not being represented.

In association football every one admitted that France stood no show. England stands alone in this sport and the French team has been regularly defeated by the Belgians and Czechs, while the teams representing Italy, the Scandinavian countries and Spain have won more matches from France than they have lost to them in the international clashes of the past few years.

"With the advent of polo in June, teams from the United States, England and even South Americans are regarded here as likely finalists as France has no combination which can place any of the foregoing in danger.

In track and field events, the finning o' which was conceded by all to be the real aim of all countries entering the Olympic games, France is not expected to total up many points.

BASKETBALL

BASKETBALL RESULTS.

At Iowa City—University of Iowa 25, Cornell 15.

At Indianola—Simpson College 36, Central College (Pella, Ia.) 28.

CLAREMONT, Dec. 19.—The Pomona College alumni basketball team defeated the 'varsity five by a score of 28 to 18, in a game played here last night. Varsity coach Peter Carl Schott was forced to use all of his material, and at the end of the game announced that he would not pick his first string men until after the next titlt, which will be with La Verne College, January 9.

The Xaverian Club basketball team advanced themselves another step higher on the ladder of local fame, when they defeated the West Berkeley Athletic Club last night at the Burbank gym, by the score of 27 to 16.

The Xaverians had things their own way throughout the contest, and had little trouble with the club men. The Winged "X" hoopsters look to be one of the fastest combinations in the Eastbay region.

The Wheeler Speeds chalked up another victory when they defeated the Loyal Sons of Berkeley by a score of 80 to 10. This makes the fourth straight win for the Wheelers.

The Speeds will tangle with the Pittsburg Athletic Club at the Edison School gym tonight. The Wheelers won a 30 to 24 victory over the Pittsburg Club in their first start of the season.

Washington Invited To Play in Orient

SEATTLE, Dec. 19.—Meiji University of Tokyo invited the University of Washington baseball team to go to Japan in 1924, in a letter received here from T. Nakashima, graduate manager of the Tokio University.

Eastbay Body Has Solution For Students

Directors Will Enforce All Rules That Govern the League To Limit.

The final solution for the eligibility of high school basketball players was brought out at meeting by the Eastbay Basketball league yesterday noon.

It was decided by the directors of the league that all high school students who desire to participate in the local league, must first receive written permission from their parents, and in turn receive permission from their respective physical directors.

This ruling will be strictly observed. If any student fails to meet the requirement the team for which he plays will be barred from the league, and forfeit all preceding games.

At a meeting of the physical directors the movement of forming a separate division for high school players in the Eastbay league was considered but the directors failed to advise the plan.

Another of the preplexing problems that came up before the directors yesterday was the subject of weighing in the players on weight teams. It was brought to light that players would train down below their natural weight before being weighed, thus being able to pass the restrictions set down by the board. But to do away with players just making the weight and then becoming heavier, the directors have ruled that the weight of any team can be taken at any time, and if any member of the team is found over weight, the team will be disqualified and ruled out of the league thus forfeiting all games played.

Managers of weight teams should discourage all movements on the part of the players to train down, unless the individual can retain the low weight throughout the season.

All managers of weight teams will be requested to be on hand with their teams when they weigh in December 28 and 29 at the Oakland Y. M. C. A.

Entries will not close until December 27 and on that day there will be a meeting of all of the managers at the Oakland Y. M. C. A. to discuss further details that may arise when the play begins. The question of medals and prizes will be taken up at that meeting and all managers are urged to attend.

Montana Man Makes Hole-in-One Club

BILLINGS, Mont., Dec. 19. — H. O. Nalsbury of Butte on the local country club links yesterday clubbed his way into the national hole-in-one club when his 205-yard drive on a par three, blind hole, went true. The feat has been accomplished once before on the course.

Majors Will Draw Shorter 1924 Schedule

World's Series Will Start at Least One Week Earlier Next Year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19. — Major league schedule makers have agreed upon an arrangement which will bring the 1924 season to a close on September 29 or 30, earlier than ever before for a campaign of 154 games, it was revealed today by John Heydler, president of the National League.

Heydler said Ban Johnson, president of the American League, was in harmony with the plan. Details will be worked out by the two executives at a conference here early next year.

The fact that 1924 is a presidential year, with the campaigns assuming paramount importance early in the fall, and that an earlier closing will enable finishing the season under daylight saving time, figured in the decision for an earlier closing will enable finishing the season under daylight saving time, figured in the decision for an earlier closing, Heydler explained. He said that in Philadelphia and Boston, where Sunday games are not permitted, a few double-headers will be necessary to complete the schedule. The opening date for both leagues has been fixed for April 15.

Another result of this plan will be to advance by at least a week's time the start of the world's series. This year the playing seasons closed October 7 and the series began October 10.

Mascart Gets Nod Over Henri Hebrans

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(By The Associated Press.)—Edouard Mascart, the French featherweight fighter, last night defeated Henri Hebrans, of Belgium on points in a 15-round bout.

According to a recent ruling of the International Boxing Federation, Mascart was to be given the French and European featherweight championships held by Eugene Criqui in case he defeated Hebrans. The announcement was made after the federation had given consideration to a letter from Criqui's manager saying Criqui would be unable to meet Mascart and defend his title owing to injuries sustained some time ago in a bout with Hebrans.

In explaining its decision the athletic committee issued the following statement:

"Nebraska opened negotiations after the Pacific conference schedule had been framed which called for two long trips and which necessitated the team being away for more than a week.

"Nebraska is to be invited to play in 1925 and 1926 when the U. S. C. schedule will be so framed that in the year they go to Nebraska they will not take long trips to the northwest on the coast."

Bakersfield Prepares for Lick Contest

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 19.—According to recent newspaper reports received here, the Lick-Wilmerding football eleven of San Francisco has gone stale—but the Bakersfield Drillers apparently don't believe it. They are practicing hard every day.

Arthur Harris, local second string fullback, who surprised his schoolmates Saturday in the game with Long Beach by throwing his 154 pounds against the heavy Jackrabbit line with the utmost abandon, forcing the line to give way at nearly every charge and making consistent gains throughout the game, as well as scoring the first touchdown, has permanently replaced Fullback Walter Burke, who, in turn, takes the place of Captain Parra at quarter.

The Drillers do not underrate Lick-Wilmerding, which has played wonderful football this season, and while they expect to be somewhat handicapped by the grass on Ewing Field, yet they declare they are out to win and are eager for the contest.

Hayward Pigeon Club May Join Union

HAYWARD, Dec. 19.—Nomination of officers for the ensuing year and tentative arrangements for an active racing season comprised the major portion of a meeting of the newly organized Hayward Homing Pigeon club, held last night.

Purchase of shipping baskets, in which to convey pigeons from this city to the starting point for a race, was provided for.

Election of new officers, replacing those chosen temporarily, will take place in early January.

Winners Will Get Trophies Thursday Eve

R. P. Jackson, First City Champion, Gets Medal and Title Shield.

By W. D. McNICOLL.

On the roof of The TRIBUNE building tomorrow evening, at 8:30 p. m., a gathering of golfing champions will assemble to receive their trophies won in the first annual city championship held over the new municipal links at Lake Chabot.

B. J. Buffham's brilliant feat of medaling the new course in 80 gave him low gross prize, two strokes better than Dr. C. H. Walter, the Sequoyah and ex-State amateur champion's medal score. Buffham's subsequent form in match play seemed to assure him a good chance to meet the Sequoyah veteran in the final, but H. F. Hoffman, who took 90 strokes to qualify, and R. P. Jackson, who was ballotted in with 91, survived to fight it out for the city championship.

T. Tarrant taking Buffham to the 19th, and C. L. Butler's defeat of Dr. J. H. Stineman at the 19th, were the surprise features of the first round. In the second round the favorites all survived, but in the semi-finals Hoffman's defeat of Buffham and Jackson's win over Dr. Walter were surprise results. The final between Jackson and Hoffman will be recalled by the collapse of Hoffman's game over the concluding holes, after playing so brilliantly in the earlier period of the game. Jackson was not shaping well at the start, but steadied as the game progressed, and when his opponent slipped he stepped right in and secured a commanding lead that gave him the first city championship. Jackson was a popular winner, achieving an honor he is well fitted to uphold.

Here is a list of The TRIBUNE tournament prize winners and the trophies they will receive tomorrow evening:

Championship shield and gold medal—Winner, R. P. Jackson.

Cup to medalist—Winner, H. F. Buffham.

Cup to winner of losing eight of championship flight—Winner, Ed Wilson.

Cup to second flight winner—Winner, A. G. Pellaton.

Cup to third flight winner—Winner, Frank E. Snell.

Cup to fourth flight winner—Winner Charles Sheppard.

Cup to fifth flight winner—Winner E. H. Wagener.

Cup to sixth flight winner—Winner, L. Quinn.

EDDIE KELLY IS TO BOX TEDDY SILVA HERE TONIGHT

WILLIE HOPPE PILES UP BIG LEAD OVER WELKER COCHRAN FOR BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP

BANTAMWEIGHT CLASS IS WELL REPRESENTED ON TONIGHT'S PROGRAM

Jimmy Duffy and Sid Marks Meet in Special Event; Bud Hamilton Makes Debut Against Joe Leopold; Willie Hope Meets Burns in the Curtain-Raiser.

By BOB SHAND.

Three months ago a skinny little guy named Eddie Kelly boxed Johnny Lawson, a curtain-raiser, at the Auditorium, and Eddie admitted he was mighty glad to get a chance to box before the big crowd that attended the show, even though it was just a curtain-raiser. Tonight the same Eddie Kelly meets Teddy Silva in the main event while Jimmy Duffy, the best welterweight on the coast, retires to the special event. Kelly's meteoric ring career has no parallel in local sport annals, in fact, his rise is considered record anywhere. Johnny Lawson, whom Kelly boxed in that first fight here, is still fighting preliminaries. The fact that Eddie is substituting for another boy tonight does not detract from his record as he was entitled to a main event on the strength of his two victories over Teddy Seidman and his bouts with Dynamite Murphy and other aspiring four-round champions.

Kelly's opportunity to appear in a main event came when Stewart McLean suffered a cut eye while training for the Silva fight and had to call it off. Dolph Thomas, manager of Kelly, was asked if Eddie would take a chance with Silva, a boy with much longer experience. "Kelly will fight anybody near his weight in a main event or preliminary." That was Thomas' reply so little Eddie blossomed forth as a real main eventer at the biggest boxing club in the west.

Kelly Is Irish and Uses His Own Name.

Kelly, incidentally, comes by his name naturally. There are a lot of Duffys and O'Briens and McGintys in the ring today who borrowed their names but Eddie Kelly was born Eddie Kelly and he is as Irish as they make them. If he gets over tonight the McLeans and Farrs and Hamiltons will be sticking around waiting to challenge him. It is the opportunity of a life time for the little Harp and although Silva's record is much more impressive they said the same thing about Seidman, Murphy and the others Kelly boxed.

Silva made good in his fight with Johhny Farr by out-boxing the De Lauer entry but still Manager Jockey Levy declares Teddy has never shown his real form in an Oakland ring. He is a bit scared of the big crowds or is too anxious to make good before his old pals from Twenty-Third avenue or something. The little manager can't account for it but he insists that Teddy will wake up one of these fine nights and give the Auditorium customers a boxing treat worth while.

Bud Hamilton Comes With a Good Record.

Another boy on tonight's card who will be carefully watched is Bud Hamilton. The kid looks like a sure-enough fighter and his victories over Kewpie Callender and Young Farrell were impressive. He beat Farrell twice via the decision route and rocked Callender to sleep in six rounds. Before leaving his Rocky Mountain home Hamilton gave Midget Smith a pasting in ten rounds. Of course everybody out here was licking Smith but Hamilton is said to have done quite an artistic job of it. Hamilton meets Joe Leopold tonight. Joe has not been boxing much of late but Bob McAllister, who is now handling Leopold's ring business, says Joe is fit and ready.

A majority of the customers think Sid Marks is just another of these marks for Jimmy Duffy but you can't always tell. Marks has beaten some mighty good boys and showed a punch the night he flattened Bobby Barrett in one round after Barrett had stopped the same Duffy.

Jack Silver Meets Joe McCabe in Preliminary.

Jack Silver, the smart San Francisco lightweight, tackles Joe McCabe and Racehorse Roberts and Sunny Jim will do their stuff again.

Eddie Phillip, who has won five in a row, hooks up with Young Sam Langford, while Willie Hope boxes Bobby Burns. Hope should have a better place on the card on the strength of his showing against Campia but there are so many good bouts on this week's bill that Willie had to be content with the opening number.

Wild Man Gould Says He Lost His Head.

Tom Gannon, manager of "Wild Man" Gould, now admits that his boy used the molar punch but says he is mighty sorry. Gould feels the same way about it and is anxious to be forgiven. Gannon says he did not know that Gould had used his teeth on O'Hara until three days after the fight when Gould admitted the accusation following a story in the TRIBUNE to the effect that Promoter Simpson had barred the Bostonese. His scrap book shows that Gould has had forty-three contests and never resorted to unfair tactics before. He says he simply lost his head in the O'Hara fight and did not realize what he was doing.

Jimmy Barrett Was a Victim Of His Swings

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 19.—Charley White of Chicago won from Bobby Barrett, Clifton Heights, Pa., in the sixth round of their scheduled ten-round bout last night by a technical knockout. In the sixth, Barrett swung so hard that he strained his spine, resulting in temporary paralysis of his left side and forcing him to leave the ring. Up to that point the fight was fast and furious, with Barrett doing most of the leading.

In the ten-round semi-final Johnny Rose, Canadian bantamweight won the judges' decision over Martin Judge, Philadelphia.

Fight Judges Are in Wrong In New York

Decision in Bernstein-Dundee Bout Said to Be "Terrible."

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Sport critics are today writing the epitaphs of legalized boxing in New York state as a result of the solemn decision of a referee and two judges that Johnny Dundee had beaten Jack Bernstein for the junior lightweight championship on Monday night. The decision is referred to as the worst of many bad ones rendered since the Walker law came into effect some four years ago.

It is said that one of the first remedial steps to be taken by the state athletic commission will be a demand upon Tex Rickard to drive the gamblers out of Madison Square Garden once and for all time. Gamblers were said to have been active in the garden Monday night.

Observers claim that the old Garden restaurant and bar, just off the main entrance, was thronged with these ghouls of the profession just before the main bout went on and that business was brisk. The rendezvous in question has ever been a happy hunting ground for the gambling element.

DUNDEE FAVORITE.

The effect was to send the odds of 8 to 5 on Bernstein tumbling to even money and at one stage of the proceedings to 6 to 5 on Dundee. The circumstance was suspicious to say the least.

It is understood that Rickard has pledged himself to drive the gamblers out of the garden, as he did on the occasion of the Britton-Walker bout for the middleweight title, an affair that saw the odds fluctuate so sharply that the commission declared all bets off.

"Such decisions give the game a black eye," Rickard is quoted as saying, "and any time the game gets a black eye, I get one, too."

When asked if he would match Dundee and Bernstein again, Rickard gave vent to an emphatic "Never! There might have been a riot on Monday."

At that, the dint of collusion is predicated by the fact that some competent and unbiased observers have declared that they saw nothing wrong with the decision.

WILL TAKE A POLL.

Meantime, it is understood that the commission is disposed to take a poll of educated opinion on the controversy. It is said to be asking for suggestions on the rendering of decisions in the future and one of them coming from many sources, demands the abolition of judges and the substitution of the referee as the sole arbiter as in the days of the Frawley law.

The judges on Monday night were E. G. Becker and Harlem Tommy Murphy, great lightweight of another era. They voted for Dundee. Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, cast the sole vote for Bernstein.

Washington Five Down to Hard Work

SEATTLE, Dec. 19.—The University of Washington basketball team will go through a hard grind this week in preparation for its 1923-24 playing season. Four practice games have been scheduled for the Huskies with a good deal of time to be spent on signals and basket shooting every afternoon.

Listed in the lineup are Captain Frayne and Bob Hesketh, forwards; George Clark, center, and Bob Gardner and Ralph Gundlach, guards. Clark, who was taken from last year's freshmen team, is tall enough to make competition interesting at the jump, with most conference centers, according to his team-mates.

The Pacific Motors defeated the West Berkeley Athletic Club in a close 4 to 3 game. The contest was called in the seventh, due to the time limit on the grounds.

Golf Honors For 1923 Are Well Scattered

Showings Made By Jones and Dr. Willing Were Features of Season.

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Golf always has been a sport inclined to scatter its honors and keep its glory moving and 1923 was no exception to what has become a general rule that champions can't repeat.

Only two of all the major title holders of 1922 were able to retain their places at the top through the heated campaigns for 1923.

Gene Sarazen was able to retain his crown as the professional champion of the United States and Chick Evans did his annual stunt of winning the western championship.

Sarazen's victory in the professional tournament came late in the season and it prevented him from having a most unprofitable year, as he failed to qualify in the British open championship, lost his title as the American open champion and fell far below his 1922 standard of play in the other important tournaments.

Walter Hagen, who shares with Sarazan the credit of being the greatest match player in America, also had an off-season. He failed to win a single championship of importance and he lost the British open title which he won in 1922.

Professional golfers are inclined to take the loss of titles more seriously than the amateur player as purses and fees for professionals depend naturally upon the list of titles that they can tack on to their signature.

Perhaps the feat that was most popularly received by the public was pulled by Bobby Jones, the Atlanta youth, who came through spectacularly and won the American open championship in a play-off with Bobby Cruickshank, the clever little Scot pro.

It was pleasing to Bobby's friends, not only because he had striven so long and so earnestly for the championship, but for the reason that it was won under circumstances that gave proof of Bobby's capabilities as a good, game golfer.

Jones had thousands of friends pulling for him to do that seldom-done stunt of winning both the open and amateur championships, but he fell short of their hopes.

Max Marston, Philadelphia, considered as nothing but an outsider, slipped through while all eyes were on Jones, Sweetser, Guilford and the other favorites and he won the championship.

STIRLING COME-BACK.

One of the features of women's plays during the championship season was the spirited comeback staged by Miss Alexa Stirling, several times national champion.

While the former Atlanta girl succeeded in winning the coveted Canadian championship, she was not good enough for the American title and Miss Edith Cummings, the Chicago girl, surprised everyone by coming through the tournament and winning the championship.

When Miss Cummings won the championship another unusual record was made, in that for the first time two major championships went to the same family. Dexter Cummings of Yale, her brother, won the intercollegiate championship early in the season.

As was the case in the United States, the British championships changed hands.

Roger Wethered won the amateur championship and Arthur Havers took the open title.

Both victories were more than pleasing in England, as they were won against the most formidable American competition and just before the two tournaments the British sportsmen felt themselves in danger of being humiliated by having both British titles won by Americans.

Hagen failed by one stroke to win the British open and Francis Ouimet did the best for the American team in the amateur tournament when he got as far as the semifinal round.

Hagen's hard luck in missing a repetition of victory in the British open by such a narrow margin was duplicated by Jess Sweetser, the former American amateur champion, who lost the title to Marston on a stymie.

Miss Doris Chambers, a home product, won the British woman's golf championship, displacing Miss Joyce Wethered.

DR. WILLING SURPRISES.

It was a testimonial to the increasing class of the game in the United States that two of the major titles had to be decided on extra hole matches. Marston had to play two extra holes to beat Sweetser in the amateur and Jones and Cruickshank had to go a special eighteen holes after they had finished in a tie in the American open.

While defeats of the American stars in the three big British championships did not make the average very good for international competition, the victory of the American team in the Walker Cup matches against the British made up a little for it.

The American team played most brilliantly and the victory was largely the result of the unexpected form shown by Dr. O. F. Willing, the Portland dentist.

Taken as a whole the 1923 golf season in the United States was a huge success. Interest in the game was not confined to competitors as was shown by the large galleries that looked at the championship matches.

Golf has taken a great hold on the United States. The game is becoming more popular generally and the form of American players is becoming better steadily.

Siki, Seeking Freedom, Lands In Hoose-Gow

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Battling Siki halted last night while in the midst of one of his frolics, was under lock and key today in his manager's apartment, a prisoner until he promised to be good again.

The Senegalese, given $600 by his manager yesterday, promised to behave and went downtown to purchase Christmas presents.

Several hours later he was on a Hudson river ferry, Weehawken bound, singing songs of unfettered joy and doling out dollar bills to every man who smiled on him and shook his hand. His philanthropy won him many admirers and when the ferry arrived at Weehawken he had gathered quite a crowd.

Weehawken police recognized Siki by the money and took him to the station. The police pugilistic champions entertained with a sparring match and Siki was kept in a good humor until his manager arrived. Siki, shame-faced, handed the remainder of the $600 to his manager, and followed him to the ferry slip.

On the same card Midget Smith of New York beat Joey Schwartz of Minneapolis in a 10-round bout. They are bantamweights.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Jack Britton, former welterweight boxing champion of the world, decisively outpointed Phil Kaplan of New York in a 10-round bout last night. The victor weighed 150 and the loser 148¾.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Pat McCarthy of Roxbury here last night when the latter's seconds threw in the towel after the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Wilson weighed 160 pounds and McCarthy 165.

Huskies Learn New Ones for Navy Team

SEATTLE, Dec. 19.—When the United States Naval academy bucks up against the University of Washington football team at Pasadena New Year's day it will meet a series of plays new, as compared to those used by the Huskies during conference games this year, according to information published here. Coach Bagshaw worked his men for more than two hours yesterday on one formation he has evolved and plans several more hours on the same play before the team departs for the South, it was said.

The new series combines four plays in one and was successful in practice last night.

Drill on offensive work, kicking and passing practice and a long session on new plays was the order for today's workout.

Willie Hoppe Leads Cochran In Cue Play

Pacific Coast Expert Facing Final Block of 18.2 Match Tonight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19. — Welker Cochran, young Pacific coast expert, faces the almost impossible handicap of playing Willie Hoppe, two to one, if he takes the 18-2 balk line billiard championship here tonight in the third 500-point block of their 1500-point play-off of their recent tournament tie. Leading 500 to 203 after the first night's play, Hoppe swept far into the lead last night when he gathered another 500 billiards against Cochran's 233, giving him a lead of 1000 to 436. To win tonight Cochran must make 1064 points while Hoppe's task is to obtain the conventional 500.

COCHRAN FAILED.

Cochran was afforded numerous opportunities last night to keep abreast of Hoppe, but failed, lack of mastery of the masse being responsible in at least two instances. The Hollywood youngster appeared to be in excellent form when he took his first turn at the table and ran off 50, playing deliberately, but after that he fell down badly as much through poor effort as through finding difficult plays left for him by the veteran champion.

Hoppe at the outset could not get going, and in nine attempts bettered his count by only 23 points, as against a previous night's average of 100. In the final stage of the game, however, he gave a tremendous display of difficult shot-making. The game, with Cochran's feeble efforts, became virtually an exhibition of the classic billiard playing which for so many years has kept Hoppe at the top of the heap.

In successive innings Hoppe clicked off 52, 162, 3, 207, and an unfinished 53.

IN GOOD POSITION.

Hoppe left the ball in good position at the root of the table for resumption of play at 8 o'clock tonight.

For the two nights Hoppe has an average of 55 1-18 and Cochran 24 4-18. Hoppe's high run is 211, which he made the first night. Cochran has been unable to better the 89 he registered in the fifth inning of Monday night's block.

Under the rules, the loser of the present match will be regarded as having finished second in the recent New York international tournament and will have the privilege of challenging the winner, or will be recognized as the champion, within sixty days.

Marty Krug Will Manage From Bench

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19. — Marty Krug will manage the Angels from the sidelines next year, instead of from a playing position, according to an announcement made today by President Patrick of the Los Angeles baseball club. tI is not known who will take Krug's place on the diamond, but negotiations are being made with several big league clubs.

Duke Slater to Lead Cougar Football Men

PULLMAN, Dec. 19. — At a meeting of the football team, Howard "Duke" Slater was elected captain of the 1924 Washington State eleven. Slater starred at fullback this season, and replaced Burks, who was declared ineligible, under the three-year rule.

AN ANNIVERSARY.

One hundred years ago an old soldier, living retired on the Isle of Man, awakened the world to the necessity of preventing the heavy loss of life among those who sailed the seas.

This man, Sir William Hillary, carried on his crusade until the lifeboat was placed on all the sailing craft. In a way he was the father of the life-saving stations and the program to which he gave impetus has saved thousands of lives.

But before William Hillary there were lifeboats. The trouble was, the world did not take them seriously. For instance, Lionel Lukin, a coach builder of London, fashioned a "non-immersible" craft thirty years before Hillary won attention. The Lukin boat stayed on the top of the waves but it did not always stay right side up. No one paid him any attention and he died disappointed and neglected. The idea did not die. William Wouldhave looked at a wooden dish floating in a pan of water and saw that it would right itself whenever turned over. He made a boat which, in principle is the same as those used today. It would have saved lives but there was no one ready to give it a chance. Then came Henry Greathead with improvements and the lifeboat was perfected and ready to use. All it needed was someone to impress the world with the need.

That service was performed by Sir William Hillary. A great ship "The Adventure" sank off the coast of England with 500 persons on board while thousands of spectators stood helpless on the shore but 300 yards away. Sir William seized upon this disaster to drive his lesson home. He talked lifeboats day and night and he won his point.

Now there are lifeboats equipped with engines and which have a radius of two hundred miles. The National Lifeboat Institution was founded as a result of the Hillary crusade and now every maritime nation has life-saving services. And yet, it was only a hundred years ago when an old soldier was stirring up the fuss which has resulted in so much good.

TRADE FOLLOWS THE BOND.

The latest authority to bespeak an increased attention to Latin-American trade to offset the uncertain market of Europe is Frank V. Vanderlip. Using the occasion of the hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine, Mr. Vanderlip called attention to the steps this Government has taken from time to time to hold inviolate the territorial integrity of Central American states, even to the extent of a show of force, and added that "we have paid little attention to peaceful penetration on the part of European nations who have invested heavily in the Southern Republics.

The only attention which may be paid to this "peaceful penetration" is a commercial attention which has the aim of opening trade for this country to equal or better that of the others. We are in the favored position and have the backing of tradition and good feeling. The only handicaps are those we have made by an indifference which comes with prosperity. Scrupulous care to observe the niceties, study the market and ascertain the nature of the problems in all of their details, is needed.

"I believe," says Mr. Vanderlip, "that the business men of this country will find relief from an uncertain market in Europe if they will turn their attention to Latin-America using the same type of common sense in their relations with the Southern Republics that they have so successfully applied in building up their own enterprises. Central and South America have enormous areas entirely undeveloped, yet rich beyond computation in natural resources, which call for capital and which will assuredly yield large rewards.

When Argentina floated a loan of forty million pounds in London, British capital stipulated that 90 per cent of the amount should be in credits for British railroad equipment to be shipped to Argentina in British vessels. That is business which, ordinarily should have come to America but which went elsewhere because of the British realization of the opportunities in South America. As Mr. Vanderlip puts it: "The old saying that trade follows the flag is no longer true. Business follows the bond is the more correct statement." American investment in Cuba in 19 years increased the foreign trade of that Republic from 36 millions annually to 144 millions. This is an indication of what is to be expected if this country becomes interested intelligently in the possibilities of the other latin-American countries.

THE PEACE AWARD.

The "referendum" on the Bok Peace Plan will start in January in a hundred or more cities of the country. Already mayors of 110 communities have announced their willingness to put before the people whatever plans is selected by the Jury of Award as the best.

In most of these places the plan will be printed on a ballot with sufficient space for the voters to express their opinions upon its practicability. Chicago, St. Paul, Cincinnati, Topeka and Kansas City are some of the larger of the cities which will co-operate with the American Peace Award. In California, so far, Orange is the only community to announce its intention to participate.

In other ways, however, almost every city in the country will have a chance to review the plan and express an opinion. The ballots will be distributed to members of various organizations including the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world, United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers' Associations, Federations of Women's Clubs, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, National Council of Women and a score more bodies of equal prominence. Every minister will have at least one copy of the plan and a multiple ballot in his hands.

The American Peace Award announced that it realizes some duplications may result in this system but that all of these will have been removed before the final result is announced.

PRESIDENT AND KING.

When revolution broke out in Mexico, a republic, President Obregon took the field at the head of an army and routed the enemy. Nowhere, save in Central America, have the executive heads of republics been soldiers. One looks to history and the old world, the days of warring kings for the precedent.

In the same day's news the troubles of Greece are disclosed. Government over there is to be turned over. The assembly is discussing what sort of a regime will be best suited and the king is told to move across the border. Until the affair is settled, it is given out, until the Assembly decides whether or not a king and queen are essential ornaments to the state, it will be advisable for them to sojourn in Rumania. So George and Elizabeth, like king and queen on a chess board, are moved a few spaces to one side.

In the old sense a man has more chances to be kingly as President of Mexico than he does as monarch of Greece.

DUCKS AND A GOOSE.

All day Sunday the automobiles stopped at the lake shore while the thousands watched the wild ducks which have done so much to advertise Oakland. The people came and went and the ducks, in their numbers and deportment, put on a good show. They seemed to know there was no intent upon the part of any of these men, women and children to do them harm.

Are the ducks an old story to Oaklanders? The answer is the fact that thousands line the shores to watch them. On this Sunday there was one man who drove his car as close to the water as he could, opened his muffler and gave a successful imitation of a shotgun. The ducks leaped out of their domesticity and became wild. The air was filled with them, quacking in fear. Then they circled above the lake and flew off. It was a long time before they came back.

Some thousands of persons breathed maledictions at the stupid man with the open muffler, a man who drove off laughing as if he had perpetrated a rich joke.

EVERYBODY WANTS ONE.

Fresno now wants a branch of the University of California. The action of the regents in elevating the southern branch at Los Angeles to the dignity of a full-fledged four-year course in letters and science, placing the southern school on an equality with the mother institution at Berkeley, except for the post-graduate work and other departments that make it a university has stirred the Fresno ambition. Evidently the Raisin City recognizes and appreciates a good thing, for it immediately puts in an oar, arguing thus, according to the Republican:

"But what of the central part of the state? If geographical considerations have called for the convenience of that portion of California south of the Tehachapi, what of that portion north of the Tehachapi and yet two hundred miles away from Berkeley?

"In that part of university teaching in which quantity has become a principal factor, should not the 'quantity' of the state that is located in the San Joaquin valley be given reasonable consideration?"

Well, 200 miles does not seem so far to Southern Californians, after going 500 miles to the northern schools, and if distance were the only consideration we are not certain that the Fresno application would get far. But in addition to distance, there has been another consideration of even greater weight, and that is the very large attendance at Berkeley, admittedly more students than can get the best results at one institution. When both the northern and the southern schools become so crowded, it may be time to look for a site for a third state school. But Fresno is one of those fortunate cities in California, where a so-called Teachers' College is located, more than one-half of the students at which are junior college students from Fresno, enjoying that advantage at state expense, when other cities and districts must finance their own junior college. It seems to us they are lucky, as it is.—San Bernardino Sun.

Pat. Appld. For.

We have an idea of great commercial value and we don't know what to do with it. Probably we shall share the rate of other inventors and starve to death while the Money Monarchs of Wall Street buy yachts and Midnight Revels and continued violations of the Volstead Act with the proceeds of our great thought.

The idea burst upon us like a flash the other evening. A box of assorted chocolates that had strayed into the house was the cause of it.

When it comes to chocolates, we are particularly partial to creams, while—as in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Spratt of yore—Dorcas (as we shall call her for the flavor it imparts) is given to eating almost any other kind. Naturally we are confronted with the age-long problem of finding out which chocolates contain which fillings.

There are two usual methods of settling this problem. One is to bite right into the inviting-looking candy, eat it if it is acceptable, or reject it quietly into an ash tray, if not. This, however, entails scrapping an appalling percentage of the candies in a box.

The other and more generally approved method is to press gently on the bottom of the chocolate in question, assuming that the surface will give way if the filling is cream. If the tested candy is unsatisfactory, it is then replaced in the box in such a way that the surface imperfections will cause a minimum of speculation in the mind of the next user.

It will be agreed that both of these systems are makeshifts at best. In these days of wireless telegraphy and aviation and gin—while-you-wait and all the other things modern science has developed it is time for some up-to-date way of determining the filling of a chocolate.

At first it seemed as though the answer lay in standardizing the shapes to conform with the various fillings. As a flat disc is now recognized by all as containing peppermint cream, so also, we thought for a moment, might a cone indicate maple walnut; a cube, fig paste; a parallelepipedon, vanilla caramel, and so on.

But enough different shapes could never be devised, so that idea was abandoned. But we were hot on the trail and we kept after it.

Suddenly we had it. The little individual paper baskets the chocolates were housed in! These were the answer. . . . Now, for the first time in any column, we divulge our idea to an eager world of chocolate manufacturers.

Produce the individual chocolate cups in an almost unlimited variety of colors, each color to indicate a certain filling. Then in the top of each box place an index to fillings. Thus:

Crimson—Walnut and bits of shell in vanilla cream.

Mauve—Sweet, gooey stuff, flavored with Djer Kiss.

Ochre—Perfectly amazing, gluelike substance.

Vermillion—Powdered sugar and water, red coloring matter.

Taupe — Non-alcoholic brandy, inclined to squirt.

Saffron—Sweet potato imbedded in molasses.

Blue with gold stripes—Petrified Brazil nut.

The rest is easy. Perhaps some ambitious young advertising fellow can make the phraseology more inviting. The idea is the main thing. It is for sale and all reasonable offers will be considered.

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

Buffalo Express: "Miss Megan Lloyd George, back in the land of tea drinking, announces that the conventional idea of the American—loud-voiced and always chewing gum—is ludicrous. Americans have not loud voices and I never saw anybody chewing gum. On the contrary, they are the politest nation on earth.' Miss Megan says that she did not discover what is the correct response to 'I am pleased to meet you.' She thinks the reply is an American secret which Americans will never divulge."

Medford Mail-Tribune: "Willie Green, aged 10, and baby brother, Jackie, age 4, were run over by a petrol wagon yesterday afternoon in the heart of the business district. The little shavers were riding a bicycle, Jackie on the handlebars, and were hurrying home from a health clinic for children, where it had been discovered the injured tots had not been getting enough albumen in their mush."

New York Herald: "The mosquito devouring minnows sent in 1921 from the United States to Spain have prospered and multiplied in Alphonso's kingdom. Their descendants are being shipped to other countries of the Old World where their voracious appetites for mosquito larvae will be most useful. This is an American invasion the most chauvinistic could not resent."

Pittsburgh Gazette-Times: A teacher who interrogated pupils in three New York high schools gives the moral code which the pupils have worked out for themselves. They hold that stealing physical property is wrong, cheating in examination and forging a parent's name are ideally wrong, but excusable under stress of circumstances; misrepresentation in business is normal, except as directed against one's partner or employer; cheating in school work, such as copying another's composition or problem and handing it in as original, does not stamp a boy or girl as dishonest and is occasionally indulged in by all but saints or eccentrics."

Brooklyn Eagle: "In shipping out to New Zealand a few hundred British servant girls the Government requires the pledge from each of them that she will not marry for twelve months. Women readers smile. 'Tis in the preliminaries of marriage, often a year in advance, that the greatest distraction from duty lies. Score one more blunders for mere man.

New York Tribune: "What pleased the radio hearers of President Coolidge's message, aside from its admirable content, was the Yankee twang which the air waves delivered without the slightest impairment; in fact, even seemed to accentuate. It was the real New England article, as authentic as Vermont maple sugar."

Seattle Times: "The Washington Legislature passed a law at its 1923 session forbidding any person to cut trees on the land of another. The promiscuous taking of Christmas trees was held to be a serious menace to our future forests. Violation of the law is punishable by a fine."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

Grapes that are being shipped at the present time are bringing a very good price. Grapes that were shipped at the beginning of the season brought a good price. Most of the other grapes brought red ink. Grapes can be chilled and stored in such a manner that they will be excellent eating the whole winter long. The grape raisers of the San Joaquin valley lost enough this year to build refrigerating plants by the dozens.—Tulare Advance.

The sweet potato growers are cleaning up their crop with continued good prices and almost a cash market. They have found that co-operative effort, properly directed, pays big dividends. The success of the sweet potato men and the good prices received by the dairymen again demonstrate the force of the argument for diversified farming, with a variety of crops.—Merced Star.

The fact that the superdreadnaught California, built at Mare Island, is considered one of the finest warships afloat is one of the many reasons why navy yard officials believe that the Navy Department will give this station an opportunity to bid on at least one of the new scout cruiser contracts. —Vallejo News.

A mountain lion, measuring about eight feet from tip to tip, and with footprint measuring six inches from heel to the base of the claw, is ranging that section of Pacific Grove in Del Monte forest, adjacent to the lighthouse. The animal is thought to be stalking a small herd of elk which make their winter quarters in that section of the forest. The herd is now accompanied by a fawn, and it is believed the lion is out after the youngster.—Monterey Herald.

King Alfonso has six children, a comfy and sensible queen, and is himself conceded to be a good sport. He is democratic and behaves like a regular fellow. That is why the average Spaniard leaves his king out of it when he embarks upon any revolutionary adventure. Were Spain a republic the people would still call for Alfonso.—Los Angeles Times.

Tax payments in Butte County indicate that property owners here "have the cash." County Treasurer Miss Mattie Lund finished the work of totaling figures of tax payments for the first period, which closed last Monday. The totals showed that $843,700.15 had been paid in.—Oroville Register.

The way President Coolidge cut and slashed the national budget he must have taken a few lessons from Governor Richardson of California. The president and the governor are both heading a mighty popular movement in attempting to give some modicum of relief to the tax payer.—Red Bluff News.

The escape of the Oroville orange groves from the recent frosts which hit the south so disastrously is another proof of the adaptability of the Butte county foothill region to the citrus industry.—Chico Enterprise.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

FAITHLESS.

Poor is the man who counts this life
By days of pleasure and of strife,
Who thinks this paltry gift below
Is all that he shall ever know,
And wails no poverty is worse
Than the poverty of purse.

He has no faith to lean upon,
No source of strength when hope is gone.
He feels the winds of winter blow,
He sees the cruel ice and snow,
And thinks men suffer grief and pain,
Love and are loved, and all in vain.

Yet he who cannot see the snow
And feel the winds of winter blow
With faith that spring and summer wait
With all their beauty at the gate,
Is poorer and more wretched than
The pale, decrepit beggar man.

He may be rich in purse, but when
He shares the common fate of men,
And one he loves is called away,
If all his joy was housed in clay
And he has seen no spirit there,
Then he is naked to despair.

No God to turn to with his prayer,
None for his absent ones to care,
No life beyond this stretch of years
No future hope to dry his tears,
Then, in his darkest hour of need,
The faithless man is poor indeed.

POSTAL BUILDING AN EARNER OF REVENUES.

To Editor of The Tribune:

I note that Congress has been asked to appropriate $2,000,000 for a new post office building for this city.

I was once a postal clerk and therefore know something of the inner workings of the organization. I feel sure that most postal buildings are designed with apparently the least possible thought to handling the mail or for revenue.

Mail should be handled in, nearly as possible, a straight line from the trucks or cars to the cases and by gravity and conveyors. The unsorted mail should be conveyed to the third floor and move from there down to the ground floor as the process of sorting and classifying progresses.

In the present San Francisco ferry post office a package is handled eleven times from the entry to its exit for delivery and in that time is carted by hand trucks and boxes on wheels many hundred feet.

I have often wondered why a great postal building should not also be an office building and derive a revenue from same, just as your own building and practically all others built for revenue do.

This is a matter of the people's money and should receive serious consideration.

E. L. HUBBARD.

THE WRONG SPECIALIST.

When a plain doctor likes the helmsman of this half column avers that it is a mistake to seek a heart specialist because you have pain around the heart, or a stomach specialist because you have dyspepsia, or a nerve specialist because you have neuritis, the motive will be questioned by those who are fond of "trying" specialists. Let us quote an instance to illustrate the motive:

A young man, a butcher, had been confined to his home for several weeks because of a form of paralysis which caused pain and disability of the legs. He had some friends, and the friends were quite naturally interested. Friend like, they presumed upon their relationship to advise the young man what he should do. One would not give him peace until he dropped his doctor and called in a healer who acquired his education via the mail. This healer was confident he could cure the young man in 30 treatments. The patient took about a dozen of the treatments and then concluded to surrender his right to the rest—which he had paid for in advance. Next a masseur was summoned, who felt confident he could eliminate the nerve pressure and restore good use of the limbs. He tried for a few weeks, with unhappy results. Finally, a nerve specialist was consulted. He diagnosed myelitis (spinal chord inflammation) and predicted (to the relatives) a fatal issue.

Discouraged, hopeless, the young man consented to have an ordinary doctor attend him and do what he could to ease his final days. Of course, the old doctor was "sore," the family assumed, and so a young tyro, new to the neighborhood, was called. First thing he did when he entered the room was to exclaim, "Whew!" Then, to himself, "Must be something defunct around here." He proceeded to examine the patient from the equator north and south to the poles.

"Pretty bad tonsils. They'll have to come out."

Well, a man will catch at a straw. The tonsils were removed—by a throat specialist, we are glad to remark—and the patient stood the operation well. The tonsils were pretty thoroughly permeated with spetic foci — pus-pockets. From this condition the odor in the room had originated.

Soon afterward the young man began to improve. In three months he returned to his shop cured.

His "myelitis" was really a multiple neuritis, caused by focal infection, as is most neuritis.

Moral: A friend is an acquaintance who feels impelled to suggest the best treatment and doesn't.

All Teacher's Fault.

A schoolboy who had brought home excellent weekly reports at the beginning of last term, returned with unsatisfactory reports toward the end.

"How is it you are not doing so well?" asked his father anxiously.

"It's teacher's fault," was the reply. "He's moved the boy that sat next to me."—People's Home Journal.

CHEST DRIVE FOR CHARITY FUNDS SET

Oakland Campaign Will Run From Jan. 28 to Feb. 8; Leaders Enlist Hundreds to Facilitate Collection Work

After two months of preparatory work, announcement is made today by the Community Chest of Oakland that its annual campaign for funds will be conducted from January 28 to February 8, both dates inclusive. The dates of the San Francisco campaign will run concurrently.

The campaign chairman, William Harold Oliver, says that not since pre-war days has a campaign affecting so large a number of citizens been launched locally. Twenty-six committees have been functioning the past two months and forty-three meetings of committees have been held. Several hundred volunteers are already enlisted. Four thousand workers will be enrolled within the next two weeks, according to campaign leaders.

"Last Spring's campaign raised but ten months' income for the agencies," states Chairman Oliver. "For the ensuing year we must have twelve months' income. Not alone that, but Oakland's growth, which entitles this city to rank as the third fastest growing in the United States, causes corresponding growth in the social problems and in the needs of the agencies. Hence while the 1924 budget is not yet fully formulated, it is certain that the Community Chest campaigners in 1924 must get nearly one-fourth more than was raised in 1923."

Community Chest campaign headquarters are on the second floor of the Midgely building, 510 Fifteenth street. Entrance is by a stairway opposite the north entrance to the city hall. Telephone is Lakeside 10,000.

Company Had No Permit to Sell Stock in State

Corporation Commissioner Testifies in Mortgage Company Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—The Bankers' Mortgage and Discount Company never had a permit to sell stock in California up to the time it was called upon for a showing by the State Corporation Commissioner according to evidence submitted at the trial of its five officers before Superior Judge Louis Ward today. Adolph Michel, 5303 Miles avenue, Oakland, Chief Deputy Corporation Commissioner, was the witness who testified as to this important fact.

He declared that on April 2 a subpoena had been issued for the details of the company's financing. On April 12 the return was made and on April 17 there was an application to be allowed to sell stock. The defendants are charged with violating the Corporate securities act.

According to Michel the papers received by him in response to the subpoena showed that the Bankers' Mortgage and Discount Company is a Delaware corporation, with head offices at Wilmington, organized December 16, 1922, with a million dollars' worth of stok. Under an agreement there was to have been sold to J. J. Eiseman, the vice president, $500,000 of debentures and $1000 worth of stock, of which he sold some to Albert Abrams of Oakland.

A subsidiary corporation, it was shown, was the California Mortgage and Discounty Company. The basis for exchange was $100 of Coast Tire and Rubber Company stock and $200 cash for $300 in units of Bankers' Mortgage and Discount Company.

A letter accompanying the return Michel said was signed by Eiseman and denied that the company was guilty of any fraud, asserting that it had been organized to assist the Coast Tire and Rubber of Oakland, which had increased in production to a hundred tires a day.

Miss Bertha Coit, Eiseman's former stenographer, was still on the stand when the session opened and on direct examination again disclosed that when Coast Tire and Rubber Company was being used for exchange at $10 a share, it was selling on the market for $2.25.

RUM MEN OF OAKLAND TO HIT SNAG

Colbourn Orders Chief Drew to Mobilize Extra Policemen Into Auxiliary Dry Army to Cut Off Supply

Hearing rumors of "booze runners" preparing to import enormous quantities of wet goods into Oakland for New Year's eve, Commissioner Frank Colbourn today requested Chief of Police James T. Drew to maintain extra guards against this fluid invasion and, if necessary, to augment the "special duty" squad for this holiday.

Colbourn says he heard that part of this invasion will come from persons allowed to make wine for home consumption, who are selling it to selected customers.

The letter of warning to Chief Drew follows:

"I have been advised that there are a number of what are known as "booze runners" who expect to flood the city with illicit liquor for the holiday season. Furthermore, complaint has reached this office to the effect that certain people who are permitted under the law to make wine for home consumption are selling it to selected customers.

"Therefore, it would be advisable to instruct the special duty squad to be on the lookout for these law violators, and if need be to augment their force to prevent Oakland being overrun with this traffic."

Lionel Killed Ducks; City to Execute Lionel

Cat Raider of Lake Merritt Orders Executed After Reform Fails.

In a desperate effort to save the lives of Oakland's feathered guests on Lake Merritt, Superintendent Lee Kerfoot of the park department today issued an order of condemnation for Lionel, the Walla Vista avenue cat, recently sent to the pound for execution.

The depredations of Lionel were first discovered by a scandalized housewife, who began to notice the heads, legs and feathers of dead ducks in her back yard. The ducks arrived promptly every morning, all very dead and mostly eaten. The housewife, indignant that Lionel patronized her yard for his banquets, brought the matter before the authorities. The authorities assembled and kept tab on Lionel's duck-hunting results. Every night he took his supply of ducks out of the lake, and dragged the victims to his lair.

An effort to reform Lionel proved unavailing. Lionel merely became hard to catch, but the duck population kept thinning. Yesterday he was caught and sentenced.

"It's a case of keeping the cat or the ducks," says Kerfoot, "so we'll have to keep the ducks."

While Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Young, 19 and 16 years old, respectively, are enjoying love's young dream somewhere in seclusion, the parents of the couple and the police are searching for them in vain.

Mrs. Young was Miss Jessie Lenhard of Hercules. Monday the police were asked to look for her and were told she had run away from home to get married. About the same time the police were asked to assist in forestalling the boy in his matrimonial adventure.

The couple foiled both parents and police, however, and are believed to have been married by Judge Edward J. Tyrrell after they had obtained a license by falsifying their ages.

Young's mother, who lives at 558 Thirty-fourth street, said today that the search for the couple was still on, but that her benediction and not her wrath awaited them.

Taft's are ultra-particular concerning the merchandise carried by them. When we were offered The Cheney we realized it was the type of instrument that would reflect credit upon its agents.

Rosa Raisa Said:—

"Never before have I heard an instrument which so perfectly reproduces the artist's voice and the very timbre of the orchestra."

Such was the exclamation of Rosa Raisa when first she heard The Cheney. A remarkable tribute—for her keen appreciation of musical values makes the opinion of this great opera singer authoritative.

You will be just as deeply impressed when you hear The Cheney. Compare its rich tone quality with any other phonograph. The difference is so marked it is truly surprising!

The rich sweetness of Cheney tone is obtained by departing entirely from the principles used in other phonographs. Its vibrant wood chambers not only develop but amplify the countless infinitesimal overtones, usually lost, which determine the real musical quality of any selection. Hear The Cheney! See it! You will find Cheney prices remarkably low.

Disappearing drop doors and raised panel design add to its beauty and simplicity.

A smooth running electric or spring motor and automatic stop leave nothing lacking in this musical instrument. Size of top, 22x40 inches. Stands 34 inches high. The Violin Resonator
An Exclusive Cheney Feature

Hidden within the lovely cabinets of The Cheney is an acoustic system so superior to that of any other phonograph and so fundamentally different that The Cheney has become known as "the most perfect music-reproducing instrument made."

The famous Cheney Violin Resonator, so-called because it is made of seasoned violin wood and carved in violin lines, is a part of this acoustic system.

Supported on a single point so that its resonant walls may vibrate freely as the sound passes through, The Cheney Violin Resonator imparts a full, rich tone quality and fully develops the delicate over-tones so often lost.

In time, this violin wood mellows in the music as does a fine violin, and adds character and beauty to Cheney reproductions. Of The Cheney alone can it be said: "The longer you play it, the sweeter it grows."

HOUR BY HOUR PRICE CHANGES

NOVEMBER GAIN OF STORE SALES LEAST OF YEAR

San Francisco District Third in Record of Department Business.

Department store sales throughout the United States averaged slightly smaller gains in November than in preceding months this year, according to Sales Barometer compiled by T. L. Blanke, of the Controller's Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The November increase over the same month last year was 5½ per cent.

The corresponding increases reported for October and September were 10 per cent and 6 per cent respectively. The continued unseasonable weather in most parts of the country, according to Blanke, is responsible in some measure for the smaller gains reported from the various Federal Reserve Districts. In view of this unusual condition, it is considered remarkable that sales have maintained any increase over 1922.

DISTRICT INCREASES.

The increases reported for November from the various districts are all moderate, the majority being grouped very closely around the countrywide average of 5½ per cent. The largest average gain was reported from the Atlanta district which had a 14½ per cent increase. The Chicago district is second with a gain of 9 per cent and San Francisco is third with 7 per cent. The report shows that the southern half of the San Francisco district, which embraces California, Arizona, Utah and Nevade, made a gain of 10 per cent, the figures from Idaho, Washington and Oregon, which comprise the balance of this district, being much lower.

The percentage of stores reporting increases throughout the country was somewhat smaller than in October. Of all stores reporting for November, 68 per cent made increases over the same month in 1922. In October this figure was 77 per cent and in September, 70 per cent.

Despite the lower average for November, the Barometer shows that none of the twelve districts reported declines in sales from the preceding year. This is an improvement over the preceding two months when Dallas had a 4 per cent decline for September and Kansas City a 1 per cent decline for October. Kansas City reports a sufficient number of gains in November to show a 2½ per cent increase against its decline of October.

REACTIONS REPORTED.

The most pronounced reactions from the figures of October are noted in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Richmond districts in the East, and the Dallas and San Francisco districts in the West. Dallas, which led all districts in October with a 15 per cent gain, comes in this month with only 4 per cent increase over 1922.

The Atlanta district, in addition to having the highest percentage of increase for November, was the only district in which all reporting stores made gains over last year. The smallest percentage of stores reporting gains occurred in the New York district where only 58 per cent of stores reported increased sales.

The industrial sections in the East are all grouped around the country-wide average plan. These sections in past months have shown larger gains with the exception of the New England section which has increased its sales gains steadily during the past three months. The Minneapolis district, which has been bringing up the rear in past months, also shows a tendency toward better increases. The agricultural section of the middle west, contained in the St. Louis and Kansas City districts, continue to report very small improvement over 1922.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

By H. S. SCOTT.

Standard Oil of California distinguished itself in a rather prosy market today by showing its "high" up almost two points. In the San Francisco exchanges it sold as high as 61⅝, while in New York it sold early in the day above 62.

The other oils were inclined to be steady and at times rather weak both east and west.

The market in Wall street opened with selling pressure with the result that the general list displayed a somewhat reactionary tone. Offerings were fairly well absorbed, however, the initial recessions being limited largely to small fractions. Sporadic buying also took place in various sections of the list. Corn products rose a point and a number of the western rails, including Union Pacific, improved fractionally.

Bullish demonstrations in several special stocks failed to halt the liquidation in other parts of the list, reactionary tendencies prevailing through the morning. Buying of the sugar shares, however, tended to straighten the list just before noon. National Lead jumped 5 points and Davison Chemical Standard Oil of California and May Department Stores each moved up 2 points or more, the last named at a new 1923 high. Selling was most effective in the steel, equipment, motor and low priced oil shares. Although several weak spots also cropped out in the railroad list, Illinois Central falling 1¼ to 100, a new low for the year. New lows also were established by Omaha, St. Paul preferred and Jones Brothers Tea. Pierce Arrow prior preferred dropped four points. Call money opened at 4½ per cent.

The upward movement assumed a faster pace in the early afternoon when several leaders, including Baldwin and Studebaker, reporting a point or more above yesterday's final figures. Several oils also were strong and National Lead extended its rise to ten points, a new high for the year.

St. Paul railroad mortgages again were offered freely in the early bond trading today, several of that company's issues moving to lower ground. Some interest was displayed in the sugar and steel company bonds, but a relatively large list of industrial liens recorded recessions. Uncertainty over congressional action on tax reduction and the bonus unsettled the Liberties somewhat, several issues falling lower. Bankers reported the market for new securities was continuing good, books being closed on an offering of $2,750,000 Superior Steel Corporation first mortgage sixes.

The New York curb market today showed an irregular tone, weakness in a number of issues in the early trading being followed by advances but there were many important movements to higher prices. Petroleum stocks were generally under pressure in the early trading with a marked improvement later, Penn-Mex Fuel was exceptionally strong and Mexican Panuco was also in demand, Illinois Pipe Line was another strong favorite, making a substantial gain.

The declines that occurred in some stocks were regarded as natural following the advances that have been made in previous trading.

Mining stocks were more active. Nippissing was traded in at around its recent high level and there was continued buying of St. Croix mines, several other mining stocks showing gains.

UNEVENNESS CONTINUES IN BUILDING MATERIAL COSTS.

Unevenness continues to be the chief characteristic of the general building material market, particularly during the present inventory season. Few buyers are purchasing beyond immediate needs, and stocks of materials are being kept as low as possible. Production has fallen off in several of the basic commodities, particularly pig-iron and cotton goods. Increased activity, however, is noticeable in certain branches of the leather industry. Continued heavy car loadings indicate the handling of a vast amount of merchandise.

Few price changes occurred during the week in the basic building materials. Dallas reported an increase of 20c per 100 lb. in steel structurals and 2c per gal in raw linseed oil. Minneapolis also quotes a rise of 2c per gal. on linseed oil, due to lighter flaxseed receipts, the year's crop being about marketed. Chicago, however, reported a drop of 10c per 100 lb. in structurals; Dallas, a decrease of $3.50 per ton in hydrated finishing lime and Atlanta, a decline of 1c per gal. in linseed oil.

The iron and steel situation is briefly outlined as follows: Pig-iron sales smaller. No. 2 foundry iron $21 a $22 per gross ton, Birmingham. Coke higher. Finished steel prices firm. Mills receiving inquiries involving large tonnages. Improved railroad demand for steel plates. Oil-storage tank plate requirements small. Structurals continue at $2.50 base with $2.40 quoted on exceptionally large tonnages; bars, $2.40 per 100 lb., Pittsburgh. Unfilled steel tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corp. Nov. 30, totaled 4,368,584 tons, against 4,035,750, Oct. 31, and 7,403,332 on Mar. 31, 1923. March showed the heaviest unfilled tonnage of any month this year.

tion of good earnings the question of dividends of preferred may be expected to come up. No dividends have been paid on either class of stock but declaration of 6 per cent on $7,500,000 preferred outstanding would only take $450,000 a year. This question will probably be determined by trend of traffic and earnings during next few months.

810 CORPORATIONS IMPROVE DIVIDENDS.

For every important corporation that deferred or passed dividends during 1923, six resumed or inaugurated dividends. For every one that reduced payments, five increased the dividend rate or paid extra dividends. These are the facts brought out by an analysis of 841 dividend changes during the past eleven and a half months, made by the Standard Statistics Company of New York. This analysis covers the securities of all the most important railroad, industrial and public utility corporations.

Less than fourteen per cent of all the changes covered by this analysis represent reduced, deferred or passed dividends. More than a third represent extra dividends. Thirteen per cent are increased dividends; eighteen per cent newly inaugurated dividends; eleven per cent are stock dividends.

The actual figures are 322 extra dividends, 129 increased dividends, 91 resumed dividends, 169 inaugurated dividends, 106 stock dividends, 82 reduced dividends, 5 deferred dividends, 38 dividends passed.

MARKET ST. REFUNDING MAY ADD TO CHARGES.

Although reports persist that officials of the Market Street Railway of San Francisco are about to renew negotiations for the sale of the property to that city it is unlikely that this procedure will interfere with the refunding of the $13,886,000 of bonds and notes due in 1924. Arrangements are being made for this financing and the announcement of its terms is expected shortly. A small increase in annual fixed charges may result from this operation. The company is one of the few tractions which have demonstrated their ability to earn more than twice the fixed charges with a 5c fare.

WIRE SUMMARY

The American Gas & Electric company reports a balance after charges including preferred dividends and depreciation for the year ending October 31, 1923, of 3,926,387, an increase of 38 per cent over the previous 12 months.

Approximately $60,000,000 of war savings certificates of the series of 1919, mature January 1, 1924. Government officials anticipate that a good part of these will be exchanged for the new treasury savings certificates.

A stock dividend of 40 to 50 per cent reported under consideration by directors of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, would bring the outstanding capital stock to $26,250,000.

A compilation by the controllers in congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association discloses that average sales by department stores in November were about 5½ per cent greater than in November last year.

November showed a greater volume of building permits for the entire country than any previous November and the third highest volume of the current year, according to a compilation by S. W. Straus & Company. The whole country showed a gain of 30 per cent over November, 1922, and 5 per cent over October of this year. The value of permits reported by 287 cities was $301,056,967.

ACCESSORIES.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 19.—The Eaton Axle and Spring company reports the closing of several new contracts, one of which totals $750,000. The company's bumper plants are booked to capacity on a 24 hour basis until next July.

WHOLE STATE IS STILL BADLY IN NEED OF RAIN

Pasture Conditions Not So Poor in Years, Says Report of State Bureau.

The past fortnight brought very little relief to stockmen, says the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. Rainfall in northern and central California on December 13 was of considerable value in that it was sufficient to germinate pasture grasses and fall sown grain in some localities; however, accompanying temperatures were unfavorably low over most of the state, which affected the citrus growers adversely and retarded the growth of range feed in those districts where grasses were started by rains earlier in the season. Speaking of the state in general, feeding conditions have not been as poor for many years as they are now. Rainfall is below normal and what we have had came at such times as to be of little value. Rain in late September and early October did germinate range grasses and what little wheat there was sown at that time, but since then the precipitations have been almost negligible, only a trace being reported from time to time until November 30, when there was some rain in southern California, and in the northern part of the state on December 13.

PASTURE CONDITIONS.

The condition as just described is placing livestock men in a rather serious position. The value of dry grass and grain stubble is about over. Naturally this is forcing stockmen to feed both cattle and sheep on hay in many districts, which is an unusual thing to do at this time of the year, as there is usually a liberal supply of green feed available. Lambing has been progressing quite favorably, though temperatures have been low the past week.

Late September and early October wheat sown on summer fallow land is not in the best condition. Very little growth has been made on account of the drought; however, the acreage of such wheat is not large. A liberal downpour over the state at the present time would be of great value because much land has been dry plowed and planted and is waiting for a good rain to germinate the seed. Further, it would aid those farmers who have been putting off fall plowing.

LOW TEMPERATURES.

Unfavorably low temperatures during last week did some damage to the citrus fruit, especially in the San Joaquin valley, where temperatures dropped to below freezing. Unharvested navel oranges were severely damaged, but it is estimated that 75 per cent of the crop had previously been shipped or stored in warehouses. Reports generally agree that the Valencia crop was not seriously damaged. Olive growers who were not through harvesting suffered some loss on account of the freeze. Temperatures in southern California did not drop so low as to materially damage the citrus crop in that part of the state, although a slight injury is reported from Ventura county. However, heavy wind storms on December 8th and 9th in the southern counties caused considerable fruit to drop. The loss is variously estimated from 2 to 10 per cent. The fruit was also scarred to some extent which will naturally hinder its normal development and result in some fruit of unusually low quality.

RAIL EARNINGS BEING DEVOTED TO NEW EQUIPMENT

Repeal of Transportation Act Would Paralyze Development, Said.

The number of new locomotives put in service in the first ten months of this year by American Railroads exceeds the number placed in service in any entire year of the last sixteen years except 1907 and 1913, and that the number of new freight cars put in service exceeds the number put in service in any entire year of the last sixteen, except 1907, 1908 and 1913, according to advices from "Railway Age," by Southern Pacific company today.

The great revival of railroad expansion this year is attributed principally to one provision of the transportation act, and "Railway Age" declares that the repeal of the rate making provisions of his law "would be a mandate by congress to the Interstate Commerce Commission to do all it could to stop the development and expansion of the railways, and render them unable to handle the country's commerce.

AID TO DEVELOPMENT.

"The most important provision of the Transportation Act," says the Railway Age, "is that which requires the Interstate Commerce Commission, in determining what the railways shall be allowed to earn, to give due consideration among other things to the transportation needs of the country, and the necessity, under honest, efficient and economical management of the existing transportation facilities of enlarging such facilities in order to provide the people of the United States with adequate transportation.

"This provision is a part of section 15-A, the repeal of which is being energetically advocated by the radical group in Congress. Statistics regarding the numbers of locomotives and cars installed in service tell the story most plainly.

"In the eight years from June 30, 1907, to June 30, 1914, inclusive, the average number of new locomotives installed in service annually was 3226 and the average number of new freight cars installed annually was 125,494. As a result of drastic regulation, government operation and business depression the number of locomotives installed in the eight and a half years ended on December 31, 1922, averaged only 1652 and the average number of freight cars installed averaged only 81,605.

INTENT OF LAW.

"The Transportation Act in the provision above quoted instructed the Interstate Commerce Commission to adopt a new policy of regulation, that of not only avoiding confiscation of railways but of so regulating them as to enable them to provide the people of the United States with adequate transportation. Principally owing to the business depression the rates fixed by the commission under the Transportation Act yielded wholly inadequate net returns in 1921 and 1922. But the net return earned has shown a substantial increase in 1923 and the provisions of the Transportation Act have encouraged railway managers and investors to hope for a constructive policy in future.

"The large expenditure made by the railroads this year for additions and improvements have helped business in all lines and the reduction of these expenditures would correspondingly hurt business in all lines."

WHY MRS. DURKEE KNOCKED ON MADGE'S DOOR LATE AT NIGHT.

"I think that would be the best hing you possibly could do."

My response to Leila's query as o the advisability of joining the onference between Alfred and his other was prompt and decisive, nd when, her slight figure vibrant ith renewed strength, her face lowing with loving sympathy for er husband and his stricken moth-, she went swiftly down the stairs. thanked my particular little joss or the success of the task I had t myself, that of freeing Leila rom the obsessing terror of Bess ean's machinations.

Even if, after further reflection, eila should discount the assurce I had given her of Alfred's ssential fidelity to her, yet her other-in-law's need would keep er from dwelling upon her own ffairs until I should have had me to deal further with Bess ean.

Just what course I should pure in blocking the malicious, vany-prompted game of my former olleague, I did not as yet know. irst, I must find out the secret hich I guessed she shared with icky and Alfred, a secret which was sure had something to do ith Alfred's car. But my first step ascertaining the truth lay in icky's direction, and I could not e him until he returned from his ip.

For the next two days there was othing I could do, and with the nse of relaxation one feels when fort is no longer required, I unressed and crawled into bed, realing that I was utterly spent with tigue. I had not thought that I ould be needed again, but I had t fallen asleep when little Mrs. urkee's soft voice sounded outde my door.

"Madge, are you asleep?" she urmured, and I knew that if I d not answer her she would go way, unwilling to disturb me. For unworthy second I hesitated, for was more tired than I had known, en I answered cheerily:

"No, indeed; come right in."

I snapped on the reading lamp y my bed, and by its light I saw at her face was tear-stained, but aceful.

"I couldn't go to sleep without anking you for what you have one for us all," she said, bending er and kissing me warmly. "Leila like a different woman—all that eadful sadness and nervousness ne—and both she and Alfred are dear about my illness. They ve comforted me so much. I n't care what comes now. "Nonsense," I parried. "I supse I'm responsible for the lovable alities which have made your son d daughter-in-law towers of ength to you."

"No—o," she admitted. "but," th a characteristically comical tle grimace, "you thought out all ose qualities by making them ink their own affairs amounted nothing beside mine. At least at's the way they are acting."

In her voice was the innocent, atified vanity of a woman, who, ter years of subordinating herlf to the plans of others, suddenfinds herself the center of inest. The smile which accomnied her words was infectious, ough pathetic, and I smiled back her, though I found my eyes rilously near to tears.

"And that's the way they ought act," I said didactically. "Everying's going to revolve around you w for a while, so just sit back d take things easily."

"I'm going to," she promised. ut, child, you mustn't cut your it home short for me. Alf told e how generous you were to omise to come back immediately, I'm not going to let you."

I raised myself to a sitting posre, drew her to me and kissed r.

"And I'm going to do exactly as please about it," I answered, "so n't waste any more time worryabout me. I'll take the first in east in the morning and be epared to come back at any nute. I told Alfred to telephone after he had seen Dr. Foxm."

"I know," she answered, "and — d—I'm an awful bluffer. I do nt you to come back if I have go to a hospital. Some way, I l so safe when you're around." My throat contracted with a sudn clutching fear. But I forced rself to a cheery answer.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

LUCY WALLIS knew more than her father or mother, or anyone else in Minden. She knew, too, that Minden for its social opportunities and chances for entertainment was hopelessly provincial and that she was exceedingly bored with life. Lucy was 18. Let those who blame her remember where they were that age.

Lucy would not have admitted for the world that she was enjoying the experience of being superior and abused. Indeed, she did not know it. It is enough to say that in the Wallis house she was a difficult problem. A father swore and kept out of her way while a mother tried to be patient. Young Waldo Wallis, the four-year-old, was the only member of the family unaffected.

When young Murray Winn came to call, which was not infrequent, Waldo shouted a welcome. If the caller turned out to be Ronald Randall the child showed his disappointment and the boy's estimate was shared by all the rest, save the important Miss Lucy.

"Murray," Lucy said one evening, when he called in excitement to tell her he had been made a partner in his father's business, "I don't see how you can bear to bind yourself so irrevocably to Minden. You have forged your chains now, turned the lock, and cannot get away." She paused with some satisfaction at the way she had put it. "It is my intention some day to move in a much larger sphere."

Murray Winn looked at her soberly and knew it would do no good to propose. Then he remembered the spells of temperament Lucy had had before and smiled.

"When you are just a little older," he said, "and learn to estimate people and things for their real worth, you will be proud of Minden, and glad to live here."

Lucy, quite properly was insulted. Then it was that Ronald Randall began to play his trump card for all it was worth. Ronald was an employee of Lucy's father, a quiet and immaculate man who wore an air which Lucy called distinguished and the youth of Minden termed "stuck up."

He talked the big city to Lucy and moved toward her heart. There was nothing slow about Ronald and, indeed, had it been known, there was every reason for speed. He told her how popular she would be in metropolitan society, talked opera and encouraged every secret longing she had. Then he began to make love.

But Ronald was discreet. He did not call often enough to arouse suspicion and made Lucy promise not to tell of the engagement. "Your father does not like me," he said. "I'll have to win him over at first, win him by my work in the office. Just wait, little girl, and when the time comes we'll tell him. Then he will have to give me a raise, or will help us, so we can go to the city." He hinted of other resources coming to him.

That was the situation when Ronald called one evening, a nervous and agitated suitor.

"Move along, Bud," he said, as he shoved Waldo out of the room. "We don't want kids in here." And Waldo, wondering at a sister who could prefer this man to Murray Winn, moved along.

"Lucy," Ronald became intent with her entrance, "the time has come for us to break away from a stifling atmosphere. If we ask your father's consent he'll refuse. There is only one way." Lucy's eyes lighted.

"And that's elope. Oh, Ronald!"

"This very night. We'll take the midnight train. Leave the window onto the porch unlocked or open. I'll be outside. Before they have found we have gone we'll be on our way to the city. Then they'll forgive us and we'll come back from a honeymoon trip in style."

Lucy had two suitcases packed and waited while the house was in darkness, and while she waited she wondered what Murray Winn would say when he heard.

There was a light step on the porch. She picked up the suitcases and moved toward the window. There came a sliding sound and a great bump, a cry and a curse, and a light went on in her father's window. Lucy jumped into her bed with her clothes on and Ronald ran through the yard to the street. For an hour the father, with his shotgun, looked for a burglar.

In the morning it was discovered that Waldo had neglected to put his scooter in the basement and it was this upon which the marauder had stepped. Waldo came in for praise in place of the usual scolding. Lucy waited to hear from Ronald and was surprised at an immense realization of relief. But there was another discovery. Ronald Randall was gone. He had taken the midnight train, and his books were all wrong.

"What puzzles me," said the father, "is a note he left. The upstart says that under the circumstances he guesses I won't prosecute. Under what circumstances?" A frightened Lucy went back to her room and when she emerged she was humble and thankful.

"Waldo," she said, "sister is going to buy you a nice new scooter. Will you run over to Winn's house with this note for Murray?"

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Knott rescued Marjorie from Fanchon, who did not dance. He did not say anything to the telephone man, for fear of exciting the suspicion of the thugs. In two hours, he might secure aid but if he precipitated trouble at once, there was nothing that could save the guests from being robbed.

"I wonder if Max is here in a disguise I cannot penetrate?" asked Marjorie, as they stepped into a fox trot. "Do you suppose he would know me with this domino on?"

"There's no one here that equals you," replied the fat man. "Any man of discernment could pick you out among a thousand."

She said nothing to this but as they danced around, she scrutinized the clowns, convicts, tramps, chevaliers, knights and other disguises. Knott also observed his fellow celebrants, but for another reason. He was seeking Marvin, the Dynamite Kid, just now. He would settle with the fake Colonel St. Clair later on.

"You are not at all amusing tonight," Marjorie's chiding voice broke into his thoughts. "Can't you tell me something thrilling? I feel like being entertained."

"Oh, I could tell you something thrilling all right," replied Knott, with just a touch or sarcasm in his voice, as he caught the eye of the red headed robber fixed on him. "But perhaps thrilling tales are not good for blushing brides-to-be."

She did not answer at once. He frowned vaguely. He was wondering what had become of Slater. Perhaps his operative had tried to enter the house and had been held up. In that case the mysterious seaman whom Marjorie had kissed had escaped also.

At the thought of this fellow, Knott looked down at Marjorie. Her face was flushed and her lips parted in an eager smile, as she waved to friends that were dancing about them. He would like to ask her concerning that man. The very vision of hi mcaressing this beautiful girl, caused fever to rise in his veins. But he doubted the wisdom of being too inquisitive. In time he would find out, but until later it might be well for him to hold his tongue.

She was saying something about Maxmilian and a honeymoon in Europe. Knott, scarcely hearing, did not reply. She pulled half away from him, and held up an accusing finger.

"You are not being nice to me," she charged. "I honestly believe you are jealous."

Knott's face became very red indeed.

"Why shouldn't I be jealous?" he blurted. "Marjorie, I love you."

He stopped suddenly, realizing that he had made a mistake. She had stopped in the middle of the floor. Couples bumped into them. Someone jeered at his awkwardness. He paid no heed to them. He met her reproachful look sheepishly.

"Oh, you've spoiled everything," she said, her tone full of reproof.

She walked across the floor to a seat. He followed like a whipped dog and stood over her. She looked up at him wiith a toss of her head.

"So that is why you do not like Max!" she charged.

Knott glanced away to hide his embarrassment. His eyes, roving over the assemblage, rested upon a bright splotch of color, a grotesque devil's headdress. It was worn by a man of medium height who was half hidden behind a curtain and who seemed anxious to avoid contact with his fellow masqueraders.

He was so well disguised that it was impossible to discover his identity. Yet he was about the same size and build of Marvin. He was the only one in the crowd who resembled Marvin at all.

Knott turned to Marjorie.

"If you will excuse me?" he asked, bowing formally.

"Certainly," she answered, her tone cold.

The criminologist made his way leisurely through the crowd, bowing to this one, speaking to that, but always keeping his eye on the devil without seeming to do so. He stopped in the shelter of a pillar and watched the crimson horned fellow.

The squirrel toothed bandit stepped up to the devil and addressed him. They engaged in a low spoken conversation while their eyes roved about to see that no one approached them.

"It's the Dynamite Kid," said Knott, to himself, "His henchman is reporting."

As the devil made a gesture, he pulled back his coat, revealing something shiny that glistened on his waistcoat. There were the stars and medals as worn by Colonel Maxmilian St. Clair.

Knott was forced to do a mental "about face." There was St. Clair, disguised as a devil, hobnobbing with one of the holdup men.

Knott's suspicion of Marjorie's fiance crystalized at that moment. He was willing enough to suspect the fake Colonel of being a robber, although he had not credited him with enough courage for the part. He thrilled at the thought. He must beat this gang now. Here was a double incentive. Not only would he save the Hydes from a serious loss, but he would release Marjorie from the grip of this love gyp, as Cal had called him.

The devil accepted a cigarette from the bandit, lighted it, took several puffs at it and then threw it away. It was a movement characteristic of Roy Marvin. Knott had observed him particularly.

The fat man's head was in a whirl. Was the man Marvin or St. Clair? He had the traits of both.

The sorely puzzled detective sauntered toward the devil and his cohort. There was but one way to find out: He would tackle the man. Close scrutiny would reveal his identity at once.

But when he reached the spot where the devil had been, he was gone. And search as he might through the house, the criminologist was unable to locate him.

By 9:30 Napoleon Knott was in despair. He had been checkmated, whipsawed, beaten at every turn. Defeat stared him in the face.

HEART-CONVICTIONS AND THE WAY SOME FOLKS DEFEND THEM

I want to print all the letters that came to our little Worried and Perplexed mother because it seems to have developed into such a vital issue. The rights of motherhood and the rights of childhood have been discussed sanely—and insanely, for some folks when they get excited about a heart-conviction want to tear the top off the world in general.

This little mother has a love that will FIGHT TO WIN.

Dear Jerry:

Please will you enter me as one of your Gang? I read your column every day while I eat my lunch. For you and the Gang are my only companions at noon, as my husband and little daughter take their lunches with them. Living out of town, we get the papers a day late, on the noon mail.

First, I wish both you and "Madge" had a whole page each every day. For about the time I am most interested your space has run out and I must wait another day. I sure enjoy the different opinions of different people. And some of the answers to "Worried and Perplexed" sure made me boil, one in particular. While some made me laugh. But most of them are from just human mothers and wives. Many of them, Jerry Dear, have offered to help that poor "little mother," and I am sure there are many, many more of us, that have read your loving advice daily, and have never written you a line, that would be glad to send you a dollar or two each for her, if she would only keep her darling baby that is to come.

Please, Jerry dear, won't you see that "Little Mother" and beg her to keep her baby? Just get her to say she will. Some way or any way. Then print us a hurry up answer. Just a line or so to let us know that that little mother will keep her babe, if we will help her a tiny bit.

And by return mail, dear, helping Jerry, I am sure you will have money rolling in—in all forms, to cover all expenses for that tiny life that is coming. And make it possible for that poor little mother to keep her child. Then maybe after a while that father can get better work to support his wife and kiddies on. But please, oh please, little mother and father, don't give your baby away, unless you don't love the sweet little things.

Oh, I would give anything in the world if that little life was coming to me. But think of giving it away, never! I might be selfish. But I would do anything, or commit any crime, I believe, before I would give up my baby.

I married at just two weeks after I was 16 years old, a man ten years older than myself, because I had been an orphan. Some folks in another state took me at the age of 11 years, because they wanted a little slave. And they sure made one out of me. Half of the time I was kept out of school to work in the beet fields, then all the time after I was 13, to work in their boarding house. The work and long hours were awful. But the abuse I had to take ruined my health. The boarders at last reported it, and at the age of 15 I was taken away from those folks, to shift for myself. I worked in home for a year, sick most of the time, but I kept going, and did my work. This man that I married at 16 had been one of the boarders. He was like a big brother to me, and helped me in every way possible. He loved me and begged me to marry him, so I could have a home and rest. I did not love him, only as a friend or brother, for my love was only that of a child, and he knew it. Two weeks after I was 16, we were married. At two months past 17 I became the proud little child mother of a darling baby girl. Then trouble started. For my husband did not love baby, although he worshiped me. When baby was six months old she was not expected to live from one hour to the next. My husband did not seem to care. I was up with baby night and day. I gave her to him to hold for a minute, and because the poor little thing started to cry, he struck her across the face. That was the end, Jerry, dear. As soon as baby was out of danger, so she could stand a change, we left. Of course, there was trouble, and lots of it. But I worked and cared for my baby. Many things I went without. But baby had everything that money could buy, and her own mother's love.

When she was 15 months old my health broke completely, from a hurt as a child. The doctor said there was one chance in a hundred that I would live through the operation. I had suffered so much, that I would have welcomed death had it not been that my darling baby would be left without a mother. I went through that capital operation, how the doctor did not know. But if I ever prayed in my life (which is seldom) I prayed then, to live to care for my child.

When I left the hospital, the doctor told me I wouldn't live six months, and a year at the longest, with the best of care. My baby now is 11 years old.

One month after that operation I was working again to support my baby. I got a divorce and baby. But would not take a penny from the father for her support. I was sick for two years. But my child did not suffer for anything. Maybe my ways were not always the best ways. But my baby had the best of everything. Had it been two babies instead of one, it would have been the same. But give them up? Never, as long as there was breath and will power to keep going.

Many people wanted my baby, for she was so fat and healthy, and such a beautiful child, and always clean and sweet like a doll. But I would only laugh at them, and work harder to give baby more.

After a couple of years I met and loved and married one of the best and dearest men in the world, a man that has loved my baby as his own, and spoiled her, in his extreme goodness more than I ever have. And he thinks our little daughter is the most wonderful child in the world, and she always comes first in everything. Many times, he, like myself, has gone without things for a while, to give her things that she wanted. Now, Jerry dear, I know your opinions on "one child," and I can imagine what you are thinking about our "little 11-year-old miss. But you are dead wrong. She is spoiled, I guess. But a sweeter or more loving child you could not find. And there isn't a selfish hair in her head. She would give away anything she had to children that have less than she has, if I would let her.

The only thing about her being the "one child" that I am sorry for is at times she gets lonesome with just her dog and doll when I am too busy to play with her. Oh, yes, we both get out and play with her like kids. And I have made a little pal out of her, as I do not consider my duty stops at just being a mother.

During the flu we took a little tot two years old, from the Red Cross Relief, a sickly, scared little thing that no one else wanted. We had her for months, loved her and cared for her as our own little daughter. Then her mother was located. She hardly knew her baby, for she was growing fat and healthy. The mother saw we could do more for the baby than she could. So she told us we could adopt the baby, and she signed the adoption papers, but after a few weeks that mother was broken-hearted, at giving away her child, for she realized then what she had done.

I loved that baby, Jerry, dear, almost as much as my own little daughter. But could I break a poor mother's heart, by my selfish love for her baby, although by law the baby was mine, to hold and to love?

No, Jerry, as much as I loved that child, and wanted her as a little sister to my own, we signed a release and gave her back her child.

Now, dear Jerry, that little Worried and Perplexed Mother is not giving up her babe without a heart-break. And after it is done, will she not be heart-broken as that mother was? And if she is, will some one give her back her baby? Many told me I was crazy to give the baby back. Maybe I was. But I am sure I have been much happier than I would have, to have kept that child and broken a mother's heart. I want a baby, as I can't have another of my own. But I want one that no mother wants. I, like Mrs. W. E. C., only wish someone would leave a tiny baby at my door that they do not want. And there is so much red tape to adopting babies from homes or such places, or we would have had a tiny one long ago. But in another year or so we will be fixed better. Then I am going to have a tiny baby if I have to steal it from one of those baby baskets that are put out for unwanted babies, before the nurses find it.

There, Jerry dear, you will need two whole pages now, if you print this newspaper. But I know it is so long you can't print it.

But please see that little mother and beg her to keep her baby. Otherwise she will face the years to come with an aching heart.

ONE WHO TRIES TO BE FAIR

I'll have to tell you the same as I've told others. Worried and Perplexed has made all her decisions alone and I cannot interfere even should I wish to. She has written me a letter which will be published next Sunday, and I am hoping for her sake that the Gang will love her and understand.

But as to the one-child subject—you're not arguing with me, my dear. You feel sorry for your little girl at times when she has only her dolls and her dog. I have said no more. I have not cited the parent's point of view, BUT THE CHILD'S, and you are simply agreeing.

You've given us, Friend, a glimpse of LOVE.

PERSONAL WORD.

STUB. I am so sorry, Friend, that I didn't answer your letter sooner, and I'm hoping that you will see this.

How you owe your man anything, I don't see. From what you say he is a BRUTE, and I hate to think of the risk you run of having an unhealthy baby.

Of course he has no right to open your mail, or act the way he does, AND WHY DO YOU ALLOW IT? A man of his disposition will go just as far as he possibly can, and it's up to you to show him where to stop. Do you think he is a shining example to the children? Women are not slaves, my dear, unless they want to be. Why don't you stand on your own two feet? You need a backbone and encouragement. Here's the latter, but you'll have to grow the spinal column yourself.

LASTING FRIENDSHIPS THAT ARE INITIATED ACROSS BACK FENCES

It's always nice to be agreed with—ask anybody. I don't know anything I enjoy more—unless it's a good scrap. However, the letter A New Writer wrote a couple of weeks ago made someone else "hot under the collar" besides li'le Jerry. A New Writer was married at 15, had a son at 16, got along on $1.50 a day, was now a regular working partner with her husband in business and was happy as a lark. Her boy was 6 foot 2, 21 years old, and New Writer was convinced that all was right with the world.

All of which was very charming and wonderful, BUT—

Worried and Perplexed was "darned lazy" because she was going to give away her unborn baby. Apparently $1.50 a day would go as far today as it did 21 years ago, and one more in the family made no difference. Not only was everything all right with the world, but A New Writer was just the most efficient little soul in existence and if you didn't get along as well as she did—there was something the matter with YOU.

I didn't purr over her letter and neither does Cyclone Sal, who comes to my aid. But then, Cyclones NEVER purr—if they did, they'd be Geraldines or some other inocuous soul.

Dear Jerry:

I just read the ravings of A New Writer so I dropped my work and sat right down to answer. I know she would be horrified if she could see my house, as the beds are not made yet. Maybe I am glad of an excuse to stay in the kitchen and write, as the bedrooms are too cold to work in this a. m.

So A New Writer raised one six feet two on $9 a week. Well, New Writer, I raised six, some 6 footers among them, and lots of times did not have $9 in a month.

One stretch of seven weeks my husband never made a dollar. I had flour and potatoes, so I baked bread and we did without meat, butter, eggs, etc. Say, New Writer, I look back on those times as my best days. I was happy and had what money could not buy—love and contentment, and I also had time to gossip over the back fence. Say, New Writer, if you had only raised three or four more six-footers and let your work stand once in a while to gossip, you might have found, as I did, that some mighty enduring friendships are formed over a back fence, and it makes a nice feeling around the heart when John or Tom is sick or hurt, to hoo-o over the fence for help.

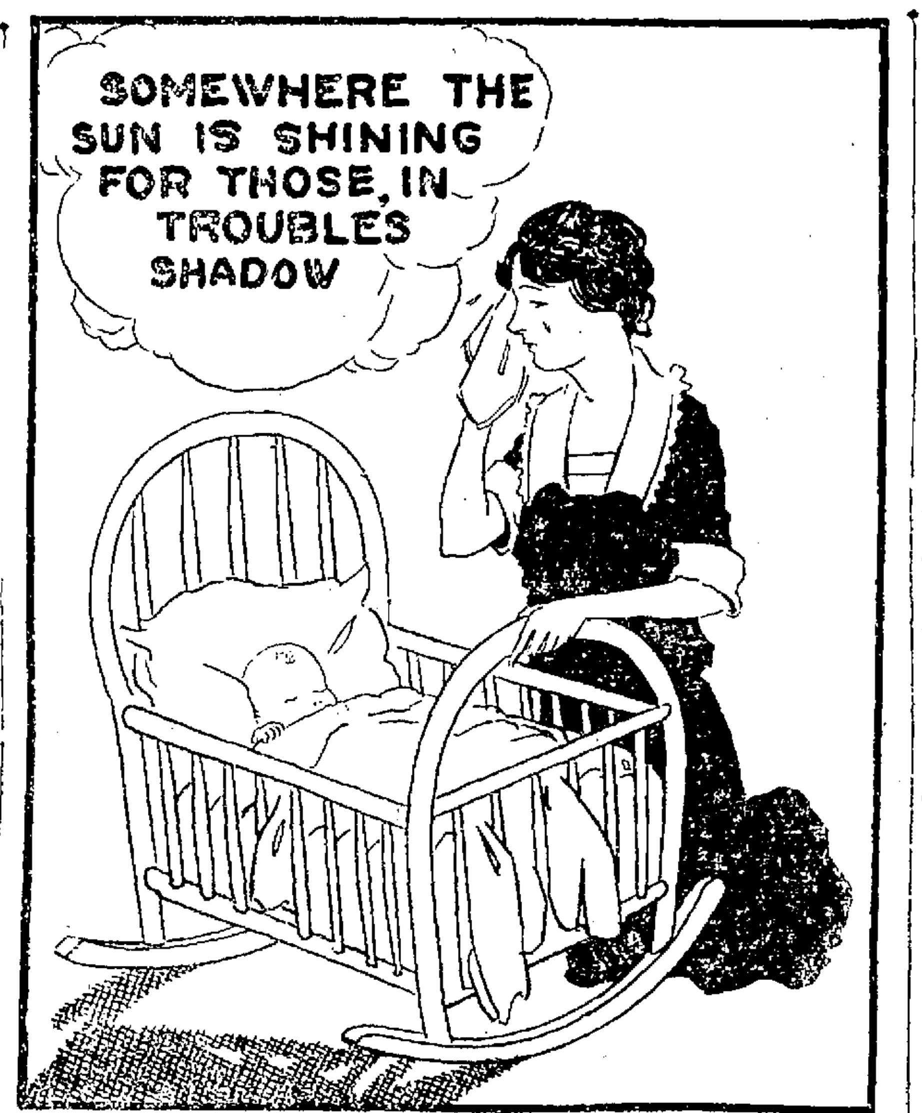
And, oh, my New Writer, haven't you ever been frightened at the wind or lightning and grabbed up the baby and run through the back fence to a friendly neighbor? Well, I am sorry for you, as you have really missed living.

And about the little mother who thinks of giving away her baby. Why bring up that you raised your's on $9 a week? You must remember times have changed since those days when $15 a week was a fortune, and $9 a fair average. We got one dress in three years and made it over three times and then over three times more for the little ones. Then if any were left over, we cut it up for carpet rags.

The little mother of today can't do that, so it takes real love and courage to do as she thinks is best.

CYCLONE SAL.

Woman, send me your address immediately. I'll notify you if my next door neighbor moves and I'll promise you a cup of coffee in my breakfast nook ANY MORNING IN THE WEEK.



SOMEWHERE THE SUN IS SHINING FOR THOSE, IN TROUBLES SHADOW

FAITH SUPPORTED BY OLD-STYLE HUSTLING

If you're the sort that goes through life thinking everyone has plenty of money in his "jeans" just because YOU have, it will do you good to know that there are WORKERS who make better fights for existence than you ever dreamed of.

Dearest Jerry:

On re-reading my letter to Worried and Perplexed in The TRIBUNE I find that words can convey meanings other than what they had been intended to.

No, Jerry, I do not believe that just sitting at home praying, thinking certain thoughts, etc., will land one a job or solve all our problems. You are indeed right. It requires hustling, and we've even met the times during the first year of the war, while conducting a cafe and rooms in a small western town, when times were HARD. The mills closed and the men drifted to be fed at free soup kitchens, and all our best hustling, thoughts and prayers failed to keep our customers. We closed down at a loss of $1500 in one year. Again, when we came here as strangers and with from 3000 to 5000 idle men about the bay cities, our most strenuous hustling failed to land either one of us a job for five months, so you see, Jerry, we don't rely altogether on prayer, thoughts, etc.

What I wished to convey to Perplexed was that thoughts and prayers can and do help one in many ways and make the job of hustling far less difficult, for when we allow our "mental machinery to be clogged with gloomy, discouraging, foreboding thoughts, we cannot be at our best, and one's highest and best is sure required to meet Old Life's trials.

Prayer seems to connect us with some power within (or without) that can and does give us renewed strength, courage and faith to forge ahead while our thoughts are reflected in face, speech, action and pleasant personality. And why need we keep looking on the dark side of life and feeling confident that the future is sure to be as the past or present, and how these thoughts can hurt and retard one?

How often have they proved unfounded and a useless waste of energy while harboring them. People, times and conditions can and do change, not always for the worst, either. Life is one great gamble. One never knows what each day may bring forth and why imagine it must always be adversities? And if adversities be our lot for a time, meet them with a cheery, courageous, self-confident personality. It is often a big aid in gaining help in various ways. I also believe in the saying, "God helps them who help themselves," and "Faith without works are dead."

Gee, those old gloom-gathering thoughts can sure cast a thicker fog over one's home than ever a bay fog can over the land. And how difficult can we make the lives of our husbands while seeking jobs or holding 'em when we wives continue imagining, predicting failure, etc. How much more pleasant and less painful all around if we send hubby off when seeking a job, or holding one, with words of cheer and encouragement that fills him with a desire to do his best. We women can do much toward making or marring our entire home life by just how we use our Thinking Apparatus.

Perhaps I'm not expressing my ideas now in the right way to help Perplexed understand what I mean. Anyway, dear girl, cheer up. Don't give up your baby. Put it on a bottle, get some reliable woman to care for BOTH your children for a time only. Then you are not taking the chances away from them of being pals. Who knows, maybe before you feel you have advantages enough for the oldest, too many years will have elapsed for the next one to be any companion to the one you have. My dear, it is by far the best to raise two instead of one alone. Fight to keep these two together, then use care that you don't face this same problem again within the year. Won't you let me help you in any possible way I can? Material advantages are not all that there are in life.

MADGE MADONNA.

Forgive me for thinking that you didn't believe in HUSTLING. You do; but I have met so many folks who figured the "Lord would provide" whether they raised a hand or not, that I've come to look at the HUSTLERS as the ones who really "carry on." They "carry on" with faith and beliefs behind them, but they also MOVE—even as you have worked, to accomplish their ends.

Thanks, Friend.

RUTH'S ADVENTURE.

"Oh, mother, please don't make me go."

This was Ruth Monroe, a girl of 12 years. She was going to the country for her health. Going to the country was very nice, yet Ruth did not like it. The reason why was because she had to live with a mean aunt. She was trying to persuade her mother to change her mind. But all in vain. Her mother only said:

"No, my dear, you must stay for a year."

Ruth was tired of begging and went sobbing to her room.

"I'll make the best of it," she said. The next day she left. When she reached there a rough man was looking for her. He said:

"So you are Ruth, eh?"

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, come along." They got into a horse and buggy and rode slowly toward the house. The house was a great big spooky house. At the door was a mean woman.

"Come here, you little gal. Put your things in the attic and do some work around here."

"Why, ain't I going to have something to eat?"

"Shut up!" was the answer. For supper Ruth had dry bread and some soup and a cup of coffee. Ruth stood this for six whole months. Every day she was getting weaker until at last she had to stay in bed. She was planning to run away. But first she was going to see what was in the room 31, which her aunt never let her see in. That night while everybody was asleep she tiptoed up and got the keys. Then she went to room 31, and what do you think she saw?

She saw a pile of stolen things. On the floor was a note which said:

"Hello, Bill. I got the gal to do the work while I go out stealing. He, he!"

"I am going to get the police," said Ruth. The police arrested Ruth's aunt and gave Ruth the reward.

THE TOY PISTOL.

There was once a little girl that lived with her father and mother in the country for nine years. This little girl's name was Rose Gardner. She was born in the country and had never been to a city or a very large town in her life. Rose was 12 years old.

One day her father found out that she was an heiress. She had been for nearly a year and 10 months, but no one was aware of the fact until a lawyer wrote her father about it one day. She was an heiress to a little over $50,000, but the will of her uncle, that was who left her the money, said she could not have a cent until she moved to the city within two years. Her uncle knew she never did have a desire to move from the country, so he said that they must stay in the city a year at least.

Rose and the rest of the family moved to New York as soon as they could go. They weren't hardly settled; that is, they did not have all of their things fixed around where they wanted them until Rose received $50,000. She did not want to send it to the bank then, so she put it in the library table drawer. Rose had a toy automatic that she had had ever since she was six years of age. She prized this toy gun very highly, on account of two very good reasons. First, because it had been a gift to her from a brother of hers that was dead, and, second, because of the likeness of it to a real gun.

She happened to be holding this gun in her hand when a burglar that had seen her receive and put away the check stepped into the room. He thought Rose's toy pistol was a real automatic, but he did not think that a girl of her size and age would know how to use a gun.

Rose saw the man and guessed at once what he was after. She immediately turned toward him and said, "Hands up!" but the man did not choose to put his hands up, but instead he ran for the door, and it was not long before he was out of sight of Rose's house. The next day the money was put in the bank and not even $50,000 would buy the top pistol from Rose.

Over a year has elapsed since that time and Rose and her father and mother are once more happily living in their old country home.

MYSTERY.

The rain was coming down in torrents, while the thunder that pealing out into the ears of everyone the city at a moments warning was the ciyt at a moments warning was shocking to everyone that saw or heard it.

On this night at the wharf a small motor-boat landed. A man was soon seen enter the enter the boat, take a package and quickly disappear in the darkness.

While on the other hand a passer-by, known to only a few as one of the best detectives of the time, glanced suspiciously at the man, but could see no more, as what he had seen was by the help of the lightening only, which now stopped. The rain was now stopping by degrees, and the weather showed there would be no more lightening that night. So seeing there would be no use being there he went on his way.

The longer he thought of it the more anxious he grew. The question was why should some one choose that kind of a night to ride up the river and why should the man have disappeared so quickly.

The next morning the detective was down at the wharf looking into every corner there was to be found, for information.

While going along the wharf he came along a narrow board and tripped when falling. He did not go to the bottom of the water but in an opium den. BILL KAHN.

We had a debate in skool this aftirnoon, and Miss Kitty sed, Now I am going to choose the subjeck of this debate myself, because last week wen I wunted to have a debate and asked the class to name its own subjeck the suggestions were so ridiculous as to be painfill. The subjeck for debate will be, Resolved, that peaceful methods are allways more efficatious than warlike ones. And in the ferst place I wunt to be sure that you all know the meening of efficatious. Who can tell me wat it meens? she sed.

Wich Sam Cross waved his hand saying, Efficatious, wy efficatious meens slow.

Nuthing of the sort, it meens better or more usefill, Miss Kitty sed. Now I will name the members of the 2 opposing sides. Benny Potts and Sidney Hunt will take the offirmative or peacefill side and Charles Simkins and Leroy Shooster will take the negative or warlike side. The debate will now begin, he sed.

Wich it did, me beginning it by saying, Peace is the greatest thing. If we allways had peace we'd never have eny war because we couldent have, because we'd allways be dizzy having peace.

Youre crazy, war is the greatest thing in the werld, if it wasent for war wat would we do with all our generels and cannons and things and ware would we get all our old battlefields? Puds Simkins sed.

Whose crazy? I sed. If I'm crazy youre another, I sed, and Sid Hunt and Leroy Shooster started to join in the argewment insted of debating on account of argewing being less trubble than debating, and Miss Kitty sed, No, now, now, now, I wont have this, there will be no more debating this aftirnoon and the class will perseed to the singing lessin.

HUNTING HIDDEN TREASURE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Once upon a time there were two boys named Tom Smith and Bob Wright. Tom and Bob were just brimming around, but they wanted to go on a adventure. As Tom was thinking awhile he jumped up with a thought. Tom said, "How about hunting hidden treasure in South America?" "Hurray for you," said Bob. "Hey Bob," said Tom, "we got to start saving."

Bob and Tom soon got jobs. Bob made $20 per week working in a department store while Tom was making $17 per week working in a grocery store. They worked two months and had earned $296. "I guess we earned our passage way," said Tom.

The next day Bob and Tom went to intown and got the things they needed.

The next day they started and took trains to South America. They reached South America in five days.

As they were roaming around in the mountains Bob fell into a hole. Bob hollered and he sure was luckey Tom heard him. Tom jumped down into the hole with two guns and two flashlights. It was very dark inside the hole so they turned on the flashlights. As they were going along they saw five chests. The chests were old and the wood wood was rotten. Bob gave one of the chests a kick and the lid opened. To their amazement they saw diamonds, rubies, pearls, and different kind of stones.

"Whoopee hurray," said Bob as he was examining them. Tom was so excited he didn't know what to do. Tom said to Bob, "I will go to town and hire a horse and wagon."

Bob stayed back to guard the treasure. In a half hour Tom came back with a horse and wagon. "Wait till our parents see us coming home with all this treasure said Tom. "I'll be a stuck up dude," said Bob.

They soon reached home with all of their treasures. There parents were so supprised that they didn't know what to do. Bob and Tom and their parents lived happily ever after.

TO THE RESCUE.

Long ago there was a girl named Ruth Smith. Ruth was going on a picnic with her dog, Jip. She was walking along when she came to a little cove by the sea, but there were steep rocks around this cove. Ruth thought this would be a good place for a little picnic, so with much sliding, she got down. When Jip was down, he bagan to bark and all of a sudden he bounded up the rocks and was gone.

After Ruth had played awhile, she grew tired and lay down to sleep for a bit. After she had slept awhile, she awoke to find it growing dark. When Ruth got up to go a large wave came in and stopped her escape. The water was rising every minute. Ruth began to cry and holler and who should come over the rocks but Jip. Jip pulled her out, and when Ruth was safe she ran home to tell her mother. Jip got a gold collar and is now having a fine supper.

KIDNAPPED.

Mr. William Jackson had a daughter named Mary Jackson. She was twenty-three years old and was very pretty. There was a young man she liked very much. His name was Robert Mantell. There was Bloody Jim who also liked her, but she hated him because he was a thief. He lived in a large cave with a gang of men.

Bloody Jim was mad because she would pay no attention to him, only to Robert. Bloody Jim and his gang decided to kidnap her, so when all was still, they came and opened her window very softly and grabbed her. She could not hear them because she had her back turned.

When her father and mother had found out that she had been kidnapped, Mr. Jackson said, "He would give a reward to anyone who could find her." When Robert heard that she had been kidnapped, he started out to find her. As he was walking along, he saw a cave. He went in and found Bloody Jim and his gang sitting down at a table talking. He opened the door quietly and said, "Hands up!" He then asked them where Mary was and Bloody Jim told him. Robert found her and took Bloody Jim and his gang to the police and they also found a lot of jewelry in the cave. Mary's father and mother were very happy because she was found. Robert got the reward and also permission to marry Mr. Jackson's daughter.

They were married the next day and were very happy. About a year after, Mary had a little boy and girl and they named them Mary and Robert.

THE LOST PRINCESS.

In a wonderful castle there lived a beautiful princess. Her name was Rosamond. She had many suitors. The King, her father, wanted her to marry a prince named De Lucue. Now, De Lucue was a cruel prince, but the king didn't know it. He thought De Lucue was very nice. Rosamond did not like De Lucue. He asked the princess to marry him, but she refused. De Lucue went hom. He told his men if she would not marry him by the morrow they should kidnap her. His men said, "We're with you." On the morrow De Lucue went to the palace to ask the princess to marry him. But when he got there, the king cried, "She is not in her room. Oh, what shall we do? I cannot find her." De Lucue went back to his castle and told his men, but one man said, "We have kidnapped her and put her in a cave." "Good," cried De Lucue.

He then went to the cave and found Rosamond on some sacks. He grinned cruelly and said, "Now, I have you; will you marry me?" He then showed his ugly teeth. The princess said in a trembling voice, "You? Me marry you? I should say not!" He then said, "Then you shall die." He then went out of the room. Pretty soon Rosamond smelled smoke. She cried and tried some way to get out, for she knew the cave was on fire. The wall caved in and hit her head and knocked her unconscious. When she awoke she was in a bed of ivory and gold, and over her stood a handsome young man. She said, "Who are you?" He said, "I am Prince John of the neighboring kingdom, and I rescued you from the burning cave." She then fell in his arms. If you was at church the next morning you would see a young couple getting married. Guess who they were? They were Princess Rosamond and Prince John. De Lucue was hung the next day, and you know the rest.

A MOUNTAIN TRIP.

This summer while I was in the country, I took a trip up to the Sierra Mountains. On the way up we came awfully close to hitting two machines. We had to put on the brakes quick, and took a slide. We drove in in four hours and a half. Which is usually driven in five hours. The name of the place is Goodyears Bar. We stayed a week and two days. We were all surrounded by mountains. I went to Downieville twice. The little town of Goodyears Bar is only a hotel and a few houses and a one-room school building. On the way back we came by the way of Nevada City, Lincoln, Auburn, Indian Valley, Marysville and then the little town of Like Oak.

READ HONESTY PAYS WITH EVERYONE & ALL.

Once upon a time in the slums of New York, a boy of twelve strolled the streets. He was thinking of his sick mother who could have no doctor because they were poor. Although he was but twelve he was determined to work. So he went home to his mother's bedside and said, "Mother, you are sick and I'm going to get you well. I am going out to find work now." With this he went out of the house (which was just a little shanty). First he thought he would try his luck selling papers. He only had fifty cents in his pocket. So he bought some papers. He started walking down Broadway. He tried to sell papers there for two hours. But no one seemed to want any. He then went down Washington. A car came by with a man in it who seemed to want a paper bad. Jack, which was the boy's name, ran out to the machine. Te man handed him a twenty dollar bill. Jack told the man to wait a minute and he would get some change. He ran as fast as he could. But when he came back a boy told him that the man was in a hurry and would get it some other time. Jack didn't quite get the idea, but he was an honest boy, so he took the money to the police. It was arranged that if no one called within two days Jack could have the money. It happened that no one came, so Jack got it. He got his mother a doctor and she got better. She was sure proud of Jack ever after. And I may mention, they were never poor again.

THE ADVENTURE OF AUDREY AND FREEMAN.

Audrey and Freeman belong to a rich family, and live in a big house by Lake Erro.

One day Audrey said, "Mother, may Freeman and I take our lunch and eat in the canoe on the lake?"

"Alright," said their mother. "Tell Mary (for that was the cook's name) to put it up for you."

About eleven o'clock Audrey and Freeman carried their canoe down to the lake and paddled out to deep water. As they were eating their chicken sandwiches which Mary had prepared for them, they heard a faint scream and paddled quickly for shore. They got out and ran in the direction of the scream, and saw a cave. After creeping carea chair. She said that her name was Daisy and that she was faint from want of food. Audrey and Freeman gave her the remainder of their chicken sandwiches, which they had to feed her as she was tied with very strong rope. After eating, she explained that she was kidnapped by Black Eye Bill. They heard footsteps coming in the cave and hid behin da box, and Black Eye Bill came in. He mumbled gruffly at Daisy and pressed a button over them and disappeared. A few minutes later, Freeman pressed the button and a door slid open. (I forgot to tell you that he had a toy cap pistol that looked like a real revolver.) Going through the door, he saw Black Eye Bill and his men playing poker. Audrey stayed behind and comforted Daisy. Freeman said, "Hands up!" The men were surprised and slowly raised their hands. He made them back out of the cave, and then he blew his Boy Scout whistle, which a nearby policeman heard, and came running to the rescue.

They gave the reward to Daisy, as she was poor and they were rich—and it was near Christmas time That Christmas was an especially happy one for them.

Then all of a sudden Mr. Fox sprang out of the bushes at Mr. Rabbit. That scared Mr. Rabbit so much that he jumped up and ran away as fast as he could.

As he was passing a clump of grass Mr. Meadow Mouse jumped out at him. That frightened him more than ever and he ran still faster.

When he got home he lay down and rested. When he thought he had rested long enough he got up and went out again, but every few steps he would sit up and look around, then hop on and do it again. And from that day on Rabbits have been timid.

THE MYSTERY OF MR. JONES.

One night I was coming home from a party about twelve o'clock at night. When I came to the mansion of Mr. Jones, I heard a shot, then a scream, and all was quiet. I determined to find what the trouble was. So the next morning I got up about four o'clock and went over to the Jones' house, as we lived next door.

When I got there, Mrs. Jones was crying and saying, "My husband is dead and the pearls are gone. What shall I do? Oh! Harold (as that was my name), what shall I do?" Being a boy, I did not know how to comfort her. I went to telephone my mother to stay with here awhile.

I went downstairs to get a detective. On my way I found a bullet with a star at the end of it. I put it in my pocket and telephoned. I went downtown and engaged a detective. I walked home alone and went down a narrow, dark alley by mistake. When I got to the door of a laundry, I was suddenly seized and bound. I was thrown into a dark, cold cellar. I was trying to get away when the man that had thrown me into the cellar fired a shot at me and told me to stop. When he left I managed to get the cartridge and looked at it. It had a star on it and was the same kind as the one I found in the Jones' house. I heard voices and they were saying, "Tonight we will go to the Jones' house at twelve o'clock and kill Mrs. Jones and get the rest of the pearls. We will get all we can out of the kid." Then I heard another voice, "I heard that the kid's old man has a swell diamond ring. We'll kill the old man and take the kid and the mother and the diamond ring." Thoughts passed through my mind, " must get away to save my mother and sisters. Ah!" this was just what I wanted—a sword. I crawled over and cut the ropes on my hands. I just missed Bloody Pete, the captain of the gang. I rushed over to the police station and got some policemen. At ten minutes to twelve we went over to Brooklyn avenue, six men went to our house and six, counting me, went to Jones' house. At twelve o'clock exactly the men came. We rushed out on them and captured them.

In the meantime over at my house they were putting up a hard fight. Finally the police won. I got $1000 reward. I have never had such an adventure like that one again.

JANE DAY.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

DIVIDING THINGS.

One Mother Says:

My children like to divide their candy and fruit into equal shares. A friend criticized me for allowing this, thinking that it showed fear that each would not get his share if they took candy from the box until it was gone. The reason they do this, however, is a desire for fairness to each other. Not one of the three but will bring home a sticky portion for the other two from sweets gained in absence, and they use the same principle in dividing things in the home. I emphasize with them the idea of sharing, rather than getting a share. To me there is a distinct difference which children need to learn.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Four Minutes to Answer This.

Take a large bright-colored handkerchief, subtract a musical organization, subtract a girl's name, add a bow-like curve, add a hard, brittle, yellowish-brown fossilized resin, subtract a bedroom and the resulting letters will spell the name of a Swiss river with a falls 200 feet high.

Answer tomorrow.

PEACHES (P-chess).

MENTAL SCIENCE.

"Poor France!"

Senator King of Utah was talking about the attitude of France toward reparations.

"I'm afraid France is too sanguine," he went on. "She is like the fisherman."

"How many have you caught?" a man asked him.

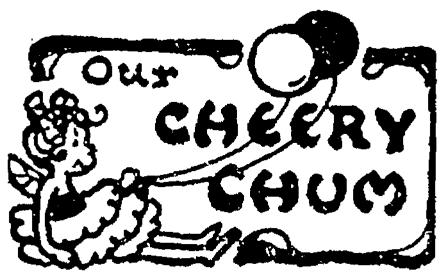
"Well," he answered, without looking up from his cork, "when I get this one I'm after and eleven more I'll have a round dozen."

◆

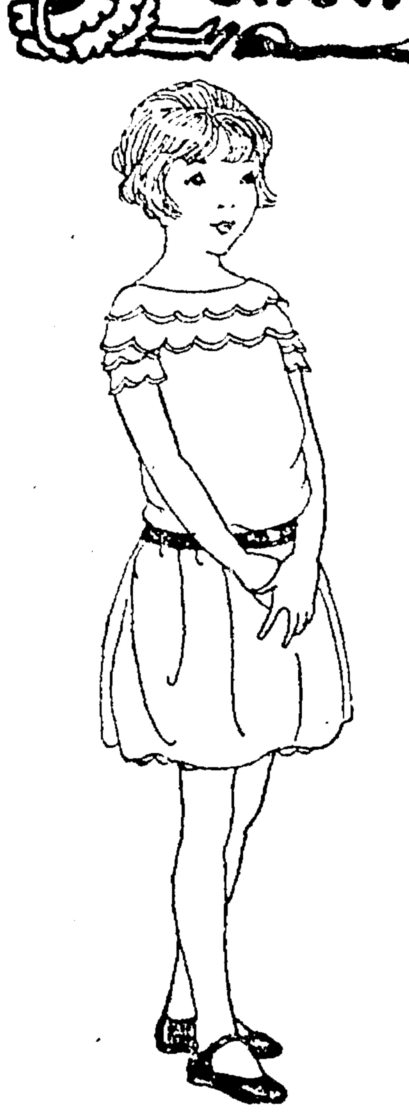
A young man who had reached the stage at which his voice was changing went into a grocery store.

In a deep bass voice he demanded "A sack of flour," then, his voice suddenly changing to a high pitch, he added, "and a pound of coffee."

"Just a minute, please," said the clerk, "I can't wait on both of you at once."



Our CHEERY CHUM



Rosalie Rehearses.

"Oh, Rosalie!" shouted Betty Cut-out, jumping up and down. "I think you'll make the best French doll ever! And you know your part off, too, don't you? Guess the rest of us will have to hurry."

Rosalie smiled shyly. She had lived in the Cut-outs' neighborhood only a month. She was a quiet little girl who didn't make friends very quickly, so she was glad and surprised when Betty Cut-out invited her to be in the show they were giving for the children in the hospital.

"Tomorrow I'll be over," promised Rosalie, when they had finished going through their parts once more, "and I'll bring my dress. Mother's fixing it for me now."

* * *

Color Rosalie's hair brown and her cheeks a soft pink. Her dress is tan with red scallops on the collar. Now you must cut her out, mount her on cardboard, and wait to try on her dress tomorrow.

Uncle Wiggily Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS HORN.

The bad Bob Cat sat on a stool in the den of the Fuzzy Fox, combing out his fur. I mean the Bob Cat was combing out his own fur.

"I'll never get the soot and chimney dirt out of my coat," snarled the Bob Cat. Never! My, how it sticks!"

"Why did you go down the chimney?" asked the Fox. "You didn't think you were that chap they call Santa Claus; did you?"

"No, indeed!" snapped the Bob Cat. "Ouch! that pulled!" he moaned, as the comb caught in a tangle. "I went down the chimney to hide and to try to catch Uncle Wiggily. But I didn't get him!" he said.

"No, and I didn't get him when he was blacking the stove," sighed the Fox. "The only way I think we can catch that rabbit," went on the bad chap, "is for us to catch Baby Bunty and take her to our den."

"What good will that do?" asked the Bob Cat, combing away at his fur.

"Well," said the Fox. "Uncle Wiggily loves Baby Bunty. When he finds that we have caught her he will come to our den to get her away from us. Then we'll catch Uncle Wiggily and let Baby Bunty go."

"It seems a good plan," chuckled the Bob Cat. "Let's try it! We'll go out and catch the little rabbit girl. We wont' hurt her—we'll just use her as a bait for catching Uncle Wiggily."

"And we'll catch him all right this time, I'm sure!" growled the Fox.

So the two bad chaps slipped out of the den and went quietly over the fields and through the woods, watching their chance to catch Baby Bunty. The little orphan rabbit girl was visiting for a time, at the home of Lulu, Alice and Jimmie Wibblewobble, the ducks. They had invited her to spend Christmas with them.

Baby Bunty started out to go to the store for Mrs. Wibblewobble to get the duck lady a yeast cake. And, all of a sudden, just when Baby Bunty was coming back, around the corner of the mulberry bush, out sprang the Fox and Bob Cat.

"Now we have you!" growled the Fox.

"Come with us!" snarled the Bob Cat.

"Oh! Oh!" screamed Baby Bunty, and she dropped the yeast cake in its silvery wrapping. But in spite of her screams and wiggles, the bad chaps carried her off to their den.

Not, however, before Jimmie Wibblewobble, the boy duck, had seen what had happened. Jimmie was too far off to help Baby Bunty, but he saw the bad chaps carry her off. Quickly Jimmie flew home, loudly quacking:

"Oh, the bad chaps have Baby Bunty! The Fox and Bob Cat have Baby Bunty!"

"My goodness!" said his mother. "We must send for Uncle Wiggily. He'll know just how to get Baby Bunty back."

Over to the hollow stump bungalow hurried Jimmie and his mother.

"What's that you say?" squealed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. "The bad chaps have Baby Bunty? Oh, dear, and Uncle Wiggily is away!"

"Where is he?" quacked Jimmie.

"He has gone to buy a horn to blow on Christmas morning," said Nurse Jane. "We always blow a horn at Christmas time."

"I know where the Christmas horn store is," said Jimmie. "I'll go there and get Uncle Wiggily. I'll tell him about Baby Bunty."

"Yes, do," said Mrs. Wibblewobble.

So Jimmy hurried to the store, and on his way he met Uncle Wiggily coming back.

"Toot! Toot; Hurray! Merry Christmas will soon be here, Jimmie!" greeted the bunny uncle, blowing on the horn in jolly fashion. Then, as Uncle Wiggily saw Jimmie's sad face, the rabbit gentleman asked:

"What's the matter?"

"The bad chaps have taken Baby Bunty to their den!" quacked the duck boy.

"Ho! I see their trick!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. "They want to get me there! Well, they shall have me! I'll go get Baby Bunty back!"

So far the trick was working just as the bay chaps wanted it to. They reached the den of the Fox, carrying poor Baby Bunty with them.

"Boo hoo!" sobbed Baby Bunty. "I want to go home!"

"We'll let you go as soon as Uncle Wiggily comes!" said the Fox.

"Come on, Jimmie," said Uncle Wiggily to the duck boy. "You must help me rescue Baby Bunty.

"How?" asked Jimmie.

"With this Christmas horn," answered Mr. Longears. "We'll go to the woods near the den of the bad chaps. You will hide behind a bush and blow the horn. The Bob Cat is very fond of fish. He will think this is Friday and that the fish peddler is around. Out of the den he will rush and the Fox will rush out with him, as the Fox also like fish. Then, as soon as they run out, I'll run in and get Baby Bunty and we'll all run home together.

And so it was done.

"Toot! Toot!" blew Jimmie on the Christmas horn.

"Ha! There is the fish man!" cried the Bob Cat. "I must get some fish!"

"So must I!" barked the Fox.

Out of the den they rushed, leaving Baby Bunty there. And as soon as Uncle Wiggily, who was hidden in the bushes, saw the bad chaps run out, he hopped in. He got Baby Bunty and then he and Jimmie and the little rabbit girl went safely back to the bungalaw.

So the Fox and Bob Cat were fooled again, this time by the Christmas horn. And if the little mouse doesn't gnaw holes in the baby's stocking so her teeny-weeny toes stick out, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Christmas bell.

WISDOM.

I hope every witch and pirate will read this and I wish you would do just what I did when I read it first. This little poem was written for each one of you by a little girl ten years old who was hurt very badly by an automobile. That is just the reason she wrote it for you and when I read it I pinned it right up on the wall where I could read it every day. Better yet, let's all learn it by heart and never forget it. Here it is:

SAFETY FIRST.
STOP BEFORE YOU CROSS THE STREET!
LOOK BEFORE YOU TAKE A LEAP!
AND—

STOP—LOOK—AND LISTEN!

FRANCES KISSEL (Age 10).

If we all remember this little poem then Frances will know that she has saved a great many other boys and girls from a very sad accident. Don't you think so? I think it would be fine if we wrote and thank her for it. I am going to. She lives at 2355 East 21st street, Oakland.

PERMIT GRANTED TO LAUNCH NEW BANK IN OAKLAND

John Davidson, W. V. Harrington and Carlos G. White Head Promoters.

A preliminary permit to organize a bank, to be known as the Franklin Bank and Trust company, with offices in the present State Bank building on the northwest corner of Franklin and Thirteenth streets, was issued today by the state banking commission to John Davidson, W. V. Harrington and Carlos G. White of Oakland.

The new bank will have capital stock of $1,000,000, according to the organizers, of which $500,000 will be paid in before the bank starts in operation. The bank will engage in all branches of commercial, savings and trust banking operations.

The building in which they will locate their offices recently was leased for ninety-nine years by Korl Raentsch. The new bank will sublease this property from Raentsch.

The organizers of the bank are well known in Oakland. John Davidson was for eighteen years with a local bank. Carlos White is an attorney and a member of the firm of Dunn, White and Aiken. Harrington is a member of the Harrington - McInness company, printers of the Institute Journal.

Associated with these men in the new bank are a number of prominent business and professional men of Oakland and several manufacturers.

Plans for the new bank have been in progress for several months.

DAIRY PRODUCTS OF STATE WORTH OVER 100 MILLION

191 Creameries Made $31,000,000 in Butter; Evaporated Milk Thriving.

The dairy industry in California has developed to a point at which its products are valued at more than $100,000,000 a year. In the last twelve years the value of dairy products has more than trebled, and there was an increase of more than $7,000,000 in production during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923, as compared with 1921-1922, and of $24,000,000 over the 1920-1921 output, according to the Monthly Review of the Mercantile Trust Company.

The principal products of the dairy industry are butter, market milk and cream, condensed and evaporated milk, ice cream, cheese, milk powder and casein. The chief by-products are beef and veal. Butter and market milk are of greatest importance.

Twelve years ago the value of butter produced in California was half that of all dairy products. Since then the output of other products, principally condensed and evaporated milk and ice cream, has increased greatly, so that in 1922 butter represented about one-third of the total value of dairy products.

Butter-making has become a great factory industry only in comparatively recent times, although butter has been used as a food for centuries. Not many years ago most of the butter was made in the farmer's kitchen. The development of the cream separator near the end of the nineteenth century was largely responsible for the development of the factory system, which has progressed so rapidly that now only a negligible amount of butter is made on the farm. There are 190 creameries in the state, and in the year ended June 30, 1922, they reported to the state dairy service an output of 74,000,000 pounds of butter, valued at $31,000,000. During the year ended June 30, 1923, the output of butter was 77,000,000 pounds, valued at $36,500,000. California ranks sixth in the United States in butter production; ahead of it are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio and Nebraska, in the order named.

Less valuable dairy products in California are condensed and evaporated milk, cheese, and ice cream.

Manufacture of condensed and evaporated milk is increasing in importance. The state ranked eighth in production of these two products in 1920, and fifth in 1922. In the year ended June 30, 1922, the output of evaporated milk was valued at close to $8,000,000, and that of condensed milk at more than $1,500,000. These amounts have increased for the year ended June 30, 1923, to $8,860,000 and $2,000,000 respectively.

Cheese produced during the year ended June 30, 1923, was valued at some $2,000,000, about the same as during the preceding year; ice cream has increased from less than $10,000,000 for the fiscal year 1921-1922, to $10,615,000 during the year ended June 30, 1923.

AD CLUB PLAYS CHRISTAMS HOST TO 100 CHILDREN

Santa Claus Distributes Gifts to Guests: Program Is Given by Artists.

One hundred boys and girls, selected by the Associated Charities were the guests of members of the Advertising club at their annual Christmas party in the main ballroom of the Hotel Oakland yesterday. The party took the place of the organization's regular luncheon meeting.

A gigantic Christmas tree, laden with decorations and surrounded with piles of presents for every child, stood in the center of the room. Colored electric lights, spangles and bunches of holly and Christmas berries hung from the walls of the room.

The big event of the day was the arrival of Santa Claus and it was with difficulty that the youngsters managed to center their attentions on the task of devouring their turkey dinner. Captain William I. Day played the role of St. Nicholas and distributed to each guest a present.

In addition to the Christmas dinner and the presents for the little guests, a program of entertainment, arranged for the affair by Miss Zannette W. Potter, chairman of the entertainment committee, was presented. The music was furnished by the Arion Trio, composed of Margaret Avery, cello; Josephine Holub, violin, and Joyce Holloway Barthelson, piano; a quartet composed of Minta Carter, Ruth Hall, Crandall, Ray Corsten and Richard Lundgren. Louis Aborello, an organ grinder with a trained monkey, delighted the club's youthful guests as did Jane Van Horn and Evelyn Bostick with a dancing exhibition.

Those who contributed to the entertainment included Arthur Kinney, chairman; Miss Zannette W. Potter, chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. H. T. Johnson, Mrs. E. A. Auloff, Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. Ed Heubbe, Mrs. Helen O'Neill, Satiro Nes Club, Mrs. Woodson Ross, Miss Mary Largent, W. R. Edwards, C. E. Mason, B. S. Sanders, Louis Aberello and Captain William I. Day.

CURTAIN CALLS
By Wood Soanes

ONE of the most discussed things in the theater world today is the international publicity that has come to Morris Gest in connection with his projected presentation of "The Miracle."

For weeks on end Gest has been in the public prints with items about the spectacular production and recently he has hit the front pages of newspapers from coast to coast for several days at a time.

Great credit for this is not due Gest but some member of his press department, probably Oliver Saylor, who was with Arthur Hopkins, but went to the Gest forces about the time of the Moscow Art theater.

Immediately thereafter things began to happen in the Gest offices and the natural presumption is that young Mr. Saylor is largely responsible. Whoever it is has a knack for making good news copy of his press agentry.

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

"Held by the Enemy," is at the Dewey with Irvin Bunkhall and Lyllian Atwood featured.

The first story broke when Gest (or was it Max Reinhardt?) discovered in Rosamond Pinchot, niece of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, just the type for a certain role.

Directly afterward there was a pair of announcements as to who would play the leading role—first Maria Carmi, otherwise the Princess Matchabelli, then Lady Diana Manners and still later an incipient row between the two titled women as to who should play the role.

Now we learn that Gest is planning, for that matter planned all along, to have doubles for all of the principals as he figures to run the big spectacle for twenty-six weeks or more and believes that the strain will be too great on the various leading characters.

George Choos Built Wealth on Cards

There is a new producer on Broadway and as is always the case the spotlight of publicity is forthwith directed toward him with the following and rather startling, not to say unique result — George Choos, for it is of him we speak, George Choos got his start through postal cards. Not that Choos write cards to others about himself, no, no, altogether different. Hear:

When Choos arrived from his native Budapest at the callow age of 23 he was as nearly broke as a young Budapestian could be and still retain his self respect. He had been bilked of his small fortune by some wiser countryman en route to the land of the free and just managed to squirm past the immigration authorities.

FORTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Otis Skinner is touring with Lawrence Barrett playing Shakespearean repertoire with Great success.

Well the first thing Choos did after he entered New York was to seek out a restaurant—a Hungarian restaurant, where he met the husband of Fritzi Scheff and that gentleman hearing of his plight, offered him a job coloring picture post cards. Choos took the job, invented a stencil whereby he could do many cards at once and made $33 the first two days.

Then the Stanford White-Harry Thaw-Evelyn Nesbit affair took place and Choos saw an opportunity for a clean-up. He obtained a photographic copy of a painting of Mrs. Thaw, and began to turn out postcards by the hundred thousand. Within a year, the first year he was with us, he had made a net profit of $30,000.

With this money he went into vaudeville, producing acts, tabloid musical comedies and such, and now he is on Broadway with "Battling Butler" repeating his success of other fields.

EXITS AND ENTRANCES

Reports from the east indicate that John Zanft, one of the executives for William Fox, who spent a few months in Oakland launching the local Fox-Oakland, is out of danger. Zanft was injured in the Twentieth Century Limited wreck.

* * *

Arch Selwyn has completed arrangements for the presentation of Jane Cowl in "Smiling Through" and "Romeo and Juliet," at the Haymarket in London. No mention is made of "Pelleas and Melisande."

* * *

If John Cromwell's plans mature the Schildkrauts, father and son, will work for him in one production next season.

* * *

Frank Vreeland, who tells "The Talk of Broadway" for the New York Herald, flings a trenchant pen when he so desires. For example, in discussing the early metropolitan demise of Drinkwater's play, "Robert E. Lee," he notes: "Lee has surrendered again. It is said to have cost William Harris, Jr., over $50,000—which after all, is nothing compared to what the Civil War cost the South."

* * *

* * *

Fay Bainter has a new play, "The Other Rose," which is now lurking in the bushes outside Manhattan preparing to bloom at Christmas time.

* * *

More news of our old friend John E. Keilard. It is said that he is simply bursting with the germ of a great idea. Hush! He wants to revive "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." with Henry Dixet, Amelia Bingham, Patricia Collinge and other beacon lights in his support. John will undobtedly play both Doc and Mr., and if history repeats itself play them until eleven o'clock as Eugene Field wrote of a worthier artist's Denver efforts.

* * *

Everybody is quite alarmed over the new Marilynn Miller-Flo Ziegfeld imbroglio. Miss Miller is not with "Sally." Some say she goes to vaudeville. Others point with knowing pride to a contract calling for appearances in a new show in February.

* * *

This same contract had a nonmarrying clause, but Miss Miller became the blushing bride of Jack Pickford.

* * *

The Gutrys are not coming to America this year after all.

Aronovici Will Give Touch of Beauty to Play

City Planning Expert Is to Handle Lighting Features of Yule Fantasy.

When the curtain rises on "The Clown's Christmas" and "Paddly Pools," the two children's play to be produced in the Y. W. C. A. theater Friday evening and Saturday afternoon by Grace N. Borroughs, Carol Aronovici, the famous city planning expert of Berkeley, will appear in a new role—that of lighting expert.

Aronovici has long been interested in the Little theater movement and during his life in Europe he became familiar with the famous lighting plan put into execution by Rainhardt, who is considered the most famous of stage-lighting authorities.

Lights will play a most important part in the production of the two plays in that they will be used to create the fairyland atmosphere which provides a background for the two charming fantasies.

The prodution of the two playlets marks the first Little theater production for children ever given in Oakland and there is every indication that the productions will prove a distinctive artistic success.

Grace Burroughs is the author of the curtain raiser, "The Clown's Christmas," while Miles Malleson is the author of "Paddly Pools." The costumes are all of original design and were executed by Flora Peterson. Special music is by Esther Hale Sittig. Stage sets are the work of Richard Reid.

Among the fantastic characters in the latter piece are "Spirit of the Trees," played by Esther Widasky; "The Spirit of the Winds," by Elinor Crafts; "Soul of All the Rabbits," by Frances Ewing; "Short Green Grass," Dorothy Peterson; "Spirit of the Flowers," by Kathleen Heaney.

Committee Makes Report on Menace Of Fires in Hills

Steel observation towers on Redwood and Grizzley peaks with roads, telephones and power lines leading to each, and with a road from East Euclid avenue, Berkeley, to Grizzley peak to serve as a connecting link in the proposed north extension of the Skyline boulevard are recommended in the report of the Contra Costa Hills Fire Protection committee prepared by Professor Emmanuel Fritz.

The proposed improvements call for an expenditure of $20,000 to be apportioned among the Eastbay cities and the public utility and real estate corporations with large interests in the hills.

Other recommendations for fire protection were roads and trails to facilitate fire fighting, installation of fire sirens, additional boxes of fire fighting tools, instruments for meteorological records and an automobile for the forest ranger.

A committee consisting of Prof. Fritz, W. H. Craft, S. H. Phelen, E. F. Barnes, Paul I. Daniels and Charles Keeler was appointed to apportion the funds to the various cities and interests.

Universities Lose Foreign Students

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—Foreign students are deserting German universities in this country. Outsiders must pay more than twice as much for tuition fees as Germans, but the unusual advance in living costs has bene the chief factor in reducing the number of non-Germans in all the universities of the republic.

Every thirtieth male German between the ages of 19 and 23 is a student in some university, and the number of students in attendance at practically all universities is increasing in spite of the economic distress.

TWO HELD FOR ROBBERY.

YREKA, Dec. 19.—John Lewis, 20, and Leroy Fletcher, 22, were arrested at Edgewood, near here, yesterday and held in connection with the robbery of the Denny Bar Company's store at Denny Bar last night.

WHITE & POLLARD REALTORS

There is a sentimental appeal in the thought of acquiring a home for the Holidays, and as a setting for the outstanding events in a man's life, but there is likewise a practical reason for home buying at this season of the year.

You see just what you are getting in the way of material and location, and you see it at its worst. Does the rain water stand in the yard? You will know it. Do roof and casements leak? You will see it. Is the house chill and damp? You will feel it.

If the house is attractive to you now, in the half gloom of a rainy day, with a muddy lawn and bare trees, it will be the pride of your heart in the sunshine of May.

So, see what these Realtors have to offer when the weather is at its worst, and if you buy then you will never regret it.

7D HERBALISTS

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
In gratitude to DR. WONG HIM I desire to make public the wonderful cure he has effected thru the medicine of herbs. After being under the grip of one of the most atrocious diseases that has ever attacked humanity, cancer of the intestines, for a long period of time and death seemed inevitable.

I am at the present time entirely cured of the above, same being made possible only through DR. WONG HIM'S ability in applying his herbs, which have destroyed every vestige of the terrible disease. Let this be a guide to any one needing expert advice plus conscientiousness.

of these wonderful
PLANTED FIG GARDENS

NO PAYMENT
DOWN.

I. C. Forkner, president of the J. C. Forkner Fig Gardens, Inc., hereby offer to 100 families a most remarkable proposition.

I have planted and sold 10,000 acres of fig gardens; I have spent $6,000,000 during the last ten years developing these fig gardens, there are 100 happy families living on these home acres now. I want 100 more families.

I have decided to sell 1000 acres of planted fig gardens just coming into bearing, on the following conditions:

You move upon 5 or 10 acres of my fig gardens, just coming into bearing, adjoining the city of Fresno, and build a home and farm the land; I will give you ten years in which to pay.

The Crops Will Pay for the Land

Roads, ditches, highways, electric lines are built; townsite on land being developed; best water right in State, canning factory already built; church, schools and 5,000,000 dollar lumber mill employing 1000 men on tract; only 15 minutes from center of Fresno.

I live on the land and have developed fig gardens myself; any man who moves upon these fig gardens cannot fail, for I will help him to success.

For details see my personal representative, Mr. Fred W. Gregory, Suite 706 Hearst bldg., S. F. Phone Sutter 1311.

If you cannot personally call, write for details.

FOR Xmas suggestions for "Her" see that heading following Class 60. (This is Class No. 45).

HOWARD USED CARS

Lincoln said, "All men are created equal,"—but the fact that we all came in on the ground floor doesn't say that TIME won't shove some fellows higher up than others. The same applies to automobiles. A NEW Buick is only like other new cars in that it is NEW. Time is the acid test by which true automobile values are known. TIME has written a stronger recommendation for Buick than all the vain claims of ad writers. By the test of TIME, Buick is the accepted standard of comparison. A Used Buick—the proven product of a proven design—that's what we offer as the most economical transportation of the day.

Yes, they are rebuilt and repainted.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—Banks here are reflecting the healthy business situation by declaration of good sized holiday dividends. The extra dividends have ranged from 10 to 100 per cent. Discount Rate To City Is Cut Off

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The city of Rochester has been served notice that beginning January 1, the Rochester Telephone Corporation will discontinue its 25 per cent discount on all telephone bills run by city departments. This action will mean an increase in expense to the city of approximately $10,000 a year. The telephone company alleges that the recent rate reductions, ordered by the public service commission, for which the city waged an earnest battle, necessitates the discontinuation of the discount.

Rail Bond Issue Permit Is Denied

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today denied an application of the Colorado, Columbus & Mexican Railroad Company for authority to issue $2,000,000 in bonds. The action supplements a previous decision of the commission refusing the same corporation the right to build about 390 miles of railroad in Arizona and New Mexico and in old Mexico.

O. S. K. Line Is To Change Fleet To Oil Burners

Combination Burners Are to Be Installed in All Line's Ships.

SEATTLE, Dec. 18.—With 450 passengers and a valuable cargo of freight the Admiral-Oriental line steamship President McKinley will arrive here tomorrow, according to agents here. Included in the cargo will be 15 carloads of silk valued at more than $5,000,000 which will be discharged and forwarded east.

Plans have been completed in Japan for converting the entire trans-Pacific fleet of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha Steamship company into oil burners but will be so arranged that coal can be used whenever desired, according to word brought here by the steamship Alabama Maru which arrived last night from the Orient. The Alabama Maru has already been equipped for burning oil but used coal on her eastbound voyage, because oil is said to be very expensive in Japan. Her furnaces have been arranged so that the installation of oil burners does not interfere with the burning of coal.

The steamship Alameda of the Alaska Steamship company returned here from Tacoma tonight and has been retired from commission until early in February according to officials of the company. The vessel will be completely overhauled during this period. The steamship Victoria will take the Alameda's place. Early in February the steamship Northwestern will be withdrawn for overhauling and the Victoria will replace that vessel for one round trip, it was said. The Victoria will then be overhauled for her annual Nome season.

The British steamship Mongolian Prince of the Furness-Withy & Company service, will arrive here Thursday to load a general cargo for North European ports, according to advices reaching agents for the service here today.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 19.—Turkeys have become a drug on the local market, wholesalers quoting the finest birds at 30c a pound while retailers are advertising them for 34c.

Smith Wreck Is Blocking Port

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Dec. 19.—The wreck of the steamer C. A. Smith commenced breaking up today and tonight the debris from the craft was spread far and wide over the north beach and two pieces were still hanging on the south side of the sunken jetty. The coast guard lookout reported that portions of the wreck could be seen in the surf north of the jetty and the shore.

The wreck went to pieces under the beating of a heavy sea which came up yesterday and the steamer is entirely gone.

Fearing that the portion with the engines and boilers may have sunk in the channel, the coast guard station and lookout is flying a danger flag warning ships not to enter the harbor.

As soon as the sea calms it is expected a survey of the channel in the vicinity of the wreck will be made and the condition will be ascertained.

The Coss Bay Lumber company is arranging to return to their home port, San Francisco, the men who were saved from the wreck. They may be held here until the arrival and departure of the steamer F. A. Warner.

The company also intends taking care of any bodies that shall be found along the beaches or inside the harbor.

Reports from the beach, where patrols have been on duty, have not developed the finding of any bodies of the sailors and others who were lost Sunday morning when the lifeboat overturned.

CARGO VESSELS CROWD WHARVES OF LOCAL PORT

Steamers Unload and Take On Charters for Many Places in World.

Practically every public wharf from the outer harbor to well up the estuary is busy today receiving cargo which is discharging from the holds of the several big offshore steamers which made their way in through the Golden Gate yesterday afternoon and evening.

The United States Shipping Board freighter West Cactus, under allocation to Struthers & Barry, is at the Parr Terminal, in the outer harbor, discharging a large cargo of copra and other island and oriental products. The steamer collected her cargo at Singapore, Manila and through the straits settlements. A large shipment of Philippine sugar was also in the holds of the freighter.

The City of Vancouver arrived from Newcastle, New South Wales, with a cargo of 8000 tons of coal for delivery to the King Coal Company, and she is busy today piling her stone fuel into the bunkers at the foot of Market street.

The Britis steamer Director is at the Howard Terminal, taking aboard a part cargo of general merchandise and canned and dried fruit for delivery to the United Kingdom and Continental ports.

A number of charters were reported closed yesterday. These consisted of the British steamer Glenfiller to carry grain from the coast to the United Kingdom at a rate of 38 shillings; the Norwegian Loch Tay, for the trans-Pacific trade for nine months; the Spanish steamer Arno Mendi, to carry grain from the coast to United Kingdom at a rate of 37 shillings; and the Japanese steamers Kohnan Maru, Kaisho Maru and Wales Maru to carry lumber from Gray's Harbor to Japan.

British Lumber Business Good And on Increase

Report to the U. S. Bureau Shows Increase Is Due to New Activities.

Reports from all parts of the United Kingdom show a satisfactory state of the lumber business, Trade Commissioner M. M. Mitchell informs the commerce department. There has been a very encouraging improvement in trade, and the industry as a whole has no cause to be disappointed with present conditions. The building of dwelling houses has been going on steadily; the railways are now putting in hand a large program of car building which calls for a good consumption of lumber; and street paving companies have been using very large quantities of North European softwoods for their wood block pavements. Although there has been a steady arrival of hardwoods during the past few weeks stocks in dealers hands have not increased, due to the good demand. Large quantities of Russian, Polish, and other European oak have been received and have moved off rapidly to consumers. The trade is well impressed with its quality, practically the only complaint being that there are no standard grades. The increase in the cost of production on the Continent is expected to cause a rise in the prices now prevailing for this stock.

Considerable dissatisfaction has been expressed in the lumber trade at the large quantity of discolored lumber arriving this season from the North European countries particularly Finland.

A representative of the British lumber trade has just returned from Archangel. He reports 22 out of a pre-war 29 mills in the Archangel Solombola district as now producing lumber. Logs are going down the rivers at a satisfactory rate, and the 1924 production of lumber is expected to be almost up to the prewar level. The British lumber trade is watching the new development of production in Russia with great interest.

Tanker Is Greeted By Flying Shells

SAN PEDRO, Dec. 19. — Shells whistling overhead and bursting nearby greeted the arrival here last night of the Standard Oil tanker Muskogee from San Juan, P. R., according to the matter of the tanker. The vessel had either gotten near or inside the firing waters set aside for the Pacific battle fleet, he said.

The Avalon, passenger steamer plying between Wilmington and Catalina Island, was given a trial trip today following extensive overhauling. She is said to have responded perfectly and will be recommissioner immediately.

Vessels Need Not File at Astoria

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 19. — Vessels coming to Portland need no longer stop at Astoria to file documents if they have previously entered at another American port, according to a custom ruling just announced. Steamers coming direct from foreign ports are not affected by the ruling and have to stop at Astoria for quarantine and to enter.

The steam schooner Willamette arrived this afternoon with mixed cargo from California ports.

MANUFACTURERS URGE SUPPORT OF MERCHANT SHIP

Session in Omaha Has Advised Support for the Merchant Marine.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Upbuilding of the American merchant marine without the aid of a ship subsidy, but with preferential legislation in favor of American vessels, was urged in a resolution adopted today at the closing session of the Manufacturers' Foreign Conference. The resolutions committee, headed by President O. E. Bradfute, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, also brought in resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, advocating the appointment of a farmer as the middle west's representative on the Shipping Board; indorsing plans to give the midwest facilities of ocean transportation; urging the extension of the foreign service of the Department of Commerce; and requesting congress to pass legislation to enable coordination of inland and ocean transportation making through rates available to the central west's exporters of agricultural and manufactured products.

EUROPE BIG MARKET.

"We can't forget the European market," Thomas Gaukel of St. Louis, representative of the Department of Commerce, declared, in an address before the conference this morning. We are frequently told to let the European market go and to develope markets in Latin America, Africa, Asia and Australia. It is true that Europe does not present so great a market for manufactured articles as other parts of the world, but it is our one great agricultural market, and it cannot be ignored either by the farmer or the manufacturer."

O. K. Davis, secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, told the conference that America is vitally dependent upon foreign trade both in the satisfying of its needs and the marketing of its surplus, and attacked "the too prevalent notion of America's self-sufficiency."

"We hear much," he said, "about the self-dependence of America. Last year our imports totaled $3,112,000,000, and more than half of that sum was in raw materials. Were it not for our imports of raw materials, a corresponding proportion of our factories would be idle. The successful farmer depends on imported fertilizer, the wheat grower on imported hemp from which he gets his binding twine."

The conference adjourned at noon.

GRANT IS FREED IN GLOY CASE

San Franciscan Acquitted of Murder After Jury Had Been Out Six Hours; Defendant's Wife Collapses

Frank H. Grant, indicted for the alleged murder of Henry Gloy Jr., is free today, following a verdict of acquittal returned by a jury in Superior Judge Samuels' court last night.

Grant's mother, father and wife were in the courtroom when the verdict was read. His wife broke down and became almost hysterical, his mother greeted the jury as they filed from their box for the last time and personally thanked each of them.

The jury was out six hours, from 11 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. At noon it was reported that the jury stood 7 to 5 for acquittal. It was five hours later before an agreement was reached.

Grant was arrested in San Francisco when he applied at the Park Emergency hospital in that city for treatment for a wound in his chin a few hours after Gloy had been murdered at his home at 221 Twenty-ninth street, Oakland. Gloy had been killed during a battle with three burglars, in the course of which he fired several shots, fatally wounding one of them. It was contended by the prosecution that Grant's wound had been caused by one of Gloy's bullets, or by flying glass from the automobile in which the burglar trio fled from the scene and which was later wrecked.

Grant was defended by Attorneys W. H. L. Hynes of Oakland and James T. Hanley of San Francisco. Assistant District Attorney Frank Shay was in charge of the prosecution.

ELKS ADOPT CHILD BORN ON LIMITED

J. C. Ewing, Returning From Chicago Gives Mother His Compartment, Raises Fund for Comforts, Necessities

Oakland Elks are godfathers to Miss Nevada Alvitree, born yesterday on the Overland Limited train en route to Oakland. Through the generosity of the local Elks, led by J. Cal Ewing, the mother, Mrs. Anna Alvitree, whose husband died suddenly in New York two weeks ago, leaving her friendless and alone and almost destitute, was provided with medical attention, given a compartment on the train and brought safely to Oakland.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Alvitree started for her mother-in-law's home in Salinas, bringing with her two small boys aged 2 and 3 respectively. As the train was crossing Nevada, Ewing, who was returning from the baseball convention in Chicago, learned that the woman was about to give birth to a child. He donated his compartment for a hospital, raised a collection of $125 among the passengers and at Wells, Nevada, had a doctor board the train and ride with them until the little new life was safely launched.

At the Oakland mole, an ambulance for which Ewing had wired, loaned by Fred Johnson, met the train and took the mother and child to the Salvation Army hospital on East Twenty-eighth street. Mrs. Alvitree's brother-in-law received news of the situation today and rushed to Oakland to meet her. Hospital authorities report both mother and child doing well.

Mrs. Alvitree has named the baby girl Nevada, in honor of her birthplace.

4 Wives Seek Freedom From Their Husbands

A romance which began in England and had a sequel in the marriage of Arthur H. Johnson and Mabel C. F. Johnson in Vancouver, B. C., in April, 1911, has led to the divorce court. The husband has filed suit declaring his wife made the declaration after she came to Canada that "she knew he was not the man she came to marry." At another time she declared that she had never loved him but lived with him from a sense of duty, and on another occasion last year she said that she would remain as a housekeeper but not as his wife.

On October 25, last, Mrs. Johnson wrote him that she had erred in marrying him, had paid the penalty and all she wanted to do was to "forget the hideous past," Johnson says.

Accusing John M. Kinucan, salesman and candidate for school director at the last election, with vile language, intoxication and gambling until late hours while in the company of dissolute persons, Mrs. Josephine B. Kinucan, 3260 Kansas street, has filed suit for $100 a month separate maintenance for herself and children. The wife also asks a restraining order to prevent her husband entering the home and molesting her.

Although earning $300 to $400 a month as a salesman, Kinucan failed properly to provide for his family because he gambled his money away, says the wife. Mrs. Kinucan says they were married in Winslow, Arizona, January 20, 1917. The children are Mary, 6, and Kenneth, age 4.

Returning from church one Sunday in Yakima, Washington, Glenn M. Crain tried to kick her, slipped on the icy sidewalk and fell, says Ora C. Crain in a divorce suit. After they reached home Crain handled her roughly and tried to choke her, the wife says.

To prevent a repetition this New Year's of what took place last year when Frank Black is alleged to have come home intoxicated, seized his wife by the throat, threw her against a chair and then threw her on the bed, compelling her to escape from him by jumping out the window, Mrs. Laura Black has instituted divorce proceedings. Besides making this charge, Mrs. Black says her husband called her names and frequently made accusations to herself and others that she associated with other men.

Mrs. Black says they were married in Oakland, December 15, 1920, and separated last May. She asks to be awarded the community property, costs of suit and the right to resume her maiden name of Daniels.

ADVERTISING MANAGER OF C. OF C. QUITS

Orton Lucas Will Leave to Take Private Business Post in Eastbay Firm; Drive for 1924 Already Outlined

ORTON E. LUCAS

Orton E. Lucas, advertising manager of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, has resigned his position. The resignation becomes effective early in the new year, at which time he will affiliate himself with a prominent Eastbay company. No successor has been named.

Lucas has been with the Oakland Chamber for two years, during which time he has conducted for chamber advertising campaigns with far-reaching results. He is the author of the several pieces of attractive literature now being widely used in advertising Oakland. During 1923 the Oakland Chamber put more than 100,000 of these booklets into circulation.

Plans for the 1924 advertising campaign are now near completion. Included among these are another intensive newspaper campaign in southern California, which will be launched early in January. This will carry an appeal to both homeseekers and investors. A trade paper campaign with an appeal to eastern manufacturers also is planned.

The next 30 days will see the completion of Oakland's industrial film, which will be the first of its kind ever produced. It will be a sales document in picture. Sponsors believe it tells more of the advantages of Oakland in 15 minutes than would be possible through any other medium. This film, unlike "The Goal of All the Ages," produced by the Advertising Department, during the year will be shown by appointment to men with a positive interest in what Oakland has to offer. Thirty-one copies of the previous film are now circulating through the middle-west and east.

Jury Frees Mexican of Crime Charge

SALINAS, Dec. 19.—A verdict of not guilty was rendered by a jury in the superior court late yesterday afternoon in the case of Ramon Tapia, a young Mexican who was tried on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Tapia was arrested early in September with articles of ladies' wearing apparel in his possession. The garments had been stolen by burglars, who ransacked the V. H. Lent home several weeks previously. Tapia claimed they had been given him to sell by another man, who said his wife had deserted him.

Serving a City of Homes

An important phase in the development of the Eastbay cities is the growth, in the individual communities which compose this great section, of complete business districts catering to the needs of the residents in those territories.

An outstanding example is the progressive Piedmont Avenue business section, which serves a true "city of homes" with a population of more than 10,000 people.

Through their strong association the Piedmont Avenue merchants study the needs of their patrons and endeavor in every way possible to make their shops and the shopping center as a whole meet these needs.

Evidence of the spirit pervading their group is the advertising campaign recently carried on in which they sought for and secured new businesses for Piedmont Avenue—so that their service might be absolutely complete.

Here, as in every other growing section of the Eastbay, is The American Bank, co-operating with the active element, building and boosting the district so that all the Eastbay region may grow and prosper. An outstanding example of this co-operation is the fine new bank building being erected at Fortieth Street and Piedmont Avenue.

Through its Piedmont Branch, now at 4058 Piedmont Avenue, The American Bank renders a full, downtown banking service to the residents as well as the merchants of the Piedmont Avenue section.
